CIVIL DEFENSE

'Shirking' Hit by Member

MLA Lydia Arsens today accused local civil defense authorities of "shirking their duty" and demanded the Greater Victoria CD program be stepped up instead of scrapped.

Mrs. Arsens wired The Times from Nelson her views on the Greater Victoria civil defense control board's action in dismissing all but one member of the administrative staff.

"SHOCKED"

The Social Credit MLA said she is "extremely shocked" at the board's action.

"The vast majority of citizens still are without knowledge of methods of self-preservation in any modern attack," she said. Ottawa's inefficiency is no excuse for local authorities to shirk their duty of launching an intensive educational drive in such a vulnerable area."

ASKS CAMPAIGN

"I have wired Mayor C. L. Harrison and council, strongly urging stepping up of program for general public instead of scrapping it," said Mrs. Arsens.

She said she was "appealing to The Victoria Daily Times to campaign against council's dangerous decision."

Meanwhile, the civil defense firing issue appeared at a standstill until a special control board meeting called for 3 p.m., Tuesday.

Provincial and federal officials are withholding comment on the Victoria situation until after the meeting, and until they are in possession of a full report.

Soccer Lead

LONDON (UP)—Sunderland took over the lead in the first division of the British Soccer League today when previously-undefeated West Bromwich was trimmed 3-1 by lowly-placed Tottenham in the day's biggest upset.

Sunderland topped Newcstle at home, 4-2, and moved into first place by virtue of a superior goals-per-game average. Manchester City and Wolverhampton played a 2-2 tie, giving Manchester City the runner-up spot although like Sunderland, it has a total of 17 points.

Thoughtful Canadians from Newfoundland to Vancouver Island will pause tomorrow, Thanksgiving Sunday, to count their blessings and give devout thanks for the abundance of natural riches which help make this country both great and growing. Churches will hold special services of thanksgiving for the intangible, as well as the material, health of the nation. Freighter Sinks; 21 Sought in Sea

Prince Rupert Cabby Gives Life for Woman

Vehicle Plunges Into False Creek

VANCOUVER (CP) — A taxi driver identified as Magnus (Mike) Arnison, about 29, of Prince Rupert, saved a woman passenger but failed to escape himself when his vehicle plunged into the waters of False Creek before dawn here today.

The taxi, registered in Prince Rupert, is believed to have turned off Main Street by mistake and drove on the False Creek uqay.

When the driver realized his error and tried to turn around, the rear end of the vehicle slipped off the dock. The cab fell 15 feet into 10 feet of water.

A broken piling smashed the front window but the driver managed to push his passenger, Mrs. Elsie Manz, through the window as the car sank.

The story was pieced together from statements the woman made to police in Vancouver General Hospital.

A fisherman, Joe E. Henderson, was awakened by a woman screaming about 4.15 a.m. He said he and a companion launched a skiff to find the woman clinging to a log in the water.

"She was hysterical," said Henderson. "She kept shouting: "There's a man in there; for God's sake try and get him out."

Police were summoned within minutes but the driver's body could not be recovered for almost an hour.

A new portrait of Princess Anne, in full color, is featured on the cover of today's edition of Weekend, the Victoria Times magazine supplement.

Theft of U.S. Secret Files Brings Arrest

WASHINGTON (UP) — FBI agents today arrested a former employee of the national security agency on charges he improperly obtained secret government documents connected with national defense.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover identified the arrested man as Joseph Sidney Petersen, 40. Hoover said Petersen has been employed by the security agency since 1941.

The national security agency is a top-secret branch of the defense department. Its operations are so hush-hush that its exact functions never have been disclosed. But it is known to be concerned with such matters as codes, communications and intelligence.

A complaint filed before U.S. commissioner Earl C. Fletcher of Alexandria, Va., charged that Petersen from March 1, 1948, to about Dec. 31, 1952, while an employee of the agency, obtained classified documents and national defense information "with intent or reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation."

10 Dead, Many Survive After 48 Hours in Water

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—A freighter with 48 crewmen capsized and sank Thursday in a storm 150 miles southeast of Cape Henry, Va., and a mighty air and sea rescue operation was in progress today.

The coast guard reported at least four known dead and search pilots said six additional bodies were spotted in the water. Eleven persons were pulled alive from the water so far but one of those was reported in critical condition. The four known dead were bodies brought aboard rescue ships.

Other survivors were spotted over a wide area after 48 hours of clinging to wreckage or staying afloat in life jackets.

Planes flying overhead dropped a number of life rafts to survivors who were "apparently in fairly good shape," according to pilots of the planes.

OVER 4 MILES

Lt.-Cmdr. Joe Ryan, the pilot of one of six planes assisting in rescue work, said debris and survivors were scattered thickly over about four square miles of ocean swells. He estimated that his crew spotted 15 or 20 survivors during eight hours of flying.

Ryan's patrol plane dropped one life raft and he said several apparently dropped from other planes were in the area but "those people were very reluctant to leave their debris and get on them."

Planes dropped smoke bombs and dye markers around the men in the sea so that surface craft and PBM flying boats could spot them easily.

"There were smoke floats all over the area," Ryan said. "Sometimes you could see eight or 10 burning at the same time," Ryan said.

The first man Ryan spotted "was hanging onto a board and waving like mad," he said.

RESCUE BEGINS

Rescue ships began plucking survivors out of the sea shortly after dawn today.

The freighter was the Moore-McCormack Line Mormackite, bound to Baltimore with a load of iron ore from Buenos Aires, Argentina. She was due in Baltimore Thursday, but was last heard from at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Her position then was 260 miles southeast of Cape Henry.

The first survivor was picked up by the Greek freighter Macedonia at 7.37 a.m. today, and he told his rescuers the Mormackite capsized and sank early Thursday.

CHURCHILL SAYS

U.S. Isolation Could Spell End Of Europe, U.K.

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill said today that if the United States adopted an isolationist policy, it would condemn all Europe to Soviet subjugation and would reduce Britain "to death and ruin."

The prime minister was addressing the annual conference of the Conservative party only a month before his 80th birthday. In measured tones, he declared:

"For America to withdraw into isolation would condemn all Europe to Russian Communist subjugation and our famous and beloved island to death and ruin."

Condemning all calls in Britain and the United States for the Americans to "go it alone" against Russia, Churchill declared:

"There is already in the United States no little talk of a return to isolation and the policy is described as 'fortress America.'

Churchill made a powerful plea for support of the new nine-power plan to rearm West Germany and grant her membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization under proper safeguards.

He said "it would be disastrous to the human race" to judge the Germans or any other peoples by past crimes committed in their names by dictators.

"Let Hitler take his shame to hell," he said. "Let the peoples extend the hand of friendship and forgiveness to each other and walk forward together through the mysteries of life to freedom, justice and peace."

Rainy Monday to Mar Last Long Holiday

All roads led to "somewhere else" Friday night and today as residents by the thousands headed away from the city for the Thanksgiving holiday—last long week-end before Christmas.

Travel agencies noted heavy traffic up-Island and to and from the mainland.

Trans-Canada Air Lines reported sell-out business on extra flights Friday and today, and said advance bookings had been made for Monday night, both to and from the mainland.

Vancouver Island Coach Lines is prepared for traffic. Schedules have not been altered, but extra buses will be run on each trip as required.

"No one will be left behind," a company official said.

For the stay-at-homes who will make their last major effort to get gardens in shape for the winter, Sunday gives signs of being a "reasonably good" day.

William Mackie, weatherman, said there will be clearing tonight after shower activity late today, and sunshine with cloudy periods Sunday. Temperatures will range between 50 and 58 degrees.

Monday, however, gives every sign of being wintery, Mr. Mackie said.

Present indications are that a storm far out in the Pacific will make itself felt by Monday, he said, bringing cloud and some rain.

A full sports program has been arranged for the week-end to suit all tastes, from golf and football to motorcycle hill climbs.

CANADA RECALLS SCIENTIST

Changes Forecast In Research Staff

Recalled to Canada for special duties is Dr. George S. Field, one of Canada's top defense research scientists, loaned recently to United Kingdom air ministry.

Announcement was made here today by Dr. Omond M. Solandt, defense research board chairman, following a meeting of the board at Esquimalt Pacific Naval Laboratory. Dr. Solandt is in Victoria in connection with the opening Friday of new PNL facilities at Esquimalt. (See page 15.)

"Because of an impending staff reorganization, combined with our current heavy research program, we have found it necessary to recall Dr. Field," Dr. Solandt said.

"Although the U.K. authorities are reluctant to lose his services, they have kindly agreed to releasing him before the end of the originally planned tour overseas.'

On his return to Ottawa about mid-November, Dr. Field will assume position of chief scientist, a new senior post set up by the board.

He relinquished the position of chief of division "A," direction of the board's naval and telecommunications research program for a tour in the United Kingdom at the request of the air ministry.

Dr. Field directed Canada's wartime anti-submarine research program which was carried out on a co-operative basis with the United Kingdom and the U.S.

EX-PREMIER ANALYZES B.C. FINANCIAL STANDING

On Page 4 today former Premier Byron Johnson replies to claims of the provincial government that Social Credit policies have given British Columbia a better financial standing than ever before. Premier Bennett took credit this week for the low interest rate obtained on the latest PGE bond issue. Mr. Johnson asserts this was not due to the government's policies, but to the generally lower rates in the money market, and backs up his statement with figures. Turn to Page 4 for the inside story on what we pay for our borrowed money.

Socred Cabinet Ducks Lottery Issues, Tosses 'Bombshell' Back to Bonner

By TOM GOULD
Times Legislative Reporter

The Social Credit government Friday ducked the controversial issue of legalizing lotteries for charities.

After a day and one-half of gauging public opinion, a heated cabinet session, and opposition from B.C. churchmen and Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi, the government tossed the issue completely into the hands of Attorney General Robert Bonner.

Mr. Bonner issued a prepared statement in which he took full personal responsibility for a recommendation to a federal government committee that charity lotteries be legalized.

Mr. Bonner's statement said he was sent a questionnaire "as attorney general" by the Senate-Commons joint committee on corporal punishment and lotteries.

"This being a federal question under review, I have communicated of course, only my personal view for the consideration of the federal committee," said Mr. Bonner.

The attorney general's original statement concerning the lottery question was made Thursday morning, when he showed reporters the recommendation made to Ottawa.

It read:

"It is suggested the (Criminal) Code be amended to allow lotteries to operate under government supervision where the proceeds are devoted to charitable purposes only, and where no person or corporation other than the charity makes a profit."

Since Mr. Bonner revealed the recommendation in reply to a reporter's query as to whether the Social Credit government favored lotteries, newsmen assumed it to be a statement of government policy.

B.C. newspapers, including the Times, carried the story in Thursday afternoon editions. Mr. Bonner made no statement on Friday morning, but at 3 p.m. Friday he called a press conference to say he was "surprised at the sensational headlines referring to my very limited recommendation concerning lotteries."

In the interim, churchmen of all denominations had blasted the government's stand, and Public Works Minister Gaglardi had given wide coverage to his personal view that "I am opposed to all lotteries."

In view of Mr. Bonner's claim the recommendation expressed his personal view on lotteries (he said reporters' assumption the recommendation was government policy was an "understandable misunderstanding") the government's position is not known.

However, it is considered highly unlikely in government circles the attorney-general would submit a recommendation on such a contentious issue without consulting Premier Bennett, if not the entire cabinet.

It is obvious, too, that the federal committee was seeking an expression of provincial government opinion, and not that of an individual.

Mr. Bonner said: "It should be made clear that the view of the attorney-general was sought in this questionnaire and not that of the government of this province."

The A-G's statement reiterated the stand taken in the original release: that lotteries should be legalized for charities, to be operated under strict government supervision. Expenses should be regulated to "ensure that only the charity would derive benefit."

He enlarged on his comment that each charity should be restricted to holding one lottery a year by suggesting the federal committee consider "some device whereby charitable organizations either in Canada or in each province would combine in a lottery appeal."

Mr. Bonner said it would "appear many people presently support lotteries and by their action indicate lack of support of the present provisions of the Criminal Code."

Pubilc servants who use their office t' issue "personal opinions" invite personal remarks.

Big Stakes in Power Policy for Columbia

IN Pacific Northwest states winter approaches and power-hungry industries give thought to their brownouts. There isn't enough electricity being produced there to satisfy demands. Washington and other states want more. They look north to British Columbia which has something they need—water and a place to keep it.

Hydro power depends on two things. First requirement is a large supply of water. Second is sufficient fall to send it plunging down penstocks to turn the vanes of turbines.

In large measure, British Columbia has both. The Pacific Northwest states are similarly endowed, but their hydro development is rapidly outstripping the supply of raw material—water.

British Columbia at present has a surplus of this asset in the southeast corner of the province. Two big international river systems, capable of much more hydro development, provide it—the Columbia and its tributary the Kootenay.

Both rise in the mountains close to one another at Canal Flats. The Kootenay flows almost directly south, crosses the U.S. border, swings westward and then turns north again into B.C. before entering Kootenay Lake and passing through it to join the Columbia. The Columbia runs north from its headwaters, describes a great loop in the Big Bend country and flows south, widening into the Arrow Lakes and then proceeding down across the Washington border.

B.C. Storage U.S. Desire

These are the waters on which the U.S. interests have their eyes. They'd like to dam the Kootenay on the U.S. side and use part of its Canadian valley in the storage basin so created. That, roughly is the Libby project. They would also like to make a deal with British Columbia for a relatively low dam at the foot of the Arrow Lakes to raise their level for storage.

Then both reservoirs could be used to regulate flow, eliminate the waste of raging run-off when the rivers are in flood and supplement the reduced flow at low water by letting more out of the storage basins.

Physically the projects are not complicated from an engineer's point of view, though they would be expensive. But overriding that consideration is the conflict of British Columbia and United States interests.

B.C. to date—and the policy reaches back into earlier administrations — has been unalterably opposed to giving U.S. interests water which might be needed for its own provincial hydro development in the future. From this opposition has come part of B.C.'s objection to Libby. This province has both water and the necessary fall to establish its own generating plants on its section of the Kootenay above the proposed American project.

In a somewhat different category is the Arrow Lakes scheme. No high level dam can be built there for two reasons; adequate footings are lacking, and a high level dam would inundate valuable land. A low level dam, on the other hand, appears quite feasible, but it would provide no on-site hydro potential for British Columbia. It would create a storage tank only for U.S. interests—in this case Kaiser.

Sommers' Plan

Lands and Forests Minister Sommers thinks that project is feasible and sensible if sufficient compensation is given to British Columbia for the storage of water. Under any circumstances, he says, the water flows eventually into Washington. Why not impound it and draw compensation for downstream benefits?

His theory is that since the Arrow Lakes and the Columbia below them have no hydro potential for British Columbia, because the fall is inadequate, B.C. might as well draw a return from water storage. This return, he feels, should be in a specified percentage of the extra power that stored Arrow Lakes water would provide for generating plants already installed on the U.S. Columbia system.

By his figuring that percentage should have a cash value high enough to make downstream power from Arrow Lakes water almost as expensive as power produced by coal or other means. In other words, just low enough to make it desirable to the U.S. interests, but not so low that it would reduce B.C.'s cheap power attraction for industry. If the province didn't need payment in power, then, the minister feels, compensation could be made in cash.

This argument does not meet in its entirety the position taken by the Johnson administration. Confronted with comparable requests from U.S. interests some years ago, Mr. Johnson refused to convert parts of British Columbia into storage tanks for U.S. Pacific Northwest hydro concerns. He saw the extra power they would obtain from B.C. water as a strong element of competition against industries—notably aluminum — established in or being attracted to B.C. Why, he asked, help the Northwest States at the expense of B.C. industrial development?

The Big Prize

The argument assumes broader proportions when another potential hydro and storage project is considered. Up in the Big Bend country, where the Columbia makes its labored turn to reverse its northwest flow, is a site at Mica Creek where a huge, high-level dam could be erected. Costs of such an undertaking are estimated at about $400 million.

That dam, if built, would provide a substantial on-site hydro development for B.C. But its greater importance would be the impounding of water for use lower on the Columbia by American concerns. Mica, it appears, is the big apple.

By the Johnson theory, if a pattern of returns for downstream benefits were set on the Arrow Lakes low level dam, it could be applied to Mica. That would vastly increase the U.S. power competition for B.C.—and the attendant attraction for big industries requiring huge blocks of power.

Against that, the present administration can weigh the likelihood that American capital would finance the Mica dam and provide cheap on-site power for British Columbia.

Perhaps Gen. A. G. McNaughton and the International Joint Commission might be able to clarify some of the doubts in the public mind by a timely statement in the near future. The storage reservoir issue runs a lot deeper than a political bathtub.

Impaled Workman Now 'Satisfactory'

Resting in "satisfactory" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today is Emile Keiff, 30, 3729 Waring Place, who was impaled on a steel rod Friday.

A foot of half-inch steel rod pierced his body and penetrated from his thigh to abdomen.

Keiff fell while wheeling concrete at a new home construction. He dropped about six feet and landed on top of a steel reinforcing rod which protruded vertically from a cement footing. He had to be cut loose with a welding torch.

ACROSS CANADA WITH

MONSARRAT

VICTORIA GOOD PLACE TO END LONG JOURNEY

(Twenty-fourth of a Series)

Nicholas Monsarrat, author of "The Cruel Sea" and "The Story of Esther Costello," is presently on leave from his duties as director of the United Kingdom Information Office at Ottawa.

This trans-Canada motor trip started with a view, through a hotel window, of a harbor and an ocean. It ended the same way—but the harbor and the ocean were both different. Then, it was St. John's, Newfoundland; now it was Victoria, British Columbia. Then it was the Atlantic. Now it was the Pacific.

There was one odd and pleasing link between the two. Nineteen articles and 4,500 miles ago, when I was in Halifax, I mentioned a wartime memory of handing over a frigate to an RCN lieutenant-commander, and getting in return a receipt: "Received: One Frigate." In Victoria, at the end of the journey, I met (by extreme coincidence) the man who signed that receipt and clinched the deal.

He is Captain W. R. Stacey, then (like myself) a frigate captain, now a marine surveyor. He remembered that hand-over day, ten years ago, just as I did. There could not have been a more pleasant introduction to Victoria, B.C.

ISLAND AIRCRAFT CARRIER

Some people, strangers to Canada, find it odd that the capital of British Columbia, which has such a vast and solid stake on the mainland, is situated on an island anchored, like a flower-decked aircraft-carrier, thirty miles off the coast. The explanation is, of course, purely historical. The island was discovered long before the mainland; people, principally Hudson's Bay Company officials and the prospectors of '49, got there first. Victoria was a town before Vancouver was a crossroads.

Now Vancouver is bigger and bolder, but Victoria is still the capital. It seems to suit everyone that way. You need not spend long in Victoria to understand why.

It was perhaps the ideal place to finish the journey in. Even late in the year, it was flowers all the way. The hotel rose-garden was still in full bloom. The quayside greeting: "Welcome to Victoria," is picked out in red, white, and blue flowers. They hang in ornamental baskets from the lamp standards. They line the marine drive overlooking the Strait of Juan de Fuca. In the far-famed Butchart Gardens, sun-blessed by day, flood-lit at night, they are at their very best.

A SENSE OF ACHIEVEMENT

It was a good place to end the journey; and many people have found it a good place to end their working lives. The climate is benign. You can play golf all the year round (if you have the stamina) in a mean winter temperature of 42 degrees (summer, 61 degrees). It has a graceful and unhurried air, and a very senior Admiral—Flag Officer, Pacific—to add naval consequence to its other amenities.

On the last night of the trip we dined in celebration with Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times. We were tired, but we did not stay tired for long. As a host, a local patriot, an ex-sailor and a newspaperman let him stand for Victoria's warm and many-sided hospitality.

Any voyage that starts at Gander and ends, eight weeks later, at Victoria is bound to bring a sense of achievement. There is nothing heroic about it; all you have to do is to point your car in the required direction for 56 days on end, and enjoy what you meet on the way. But we had set out to see Canada in one piece, and it was good to have arrived, in perfect order, with no mile of the planned road omitted. The overall mileage was 300 by air, 500 by water, 5,075 by road. Total, a round 5,875.

INCREDIBLE SCENERY

The Bentley, as expected, gave a faultless performance. In 5,075 miles, the only casualty was a windshield chipped by flying stones (west of Saskatoon), and an exhaust muffler which fought a losing battle with a chance-met rock, on that horrible road between Jasper and Edmonton.

But the really faultless performance (if I can say this without seeming to condescend) was Canada's. One day we hope to tell the story of this journey to our children. "In the late summer of 1954," we shall say, "we drove across Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, in one continuous trip. We took eight weeks and had a wonderful time.

"We saw an incredible variety of scenery, people and places. We saw Indians, we saw bears and buffalo, we saw jet-planes, diesel trains, canoes. We ate wall-eye at Kenora, steaks at Calgary, cracked crab at Vancouver, pea soup in Quebec, ham and eggs at Stratford. We crossed six time-zones, 10 provinces, countless lakes, mountains and rivers. We averaged 100 miles a day and 22 miles to the gallon."

Our children, being blase products of the jet age, will probably answer: "So what? You can do the whole thing in six hours."

That will doubtless be true. But it will never spoil the memory, which is full, varied and only to be savored at leisure, after the journey is done.

Undergrads Elect Hughes President

By GAEL STOTT
(Times College Reporter)

Victoria College students Friday elected Ron Hughes president of the Men's Undergraduate Society. They chose Ina Corbett as editor of the Martlet, and named Malcolm McMillan first year men's representative. Results of the balloting were announced at a basketball dance on Friday night.

Ron Hughes has always shown a keen interest in all student activities and clubs, both at college and high school.

Ina Corbett has behind her a store of experience in school journalistic fields. Besides editing the Oak Bay High School annual last year, she worked as girls' sports editor on the school paper for two years, and wrote articles for the newspaper.

Malcolm McMillan served on the students' council at Victoria High for three years before becoming its president last year.

Earlier in the week the Women's Undergraduate Society held its organizational meeting under president Marilyn Bassett. Officers elected were Marilyn de Wolfe, vice-president; Kathy Riddle, secretary-treasurer, and Sally McGill, program convener.

Don't Let Them Down!

If YOUR child cried because of hunger . . . if YOUR family lived in substandard quarters, then you would know the heartache of many parents in this community. Help alleviate these conditions with your generous gift to the Community Chest. Your gift will help ensure a good start in life for scores of parentless babies and under-privileged children.

COMMUNITY CHEST DOLLARS GO FAR!

YOUR DOLLARS WENT A LONG WAY IN 1953 — Almost 19,000 visits were made to 2,844 patients in this area by the Victorian Order of Nurses; 369 children were placed in foster homes with all their expenses paid; more than 100 blind persons were assisted, and 2,424 physiotherapy treatments were given arthritics. The John Howard Society gave cash and a fresh start to 21 ex-prisoners. Low cost or free summer camp was provided for city families, pensioners, crippled children and the blind. Milk was given under-nourished children and meals to transients; Christmas hampers of food and clothing were distributed to the needy by the Christmas Bureau, and many, many more incidents of help took place which are far too numerous to list.

The same work and much more will be undertaken this year, and the Community Chest—which is financed by your dollars—will be called upon to pay.

17 APPEALS UNITED

Conscription Call Urged on Legion Members

An appeal to all Canadian Legion members to give individual support to Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's call for compulsory military service in Canada was made by a visiting two-war veteran Friday night.

Capt. Douglas Smith, Vancouver, a contributing editor to the Legionary, Canadian Legion official publication, was speaking to members of the Esquimalt Branch of the legion at their 10th anniversary party.

Capt. Smith said it was the duty of every legion member to tell his member of parliament what he thinks of the government "pussy-footing attitude" on the military preparedness of Canada.

Capt. Smith said "now is the time we should be training our youth because there will be no time for training when a crisis comes."

He did not think the legion should meddle with government policy on things like labor legislation, wheat subsidies, etc., "but when conditions have a bearing on our future survival, then those who served their country have a definite right to be listened to by those in authority."

"If and when a crisis comes we'll all be in it up to our necks. Why should it be some poor green youngster's neck when a little common-sense legislation now will help to save his life," Capt. Smith declared.

GOP Admits Outside Help Needed to Win

DENVER, Colo (AP)—Republican leaders beamed urgent appeals today to independents and Democrats to rally behind their drive for a Republican-controlled Congress.

Confronted with a gloomy state-by-state roundup of Republican chances, party leaders who conferred with President Eisenhower here Friday were reported to have concluded that their only hope of winning this year's election is to interest in their cause the independent enthusiasts credited with electing Eisenhower in 1952.

Their thinking evidently was represented in the president's assertion in a TV-radio speech Friday night that "the members of our party cannot carry the battle alone."

"We must enlist the spirited support of friends and neighbors, regardless of party, who believe in our principles and objectives," Eisenhower declared. "To this cause all Americans, regardless of party, can give their enthusiatic support."

Echoing this viewpoint, Senator Homer Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, said in an interview he believes the results on Nov. 2 may turn on the ability of Republicans to stir independent voters into action to keep Congress Republican, as a means of completing the Eisenhower legislative program.

"The independents and Democrats who voted for Eisenhower must be made to understand that the change they asked for in 1952 is in danger now," the Michigan senator declared.

Terry Found Guilty of Manslaughter

VANCOUVTR (CP) — Cecil Terry, 44-year-old steelworker, charged with the hammer-slaying of his 38-year-old wife, Catherine, Friday was convicted of manslaughter.

The jury, after two hours of deliberation, reduced the charge from murder. He will be sentenced at the end of the assizes.

In his final plea to the jury, defense counsel Derek LePage asked for a manslaughter verdict.

"The slaying was done in the heat of passion," he told the jury. "Mrs. Terry had admitted adultery."

Terry, father of five children, was charged with murder following the death of his wife in hospital June 21.

OLDEST SURVIVING PUPIL of Boys' Central School, Herbert Kent, 92 years old, of 228 Douglas, looks at a drinking fountain in the new $1,000,000 junior high school officially opened Friday night. There were no shining water fountains in the Central School in which Mr. Kent was a pupil, back in 1874. Also in the photo are S. A. Cheeseman, 2824 Dysart, who attended the school in 1898, and Miss F. A. Brown, 1030 Cook. Modern School Opened On Historic City Site

Local Education Control Vital to B.C., Williston Warns at Central JHS Ceremony

One hundred and one years of educational progress in Victoria were marked Friday night when Minister of Education Ray Williston officially opened Central Junior High School.

First Central School began operations in April, 1853, and cost £505 to construct. Today's ultra-modern edifice at Yates and Ormond cost $1,000,000—as much as Memorial Arena.

As happens in this modern day, the first schoolhouse cost more than was estimated, £5 more, to be exact. Within a year or two it was inadequate for the needs of the fast-growing populace, even as happens today.

Present for the opening were 1,100 parents and former students, many of whom were amazed by facilities in the 1954 school.

When declaring the school open, Mr. Williston dedicated it to youth, to guide them "with the spirit of idealism and service to benefit the community, British Columbia, Canada, the Empire and the world. We are world citizens today," the minister said.

Famed in B.C. Education History

He called the school a tribute to Greater Victoria school trustees. "I believe they give better service than any other public body," he said.

Mr. Williston criticized those who would delegate school control to a central authority. Such control, he said, would "drain the life out of democracy."

But school administration represents a "real test of democracy," he went on, emphasizing that with growing school populations and other problems, the next 10 years will be a struggle to maintain the present system.

Trustees Face Grave Problems

In the past 10 years B.C. school pupils increased from 143,000 to 220,000, and this year in the province there are 13,000 to 14,000 more pupils than in 1953.

Operation of new school buildings in B.C. is symbolic of growth throughout the province, said Mr. Williston. It was his fourth school dedication in three days.

A grave problem facing B.C. today is staffing the schools. "In the last 10 years we have been going backwards in recruiting teaching personnel.

"We need an abundant supply of teachers to carry out the task of education."

Central principal W. McMichael said the new building, which pushed aside the original structure with its additions and traditions, is "the old building clothed in new garments. I hope that 80 years from now pupils will say we have added something to the school's tradition," the principal said.

Provincial archivist and librarian Willard Ireland called Central School site the most historic spot in B.C. educational history.

In March, 1852, for the first time in Victoria a public school was opened. It was named Central School, although it was on what was then called "Minny's Plain," closer to downtown Victoria than today's site.

The present site was chosen in 1876 and on it was erected a building to accommodate 300 pupils. The same year governor general the Marquess of Dufferin presented Central students with their high school entrance awards. The high school, also on the same site, was the first one in British Columbia.

In 1902 another addition was made, that of Girls' Central School.

After the turn of the century, Victoria College also was established on Central School property.

Girls originally had attended the "academy for young females," Mr. Ireland told his listeners, then moved into Central School in 1859, still segregated from boys, however.

Saanich school board representative Richard H. Reeve, chairman of buildings and grounds committee, cautioned visitors not to let "the glitter of newness fool you into believing it luxury." The new school was functional, he said.

John H. Wade of Wade & Stockdill, architects for the new building, presented Mr. Williston with a golden key to the school in appreciation for cooperation from the department of education.

Girls' and mixed choirs and a band consisting of students from Central Junior High and Victoria High Schools provided musical interludes.

Guests were taken on conducted tours of the school following the assembly in the auditorium-gymnasium.

Chairman of the meeting was W. P. Jeune, chairman, Greater Victoria School Board.

French Balky At Re-Arming German Foes

Mendes-France Tries to Line Up Support Before Tuesday's Vote

PARIS (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France turned to the French nation today for support of his demand that Parliament give him a vote of confidence on the London plan for German rearmament.

The peppery premier planned at least one radio talk and a concerted effort to whip balky deputies into line before the issue comes to a vote Tuesday in the National Assembly.

Dramatically halting what threatened to become an all-night debate, Mendes-France told the assembly last midnight it must either agree to the nine-nation plan or get a new government.

He warned deputies that if they voted him out they might have to face new national elections.

NATO MEMBERSHIP

The London agreements would permit West German rearmament as part of an expanded Brussels treaty organization and would give the West Germans full membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

In his 80-minute plea for national unity, Mendes-France appealed for the support of those who had favored the EDC plan.

Although some of Mendes-France's arguments hit home, the deputies showed little enthusiasm. Most of them were obviously depressed at the thought of voting for the rearmament of Germany, which has invaded France three times since 1870.

The premier was forced into putting the issue to a confidence vote when the trend of the debate indicated he might otherwise find it difficult to obtain a sizeable majority.

German Workers Rebel Against Pact

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The West German Trade Union Federation, representing 6,000,000 West German workers, today voted to oppose the London agreement on rearming West Germany.

A resolution approved by 396 of the 400 delegates present said:

"We reject the rearmament of Germany as agreed upon during the nine-power conference in London as long as the possibilities for negotiations enabling the peaceful reunification of Germany have not yet been fully exploited."

The resolution was presented at the final session of the biennial congress by the federation's foreign policy committee.

The lower house of the West German Parliament voted overwheimingly Thursday to support the London agreement and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's pro-western policy.

The federation voted Friday to fight for higher wages and the five-day week. Most Germans now are on a 48-hour week, as is the bulk of European labor. A resolution said the five-day week would protect and improve energies of the workers.

CHIANG SAYS RED INVASION WILL FAIL

TAIPEI, Formosa (UP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek warned today that the Communist Chinese could and would invade Formosa with the help of Russia, but would fail in their attempt.

Chiang said the Reds have been preparing to carry out such an invasion, and those who thought they were bluffing were courting disaster.

He said Quemoy, Tachen, the Pescadores and Formosa —all islands off the China mainland—were blocks to Communist conquest and therefore the Reds never could feel secure while the Nationalists stood firm.

He said the struggle of the Nationalists against the Communists has entered the crucial stage.

"It is a struggle which will determine whether we as a nation are to survive or perish," he said.

He charged that Red leaders Mao Tse Tung and Chu Teh were traitors, and warned that they would be "liquidated" when he returns to the mainland.

Vishinsky's Surprise Move Paves Way for Arms Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UP) — Unexpected agreement from Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky set the stage today for a far-reaching disarmament debate in the United Nations next week.

The unexpected development came late Friday in the General Assmbly's main political committee, where Vishinsky agreed to have Russia's latest disarmament proposals discussed as part of an overall debate by the 60-nation group.

Earlier this week, Vishinsky had insisted that the Kremlin's proposals be placed on the assembly's agenda as a separate item, distinct from the discussion evolving around the report of the fruitless efforts of the UN's 12-nation Disarmament Commission. The steering committee agreed to such action, but left it to the political group to decide whether to debate the items together or separately.

Western diplomats had watched Vishinsky's attitude closely for an indication of the sincerity of the Kremlin in putting the proposals before the UN.

when the ounce of prevention fails

WARNING AGAINST ACCIDENTS in the home and on the highways is old stuff to most of us. Many industries have made real progress in accident prevention, but our homes continue to produce minor and major injuries on an ever-increasing scale.

In spite of every precaution, accidents will occur. When the "ounce of prevention" fails, it is wise to have "the pound of cure" ready and at hand. See that your medicine cabinet is amply stocked with standard first-aid materials. Keep a first-aid kit in the pocket of your car. We shall be pleased to help you select the essential items from our complete stock.

Giving to Show Thanks

HERE AND ACROSS CANADA on Monday citizens will observe Thanksgiving in ways they consider satisfying.

There will be feasting. There will be periods of devout prayer. There will be athletic events and entertainments. Such are the means by which Canadians express themselves on occasions of this nature.

Yet there should be time during the day for some quiet thought on thankfulness, some opportunity, self-created, for a personal dedication to the ideals for which the country is invited to give thanks.

Our people on Monday will not be caught in the harsh tragedy of war. Though some are less fortunate than others, few will be in serious distress through poverty. There will not be many empty tables because their owners cannot buy food.

Materially we are fortunate. For our institutions, the liberties we enjoy, we have deep reason to be grateful. How then shall we give thanks?

How better than in sincere acknowledgement for the blessings Providence has bestowed upon us and in thanks-giving that does not stop at lip-service? We as individuals, and as a nation, have now golden opportunities to show our gratitude by giving—giving to those who are less fortunate, be they individuals needing the neighbors' help, or peoples of distant lands who look to us for aid.

Cards on the Table

THE LOWER HOUSE OF THE Bonn republic has endorsed the London agreement on German rearmament and thereby set an example for the other nations that gave preliminary assent to the pact.

The French National Assembly may require some persuasion by Premier Mendes-France, but the leader is hopeful of securing support for the rearmament of a sovereign West Germany and its acceptance into the NATO defensive system.

In this connection, however, M. Mendes-France has added another factor to the equation representing French ratification. The Assembly's reluctance to rearm the traditional French enemy — a reluctance which wrecked the EDC plan and forced improvisation of the present program — is already familiar. But to this the French Premier has appended another condition: he insists that the vexatious problem of the Saar industrial area be solved before full assent to the London pact is given. The dispute for control of the rich Saar territory has long been a source of friction between Germany and France. If its settlement is now to be made a condition of French acceptance of the new defense arrangement a serious impediment may be imposed.

But it is not likely that Britain and the United States will endure in patience any further delay. The U.S. has already given warning that failure to implement the London plan will result in withdrawal of American forces from the continent. This would be a major reversal of policy and open up a whole new concept of western defense, with the United States possibly adopting isolation and a new approach to the cold war.

Such a development would obviously be a tremendous victory for Russia. It is being encouraged by current Soviet tactics in telling West Germany that it must choose between the rearmament plan and reunification of the two Germanys on Moscow's terms. Since reunification of the divided parts is the chief hope of all Germans, such an appeal has great force. The action of the Bonn lower house in rejecting it speaks well for the determination of Germans to pursue their future in co-operation with the democratic West.

The Soviet bid to stall or kill western Europe's new defense scheme is not unexpected. Still more energetic tactics, indeed, may yet be used. But with the issue so clear-cut as it has now become there can be little doubt of the outcome unless France is determined to achieve complete disruption of the West's whole defensive strategy. M. Mendes-France however, appears to be driving the best bargain he can with his allies. He must expect equally determined measures in response.

The Other Queen's Men

NEXT WEEK THE MEDICAL faculty of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. will celebrate its centenary.

The event is of interest to Canada, not only as the 100th anniversary of an institution which has made a notable contribution to this country, but because few regions within the nation are without graduates from that faculty.

At this date, one Canadian doctor in seven has received his training at Queen's.

One hundred years is not a great length of time in the history of some of the older universities of Europe. In Canada, it is. When Queen's was founded, British Columbia was virtually a wilderness, Victoria—its later capital—a small settlement built on the mud shores of the present harbor by fur men in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company. The intervening region between this city and the site of Queen's was largely unknown land, a few of its trails and water arteries familiar to the natives and to the explorers of a pre-pioneering day. Queen's represented the west to the part of Canada populated at that time.

Its story since that time is one of achievement. Its graduates have earned distinctions which have enriched the reputation of the university and its medical faculty.

Next week it will draw the salutes of the rest of a nation which appreciates the work it has done and looks forward with members of its faculty "to an era in which challenging problems will be met by opportunities to work with a reasonable hope of making a better Canada in which to live."

As Our Readers See It

LOOSE ENDS

Lost, stolen or strayed!

Surely if the feature column, Loose Ends, is to be discontinued all your readers tied to it rate a reduction in their subscriptions to The Times! For long enough—or rather not long enough—thousands have been entertained and edified by this inimitable column of satire, whimsey and that modern rarity common-sense (with only very occasional lapses into political controversy!). If those Ends have been tied in a Gordian Knot, I feel the author is skillful enough to untie it.

Are we to be left wondering whether Mrs. Noggins has joined the Socreds or been summoned to the Senate and whether Horace Snifkin has been jailed for doing, or attempting, his own plumbing before the ban was lifted? Could it be that the author, in helping his neighbor in a frenzied rush to complete his sub-summer cottage, fell into the bathtub without frog-man equipment?

If this is to be 30 for the column, may I suggest to its fans that we ask the historical society to place some suitable memorial, such as a little red wheelbarrow with explanatory lettering, on the site of "The Thing" which once marred Pandora Avenue and that we attach a tablet to the old Times Building, suitably inscribed and bearing a True Lover's Knot?

As one of your readers sees it.

G. L. G.

(Ed. Note: "Loose Ends" have by no means loosely ended. Mr. Snifkin reports from the darkest Cariboo that he will shortly resume business at the old stand.)

CONFORMING CAPITAL

We can thank God for a provincial government that insists foreign capital invested in B.C. conform to Canadian conservation practices. We do not want our country ruthlessly exploited by every Tom, Dick and Harry with a pocket full of money and a heart full of greed.

GEOGRAPHY LESSON

In Tuesday's installment of the travelogue "Across Canada," the author of "The Cruel Sea" has cruelly wrung the neck of the lordly Saskatchewan River and forced it to spill its life blood into "the Great Lakes... via Winnipeg" and he adds: "Any child of school age knows all that."

What will the Nelson River and Hudson Bay think of this?

ROADS AT WHAT PRICE?

Thousands of people in British Columbia must have learned with amazement this week that under a new policy of its "new" (Socred) government, the province has entered a period when great areas of its unequalled virgin timber are being given away in order to get a few miles of graveled logging roads built. Unless some authority whose word is respected assures them to the contrary, those people will believe that even if the companies had paid huge sums for the timber areas they would have found it necessary to build the logging roads anyway.

And what of the management licenses? This province must be the only important area in the world where ownership licenses are given in perpetuum, ad aeternam, world without end, Amen.

Few commercial companies continue in their original form after the death or retirement of the man who launched them. They usually are sold to new owners. I have not seen it explained by the Socreds whether that is the future of the companies which have almost incredibly secured enormous areas of B.C. timber lands—the finest timber on earth.

Before the CCF realizes the nature of the material the Social Credit Government is handing them gratis for the next session of the Legislature, and undoubtedly the most explosive material the party has ever had or ever hoped to have for an election campaign, will the master minds of the government try to explain things to the people, who incidentally own the timber they are giving away—the people who happen to be the voters who will choose the new government?

Mickey Spillaneism in the Movies

BY WALTER LIPPMANN, From Washington

ABOUT a month ago in an article on the increase in the amount and in the gravity of juvenile crimes, I wrote that "the movies and television and the comic books are purveying violence and lust to a vicious and intolerable degree," and I then went on to say that "until some more refined method is worked out of controlling this evil thing, the risks to our liberties" from censorship of the mass entertainment of the young "are decidedly less than the risks of unmanageable violence" in the community.

Lippmann

The Motion Picture Association of America, Inc., of which my friend Mr. Eric Johnston is president, replied in a closely typed four-page letter written by Mr. Arthur H. DeBra, director of the Community Relations Department.

Before I go further I should say that I happen to know that Mr. Johnston saw neither my article nor Mr. DeBra's letter about it. The letter is very long and diffuse. But the main point, considering who wrote it, is important.

Mr. DeBra does not deny that the movies, for which he speaks, are purveying violence, lust and sadism. He contends, however, that it is "a confusion of cause and effect" to say that such movies incite to violence, lust and sadism. Mr. DeBra's opinion is that the presentation of these movies is "a reflection of the concern of the public with these things and a desire to see them dramatized in the mass media."

In other words according to the press agent of the Motion Picture Association, the vogue that we may call Mickey Spillanesim is not commercial pandering to sadism but is a reflection of the community's concern with sadism. That, it seems to me, is a tall story—that the Mickey Spillane type of movie is made because it reflects concern with the dangers of Mickey Spillaneism.

ADEQUATE CONTROL

Mr. DeBra's argument makes it difficult to believe that the Motion Picture Association is willing and able to exercise adequate control over anti-social motion pictures. If these are the theories of the voluntary censors, it is easy to understand why when one goes to a movie theatre one sees so often what one sees—a calculated and deliberate exploitation of violence, cruelty and lust. Mr. DeBra's theory will either have to be revised so that the voluntary control is greatly improved or the law will have to be invoked.

I believe these remarks, though severe, are fully justified by Mr. DeBra's denial that the showing of sadistic pictures is an incitement of the sadistic impulses.

If that were true, there would be no reason for having an elaborate organization with a code of morals and all the rest. For it would not matter what the movies produced. They would merely "reflect" the condition of public morals. They would have no effect on public morals.

Mr. DeBra's contention is untenable and it is in fact a mere sophistry invented to cover the grave delinquency of his own association in resisting the sadism which has been so much the vogue in recent years. It is allowing the peddling of a high-powered kind of celluloid dope and Mr. DeBra is trying to argue that this dope has no bad effects.

As a matter of fact no one, and that includes Mr. DeBra, can believe that young people, and for that matter adults, can watch the enactment of scenes of violent lust, of extreme cruelty, of roaring brutality, and be unaffected by them.

Mr. DeBra's comment on this is that "the presentation of evil is not the issue. The issue, to quote the production code, is rather whether the sympathy of the audience shall be thrown to the side of crime, wrong-doing, evil, or sin. Through our Production Code Administration we have seen to it that it is not."

DELUDING ITSELF

To this I would say that the Production Code Administration is deluding itself if it thinks that "the sympathy of the audience" is turned against evil by exhibiting the fullness of evil, and by an ending in which the wicked man is punished.

The sadistic scenes are far more compelling than the scenes of moral retribution. For in them we experience without civilized restraint the play of the most powerful underlying impulses and passions of human nature. The effect of this experience is to make these impulses much harder to restrain. In juveniles who for one reason or another are weak, neglected, unloved, disoriented, there is no denying that the experience of evil makes for evil.

Another Look at the PGE Bond Issue

By BYRON I. JOHNSON, Former Premier of British Columbia

In Wednesday's news columns Premier Bennett referred to, and quoted excerpts from, the Budget Speech which I made to the Legislature in March of 1952. The purpose of the Premier's remarks apparently is to discredit the Government of which I was the leader. It is for this reason I am making this statement to the press.

I want to say that the remarks which I made to the Legislature as Minister of Finance were an honest and straightforward appraisal of the actual condition in the money markets in Eastern Canada and the United States at that time.

As I see it, it is unfortunate that we do not get from the present administration an honest and straightforward statement by the present Minister of Finance, whether it be Mr. Gunderson, as reported in the Colonist a few days ago, or the responsible Minister who, I understand, is the Premier himself.

FANTASTIC CLAIMS

Claims of debt reduction, debt incurred by school boards on behalf of the Government, decreased taxation under the present administration, and many other fantastic claims have been made, and now the gem of all the claims made by our "Socred" Government—that the improvement in the money market has had nothing to do with the cheap money which is available at this time.

At the time of the 1952 Budget Speech, which the Premier referred to, the Dominion Government was paying 3¾% on Saving Bonds. The issue now being presented to the public is carrying a 3¼% coupon, which is one of the clearest indications of the change in the money markets.

Let me analyze in a manner which the average man on the street can understand, the loan which the "Socred" Government negotiated on behalf of the Pacific Great Eeastern Railway.

The amount of the issue was $4,500,000., 3¼% bonds. The Premier's statement says that the Government received 96.296, that is to say the amount of cash which the Government will receive is 96.296 per $100, for a nett loss of $166,680, on the sale of the bonds.

WHAT WE PAY

For a period of 30 years the Provincial Government will be paying 3¼% on 166.680, cash which they did not receive for the issued bonds, and it will be necessary also to set up a sinking fund to retire this amount when the bonds become due 30 years from now.

During the life of the bonds the people of British Columbia will pay approximately $5,400 a year, or $162,000, for the 30-year life of the bond issue, in interest on money we didn't receive; in addition a like amount into our sinking funds for a total of $328,680.

This is the cost of selling our bonds at $96.296 for a $100 bond.

Let me compare this with a similar issue by the Government of Manitoba a few weeks ago, in the same market where the P.G.E. bonds were sold. This issue was for $12,000,000 due October 1975—3¼%.

Here we have the same rate of interest, two and a half times the amount of bonds sold, and these were offered to the public at $99. In other words, the Manitoba Government received approximately $2.50 more for each $100 bond than the B.C. Government got for their P.G.E. bonds.

I do not need to say that the Government of Manitoba is not a Social Credit Government. May I go further and say it is a Liberal Government under my good friend Primier Campbell.

In financial house terms the cost of the Manitoba loan is 3.32%—the cost of the B.C. loan 3.45%.

There is one other matter I would like to mention in this article. It is in connection with storage of water in B.C. for the benefit of generating plants in the United States. As one who has some knowledge of what is involved in the licence which the "Socred" Government have announced they are granting for the increased storage of water in the Arrow Lakes, I find it difficult to understand why this privilege has been granted to a firm, which as far as I know, has no office in Canada.

The first statement of the Minister of Lands as reported in the press was that a Canadian company would be formed before the project is proceeded with.

VALUABLE CONCESSION

Surely with such Canadian companies as the Consolidated Mining and Smelting, West Kootenay Power, the B.C. Electric, and if a Crown company is necessary, our own B.C. Power Commission, it wasn't necessary to grant such a valuable and important concession in connection with our natural resources to an outside firm.

The name of the firm implies a large interest in the manufacturing of aluminum.

Are we granting a preferred position to a manufacturer in the United States to get power which is the main cost in the manufacturing of aluminum at practically no cost to themselves, and possibly interfering in a very substantial way with the manufacturing of aluminum in our own province?

May I again say to people of B.C.—keep informed of what is going on in your own Capital.

THE TRAVELER IN THE BLACK HOMBURG...

They Hail a Man With a Past—And a Future

TWO recent diplomatic successes have restored the prestige of Anthony Eden, which had suffered a severe setback over the Egyptian question. Once again he is the acknowledged heir-apparent to the aging Prime Minister, and the toast of the Conservative Party convention which ends its three-day sessions today at Blackpool.

Less than 18 months ago there was speculation that the dapper British minister, the impeccable diplomat's diplomat, was through. His health had failed. There lay before him serious operations in a New York hospital and several months of convalecence. Would Mr. Eden, like Sir Stafford Cripps, become the victim of physical impairment while his political usefulness was still so great?

Prophets of Doom

The Foreign Secretary repudiated the crepe hangers. After a short retirement from the diplomatic arena he came back stronger than ever, his energy and zeal restored.

But by last summer he had again inspired the prophets of doom. The settlement with Egypt, which called for British withdrawal from the Suez, brought angry criticism from those who saw in the treaty only ignominy for Britain and the "dissolution of the Empire." Again there was serious question of Mr. Eden's fitness to fill Sir Winston Churchill's shoes as leader of a party and a nation.

But the political recovery, like the physical, was quick and thorough. It was the "Eden Plan" for German reunification that formed the central theme of debate at the Big Four conference in Berlin early this year. It came to nothing in the face of Russian intransigence.

Master Diplomat

But at the Geneva Conference, which arose from the Berlin meeting, Anthony Eden emerged again as the master diplomat, the conciliator, the compromiser. Although a direct talk between French Premier Mendes-France and China's Chou En-Lai produced the basis for settlement of the Indo-China war, it was Eden who was credited with keeping the conference going despite its apparent hopelessness. It was Eden who in innumerable meetings with conference leaders urged perseverance, who reminded them of the danger of failure, who kept the talks struggling along after even Mr. Dulles had left, in hopes of some sort of solution.

That the eventual solution was not particularly favorable to the West was not Mr. Eden's fault; it was the natural result of world forces seeking to estaolish their "line of strength."

From this demonstration of his abilities, the Foreign Secretary was next plunged into the problems arising from France's rejection of EDC.

The European Defense Community would have brought France, West Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries into an organization for mutual defense, with West Germany regaining full sovereignty and contributing half a million troops to a joint defense force. Resurrection of a militarized Germany frightened France, whose people remember three Teutonic invasions. Some form of reassurance for France was needed, which would at the same time avoid any appearance of placing the Bonn republic under discriminatory restrictions.

ANTHONY EDEN

German membership of NATO was one solution, but France wanted an even closer integration of Britain with continental affairs. Again Eden made his rounds of European capitals. Again he sought the middle way that would secure approval in all quarters.

The old Brussels Treaty was revived, rewritten to include West Germany as a member rather than a threat to peace, and the nations' representatives gave their assent. At the same time they opened the way to West German membership of NATO, which controls the military operations of the Brussels organization.

The settlement was something less than the supra-national system set up by EDC, but, when officially ratified by the powers concerned, will provide a workable solution to the problem of permitting German arms to defend western Europe.

Of paramount importance in winning French support was the sensational proposal that Eden brought to the parley. Britain, he announced, was prepared to keep four divisions of troops and an air force on the continent for the rest of this century.

It was a direct reversal of the traditional British reluctance to become too directly involved in continental affairs. But it gave France assurance of a balance of power against the new armed might across the Rhine. It made the pact a practical instrument for the future.

While the British commitment was a reversal of practice it did not represent a change in the sentiments of the British Government nor of Anthony Eden. Perhaps as the Foreign Secretary made his proposal he had in mind a speech he had delivered in London in the summer of 1941.

Our Bounden Duty

"It is our bounden duty," he declared in that second year of the war, "to insure that Germany is not again in another 20 years in position to plunge the world into the misery and horror of total war."

More than half of those 20 years have now passed by, the world situation has changed drastically, but the Eden thesis still holds.

Another statement the Foreign Secretary made that day is also still vital and a matter of practical diplomacy. He told his wartime audience that when victory—still four years away at that time—was won, the Allies "must start at once upon the fashioning of the world in such shape that the causes of rivalry and hatred will be gradually removed and, we pray, eventually eradicated."

In large measure that may be said to have been the purpose that has guided Anthony Eden in his many years of public office. It is an ideal blended with practical diplomacy that should carry him to greater successes when, in the course of time, he assumes the reins of office so freely predicted for him.

Fulfilling His Destiny

The schoolboy who entertained his companions on railway train journeys by detailing the political history of every town they passed through is fulfilling his political destiny. The man whose blood is linked with many of the oldest ruling houses in England is paying his debt to his progenitors in the spirit of noblesse oblige. The parliamentarian who resigned on a question of principle when he could not support Prime Minister Chamberlain's appeasement of warlike Italy is preserving his reputation for integrity. The youth who became a brigade major at 21 in the First World War and Britain's youngest Foreign Secretary at 38 still gives promise of making history.

The hundreds who cheered him at Blackpool this week no doubt believed they were cheering Britain's next Prime Minister. Not many, not even Eden himself, would be likely to disagree.—B. A. T.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED — By STUART KEATE

'Suffer the Little Children'

SOME months ago a newspaper friend of mine in Winnipeg wrote a letter which began:

"This is a tough letter for me to write, but it's a thing that's got to be done . . ." He went on to say that one of his children was a spastic and could neither hear nor speak. Now, with a group of other parents of cerebral palsied children, he was writing newspaper friends all over Canada to determine what the various provinces were doing in the way of education for these youngsters.

Keate

Recently my friend wrote a more encouraging letter. His newspaper pals—most of them legislative reporters—had dug out the information from all across the Dominion. As a result, the Winnipeg parents had been able to draw up a brief and present it to the Manitoba authorities, and educational help was on the way.

* * *

This rallying of parents is one of the most encouraging developments in the care of cerebral palsied children. It took courage. For years they had over-protected their children, sheltering them from outside contacts because other kiddies—who can be terribly, thoughtlessly cruel at times—laughed at the spastics and were inclined to treat them as mental defectives.

The parents now know that children can suffer brain damage, affecting their nerve-control centres, before, during and after birth. Measles during pregnancy have caused some cases. Others are congenital. Still others result when the mother suffers toxemia, or the RH factor intervenes.

Research has shown that there are about seven cerebral palsied children per 100,000 births. Of the seven, one frequently dies at birth; one dies before the age of seven; and one is more or less beyond assistance. The other four can be helped. The attitude of the doctors, therapists and volunteers who are working with the children may be summed up in the quote of one of them: "Not many of us use all the talents God gave us. The spastics start with less than we. What we try to do is teach them to use the talents they possess."

You think this is idealistic? Let me tell you about Lucy, a pretty little girl whose story was told to me by Mrs. Duncan McEachern at Vancouver's Rehabilitation Centre last week.

Lucy had braces on her legs, but she was dying to learn how to skip. By sheer perseverance, she first learned how to walk. Then one day they undid the knee-lock in her brace and handed her a skipping rope. Her courage was a beautiful, shining thing to see—and in time she got to the point where she could skip 30 times without stopping.

One day after returning to school she came back to the Rehabilitation Centre. Breathlessly, she told Mrs. McEachern: "I can do 'pepper'."

* * *

In Vancouver, they have been working with cerebral palsied children for the past eight years, and now treat about 70 in an immaculate, well-equipped training centre. In Victoria, a clinic was established about 18 months ago. It now operates in the old annex to Royal Jubilee, in space provided free by the hospital. There are 26 children receiving treatment.

The Victoria parents—who are planning an official opening next Saturday—have worked wonders. Fathers have built tables and parallel-bar "walking boards" necessary in the treatment. The Jaycettes have provided gay drapes for the rooms. Local firemen devote off-duty hours to driving the children, and carry them in their arms to the various rooms.

On a tour of the local clinic yesterday with Mrs. H. B. McClung, we met and observed at her work occupational therapist Helen Beattie, sister to Dean Philip Beattie of Christ Church Cathedral. She was teaching some playroom games to a little boy named Ricky, who had neither speech nor mobility.

"Say 'Hi' to Mr. Keate," Miss Beattie said, pleasantly.

The little fellow grinned and took hold of my hand. He had heard, and knew exactly what was expected of him. It took several seconds, and it required every ounce of his energy—and courage—but in the end the word came out distinctly: "Hi!" And then he grinned again. It seemed to me the most wonderful word I'd ever heard.

LONDON LETTER — By WALLACE REYBURN

Forecasting the Weather

LONDON—Folks here get very annoyed with the Met Office. They're the people in charge of the weather and as forecasters, the general opinion is that they're hopeless at the job.

Each evening at 8 o'clock a man from the Met. Office appears on TV with his charts. He tells viewers first of all something they already know—what the weather's been like that day. Then he dives in boots and all on a forecast of what the weather is going to be like next day.

Reyburn

Now, if anybody should know, this fellow from the Met. Office should be thoroughly in the picture. His organization, the Meteorological Office, is part of the Air Ministry and is Britain's national weather service. It costs the taxpayer plenty, and the worse the weather seems to be getting the more it costs the taxpayer.

In 1939 the Met. Office did its forecasting and recording of the weather for about $1 million. Now it costs eight times as much. And what does the taxpayer get for his $8 million a year? The man from the Met. Office on TV says: "Tomorrow it will be sunny and warm." And what do we get? Cloudy and cold.

HOME SIDE BETTER

Canadians and Americans settled in this country always remark on how wrong the weather forecasters here seem to be compared to "back home." In Toronto, for instance, if the weathermen say you're in for a hot time or there's going to be rain you can be pretty sure that they won't be far out.

Could it be that as forecasters, the English can't hold a candle to those on the North American continent? The average North American visiting here invariably says as much to anyone who happens to be handy.

But, as is the case in so many other things, there is a reason why the English seem to be so inefficient in weather forecasting compared to North America's weathermen.

I phoned the Met. Office and a friendly fellow there explained to me why it's a cinch to be a forecaster in Toronto, and a headache in this country. Over a large land mass like North America the weather has stabilized itself, made up its mind what it's going to do. But on the edge of a big land mass (for example, the British Isles on the edge of the Continent) the weather is shilly-shallying all over the place making its mind up.

THEY TAKE A CHANCE

The British forecasters can only make an authoritative guess at what any given chunk of weather that is building up is going to finally build up to, and like as not they can be well off the beam.

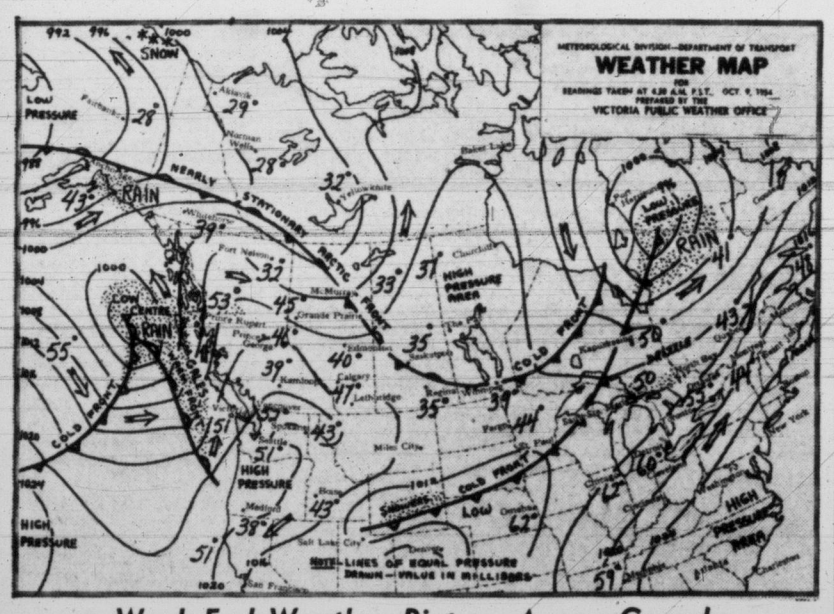
While I was on the phone I asked this Met. man about something else that annoys North Americans settled here. Why will the weather reports never (or very rarely) give the temperature? All they'll say is that temperatures will be "normal," or above or below normal, as the case may be. What the devil is "normal" for any given day of the year?

"Ah," he said, "but you Canadians are thermometer-conscious, with your thermostatically-controlled heating and your thermometers tacked on the wall outside your front window. How often do you see a thermometer in an English home? If we told the public the temperature was going to be 60 tomorrow they wouldn't know what we were talking about. They're used to thinking in terms of 'warm for this time of year' and 'cold for this time of year' and that's the lingo we have to use."

"Thanks," I said. "Incidentally, I'm taking the children to the park. What sort of afternoon is it going to be?"

"Lovely."

Come on, kids. Get your raincoats and let's go.



Week-End Weather Picture Across Canada

SYNOPSIS—The Pacific disturbance approaching the coast is slightly less extensive than expected earlier but should bring a narrow zone of strong southeast winds and showers to the exposed sections later today. Moderate to fresh westerly winds following the disturbance will bring partial clearing which will persist through most of Sunday. Another storm quite distant in the Pacific will renew southerly winds and rain over the northern coast Sunday afternoon. Sunshine will be present over most of the interior but cloudiness will spread inland late today in advance of the coastal disturbance. Few showers are expected to cross the coastal mountains overnight and partial clearing will again bring sunshine to interior points on Sunday.

Flying Cable Caused Death Of Logger

CAMPBELL RIVER — Both carelessness and faulty equipment were held partly to blame for the instant death Tuesday of Edward Miodzewski, Peace River, at the Fraser Bay camp of Alaska Pine and Cellulose Ltd. on Loughborough Inlet.

A coroner's jury hearing evidence at an inquest here returned a verdict of accidental death.

He had been struck by a haulback cable that apparently had broken clear of a block. Paul Champagne, rigging slinger, said the deceased had placed himself in the bight of the line contrary to regulations.

Dr. John Depew said death had been caused by multiple fractures of the skull, neck and legs.

First Aiders Re-Elect R. J. Duncan

CHEMAINUS—R. J. Duncan was re-elected chairman of the St. John Ambulance Society, Chemainus Centre, at the annual meeting.

A report on the past year's activities, given by Mr. Duncan, showed a total of 53 candidates from Chemainus, Shawnigan Lake and Nanaimo River took the St. John Ambulance examinations this year. They qualified as follows: certificates, 21; vouchers, 8; medallions, 12; labels, 12.

Of this number, 49 continued with the industrial course. Mr. Bennett was class instructor, assisted by G. Kimberley of Shawnigan Lake and J. Steward of Nanaimo River.

THE REVIEW, SIDNEY

The Review was much impressed with the new ferry service which was launched last Saturday by Gulf Islands Ferry Co. That venerable old workhorse of ferry transportation in this district, MV Cy Peck, sailed from Fulford to Port Washington and back to introduce an entirely new service to the people of The Islands. Every passenger aboard could see plainly just how greatly the good people of North Pender Island welcomed the new transportation link.

The new service will link Swartz Bay, Fulford and Port Washington three times each week. Not only foot passengers but cars and trucks will be carried as well.

Because the provincial department of public works has very wisely subsidized the ferry company, transportation of people and vehicles is not costly. Residents of North Pender can now travel to Swartz Bay and Sidney and Victoria for a very small sum indeed. The attractive fare is certain to result in a brisk business on the run.

If the vessel is sufficiently well patronized, her route is certain to be extended. And that would benefit everyone concerned.

End Continual Arbitration

PARKSVILLE-QUALICUM BEACH PROGRESS

There would appear to be sound wisdom behind a suggestion for a province-wide salary schedule, by zones, discussed at last week's convention of the B.C. school trustees.

At present, many school boards and teachers' representatives are able to agree on pay schedules after a thorough discussion of their problems. In many other incidences, arbitration is resorted to in an effort to settle all points in dispute—and the picture which is presented by the multitude of arbition board decisions is not good.

A greater degree of stabilization might be obtained if pay schedules were settled for the entire province, by regions, at annual conferences between representatives of the B.C. School Trustees' Association and the B.C. Teachers' Federation. If these groups were unable to agree on some points in dispute, the matter could then be placed before one arbitration board for a final decision—and that would at least end major salary problems for another year.

A Fine Record

THE LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

A few months ago fire insurance rates for commercial buildings in Ladysmith were reduced by 20 per cent. More recently rates on dwellings were reduced by an even greater amount. This was not done because the insurance companies wished to make a friendly gesture to the citizens of this city. It was done because the fire losses in this city have been phenomenally low for a number of years.

A large measure of credit for this happy state of affairs should go to the Ladysmith volunteer fire department. Not only have they held down the fire loss by the quick and efficient way they serve when fires actually occur, they have also reduced the number of fires by their annual inspections and their program of education in fire prevention.

The work the department does in preventing fires is not nearly as dramatic as the work it does in fighting a fire and it attracts little public attention, but it is the most valuable part of the department's program. Before the full benefits of their efforts can be realized, however, there must be the fullest possible co-operation from the public.

Building Course Set For Sidney Veterans

SIDNEY—An 18-lecture VLA course on home building will begin Oct. 21 at North Saanich High School under sponsorship of Saanich School Board and Saanich Peninsula Branch No. 37, Canadian Legion.

Already 25 veterans have indicated they will attend the course.

Instructor will be N. E. West, North Saanich High teacher, and during the course a section of a dwelling, from foundation to roof, will be built.

The course is open to the public, but veterans may register in advance at the Saanich School Board office here. Registration will be limited to 35.

Under VLA regulations, if a veteran who wishes to build his own house is not considered competent, then he must take a VLA building course.

The Sidney course will be the 10th arranged on Vancouver Island. G. L. Chatterton, regional supervisor for the VLA, hopes to start a course at Royal Oak to meet the constant demand.

4 Escape Death When Car Hits Moving Train

Driving From Campbell River To Mainland for Long Week-End

NANAIMO—Four Vancouver fishermen narrowly missed violent death Friday at 5.30 p.m. when their late-model car crashed into the side of a moving E & N Railway freight train near Wellington, five miles north of here.

The accident occurred at a level crossing on the highway.

Only injuries were minor glass cuts and abrasions suffered by Steve Rhycan, 33, of 329 East 63rd Avenue. He was treated by Dr. H. Chataway, Lantzville, a passerby who observed the accident, and was released immediately.

Owner-driver was Lorne Fearnehough, 34, of 1136 West 11th Avenue, and other passengers were Mike Milkovich, 26, of 463 East 19th Avenue, and Harold Hodgkisson, 26, of 1161 East Pender Street.

The men had left their fishboats in Campbell River and were headed for Vancouver for the long holiday week-end.

The driver and passengers said they did not hear the locomotive whistle for the crossing.

"We were on it before there was a sound," said one of the passengers. "We rounded the corner, and I looked up to see Lorne pulling his wheel to the left. He had the brakes on hard."

"We hit the five-car train amidships," he continued. "This is a real Thanksgiving for all of us. I guess we were less than a second from death."

Front, top, and right side of the car were crushed, and damage was estimated at $1,200.

BIG LUNCH EARNS $900

NANAIMO—More than $900 was earned at the giant luncheon held in the Plaza ballroom here in aid of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

It was sponsored by the auxiliary to the VON, of which Mrs. D. Cunliffe is president. Goal of the current VON drive is $4,000, the sum required to keep the service in operation for a year.

is showing multitudes of grateful men and women how to find freedom—how to pray the healing prayer of understanding. How to know the Truth which will "make you free," exactly as Jesus promised. There was nothing in Christ Jesus' entire ministry which said that his healing method was for then but not for now.
Christian Science has come as the promised Comforter to restore the lost element of healing to modern religion. It shows the sick, as well as others in need of help, how to claim and have their God-given freedom from fear, sickness, and want.

"I ENJOYED IT as much as the children," says a reviewer who took home Dr. George F. Clarke's "The Adventure of Jimmy-Why" to read to his young family. (First fall book published by Brunswick Press, it was reviewed on the Victoria Times book page last week. Shown autographing copies of his book is Dr. Clarke, retired dentist, whose intense interest in nature and talent for describing the wonders of it have enabled him to write books of interest to children and adults.)

BOOK TALK

By JAMES SCOTT

Time to doff a gallant hat to the ladies — Canada's writing ladies, that is—and this season, I am happy to report, it is no trouble at all. In fact, it is a real pleasure.

There are others, of course, but the three I have in mind right now are Mazo de la Roche, Ethel Wilson and Katherine Roy.

Miss de la Roche needs no introduction, as they say. Indeed there is no better known Canadian writer, and that includes all the superior males, living today. Fourteen successful Jalna books, to say nothing of six or eight others, have long since established her as the most consistent best-seller this country has yet produced. By now there is something indestructible about the Jalna series, but, you know, the last time I was talking to her, the thought crossed my mind that there is something indestructible about Mazo too. Fragile and charming in appearance, with a darting dragon-fly wit, nevertheless there is a fibre of true toughness running through her which may catch you by surprise at first but which, in retrospect, explains a good deal of her success. Writers have to be tough, especially lady writers, especially Canadian lady writers. They have to be a lot of other things too; like clever and inventive and craftsmanlike. Miss de la Roche has all the qualifications.

Best of Whole Jalna Series

The evidence is her latest, "Variable Winds at Jalna." For my money this is one of the best of the whole series. It is certainly the nicest Jalna book which has come along in years. In plotting terms, more important things happen to the clan. In terms of characters, it seems, somehow richer than many of its predecessors, and I especially recommend for your attention young Archer, Renny's only son, who is by far the most promising of the contemporary generation of Whiteoaks. Fresh, new and completely individual, he relies on no inherited characteristics but is a complete person in his own right. I look forward to hearing a lot more about that one.

"Variable Winds at Jalna" is contemporary. It is not filling in any past gap of Whiteoaks history, but brings us almost up to date with how things go with the family. It's as good as any Jalna book you have ever read and that means real good.

Strange thing, but now I come to think of it, Ethel Wilson of Vancouver is a woman who, in terms of her own personality, is quite a lot like Mazo de la Roche. She too has great wit, intelligence and charm. I'm not so sure about the toughness. It's there all right, no doubt about that, for all you have to do is read her books and you'll find the evidence, but it's not so free-swinging.

Take this latest book, "Swamp Angel."

My own opinion is that Mrs. Wilson is the most exquisite prose stylist writing in Canada today. There just is not any one to touch her. "Swamp Angel," as writing, is beautifully delicate but never, never flimsy. This is where the toughness manifests itself. Neither in her writing nor in her ideas is Mrs. Wilson ever frail. This, considering the quality which she attains, puts her among the select few of distinguished Canadian writers.

Stimulating and Exciting

Yet there is, I am beginning to fear, a lack of inventiveness in this writer which may be holding back her progress.

On the surface, "Swamp Angel" is a new and different book. On closer examination it is not too unlike Mrs. Wilson's previous successes. Again we have a situation which goes like this: the central character is a strong, appealing woman who gets into difficulties with a man. (Mrs. Wilson never yet has convinced me how it is that these women of hers in some not motivated moment of weakness always take up with the wrong kind of man.) From this point the story invariably moves on until the troubled woman finds peace and justifies her existence—usually by going off to some more or less secluded spot in beautiful British Columbia which, the author implies, is the place for distressed women. And again, in "Swamp Angel" as before, there is a wonderfully wise older woman who indirectly helps any one in trouble.

Incidentally, Nell Severance, the wise old woman in this book, is one of the most fascinating characters I've met in this year's fiction.

But there it is. The same situation one has come to expect from Mrs. Wilson. She handles it with great mastery. "Swamp Angel" is not only a satisfying reading experience, it is highly stimulating and exciting. Just the same I can't help but wish Ethel Wilson could be a little more imaginative in selecting her plots.

Katherine Roy's "Lise" is a first novel. It does not belong in the same category as the other two, but it is promising because, as light reading fare (something this country is short on) it is thoroughly acceptable. It is the story of a sheltered girl who had a great passion, suffered subsequent disillusion and from there sought to build a good life for herself and her children. It roams over Paris, London and Montreal. It is rich, active and entertaining, albeit not too profound. It is an encouraging start.

Well, there they are: three Canadian women and if they represent the distaff side on the national writing front, the gents had better look to their laurels.

Russian Ballet Opens Famous Artists Bill

Alexandra Danilova, Prima Bellerina Assoluta and the western world's exponent of the great Russian tradition, will appear at the Royal Theatre in "Great Moments of Ballet" with Roman Jasinsky, Moscelyne Larkin and Michael Maule, on Nov. 9, as the first event on Famous Artists' 1954-55 Concert Series.

Other events on the Victoria series are: De Paur's Infantry Chorus, the Piano Quartette, George London, leading bass baritone of the Metropolitan Opera and Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera's sensatonal coloratura soprano. The bonus event will take place in January.

The many series ticketholders who went to Vancouver last season for Sadlers Wells Ballet will undoubtedly want to see the London Festival Ballet, which opens at the Orpheum Theatre on Nov. 23 for one week, with a company of 100, 50-piece orchestra, fabulous scenery and costumes, new full-length ballets never before seen on this continent and such great stars as Anton Dolin, Tamara Toumanova, Natalie Krassovska, Violette Verdy, John Gilpin, Oleg Briansky and the two famed Russian dancers, Nora Kovach and Istvan Babovsky. Gala opening night performance of the full-length "Esmeralda" is offered to Victoria series ticketholders at a great reduction in price.

Music lovers are reminded that they have only three weeks in which to secure tickets for the entire series of five fine concerts, plus the extra event. New box office is in Kent's Music Store, Fort Street.

Crime and Vice Story of Montreal

THE DARKER TRAFFIC, by Martin Brett. Dodd, Mead & Co., Toronto. 213 pages. $3.

"The Darker Traffic" by Martin Brett is written in the staccato style effectively used by most writers of detective and vice stories and the author does it perfectly.

An early quotation in the book "but this commerce in the flesh of women is a darker traffic" informs the reader at the outset what the book is about.

Montreal is the scene of the story. Displaced persons are the key of U.S. operators and a German woman who takes advantage of bewildered young girls from her own country.

AUDREY SAYS

Thousand Eager Children Hurt By City Council's Parsimony

A certain lady long ago, disgruntled over a daughter's music exam failure, arched a proud neck, stepped into the narrow niche which separated her in her own mind from the majority of her fellows, and remarked:

"After all, music is not necessary to a society girl!"

I was amused when I first heard that remark. And when I am reminded of it, as today, I am also a little thoughtful—a trifle puzzled.

The reminder has come in a roundabout way through news that hundreds of school children are to be deprived of a winter treat; the student symphony concerts up to now provided by Victoria Symphony Orchestra being this year cancelled owing to lack of funds.

Audrey

It is the apparent paradox that puzzles me. Here we have, on the one hand, a suggestion that music is principally the concern of the proletarian masses and of small significance to those on a higher social level.

DEPRIVED CONCERTS

But our city fathers refute all that and by indirectly depriving the school children of their symphony concerts (the end result of ignoring Victoria Symphony claims on designated funds) and by turning a deaf ear to Victoria Musical Art Society's request (it provides scholarships to deserving students)—have indicated their belief that music is the snobbish prerogative of the upper level and of no importance in the lives of ordinary folk.

Perhaps because Victoria has a perfect and/or unusual climate and gardens, they feel, like my proud lady, that music is "not necessary!"

To be serious, however, anyone who witnessed the eager and sincere interest of the 1,000 children who attended last year's special concerts, will realize how unfortunate the deletion is in this season's schedule.

AUDITORIUM NEEDED

And the Symphony Society cannot be in any way blamed for sacrificing the children's welfare to the more profitable Sunday subscription concerts. It was necessary, under the blank uncomprehending stare of mayor and council, to find a way of increasing revenue.

An orchestra of this type and calibre is an expensive proposition, even though musicians play for nothing more than out-of-pocket expenses and governing boards are purely voluntary. A large, moderately priced auditorium would go a long way toward making the orchestra self-supporting; but all that is available is a moderately sized auditorium at a large rental.

Dedicated to the idea of keeping symphony tickets within range of the average purse, the usual method of bringing irreconcilables together by increasing admission prices, is out of the question.

OUT-OF-DATE THINKING

So as even a sold-out house—a common experience to the Victoria Symphony Orchestra—cannot cover expenses, other means had to be found to bridge a dangerous gap.

Of course it is unfortunate that in attempting a solution one of the orchestra's most useful functions within the community should have had to be abandoned.

But if anyone is inclined to criticize the action, let blame be placed where, in general, it certainly belongs: at an out-of-date door in an out-of-date building, where a lot of out-of-date thinking and ideas have been promulgated in the last two years.

Musical Art Opener Wednesday

A distinguished concert will mark the opening of Victoria Musical Art Society's 1954-55 season, Wednesday evening at the Club Sirocco.

Music representing the three immortal 'Bs'—Bach, Beethoven and Brahms—will be performed by three of Victoria's outstanding soloists. Included will be Brahms' Trio, Opus 40, played by Hans Stelzner (French horn), Corol McCartney (violin) and Norah Haimberger (piano). The three featured artists will also present solo groups.

The Horn Trio is being presented in Victoria for the first time. Concert begins at 8.30.

SOLDIERS GET FILM JOBS

Three members of the American military police and a trio of British military police have signed to play "themselves" in the Technicolor Columbia release, "A Prize of Gold," which stars Richard Widmark, Mai Zetterling and Nigel Patrick.

Art in Review

By COLIN GRAHAM

Salvador Dali, whose latest antics always seem good for a news dispatch, has been up to his old tricks of amusing the public again.

This time he has announced his "rebirth" as a surrealist painter. A slight error seems to have crept into the dispatch, which has him being reborn as a cubist painter; but that's the sort of confusion you can expect when you have a character like Dali around.

STALE CHIP OFF OLD BLOCK

Actually the painting reproduced here, which he has just displayed in Rome to demonstrate his latest conversion, is a stale chip off the old Dali block, using the familiar hackneyed stage props. As for cubism, Dali has always had the cold shoulder from the rank and file of the cubists. Nor have the true surrealists been too happy about him for several years.

The truth is that Dali, superb technician though he is, stopped having anything to say about fifteen years ago.

Unluckily for the reputation of contemporary art he is as much a virtuoso of exhibitionism as of the brush.

HEADLINE SEEKER

Clowning all over the international scene, he seems to have become exactly the type of headline-seeking stunt man that the general public imagines the "advanced" painter to be, little noting the somewhat pained expression that comes across the faces of serious painters when another Dali escapade hits the front page.

This is all rather a pity. For during the first few years after his formal entry into the surrealist movement in 1926 Dali was a serious and sometimes inspired painter. He was even then indulging in public stunts but they had, strange to say, a strong moral purpose behind them.

Like the notorious Dada group that preceded them, the surrealists held to the conviction that modern humanity, under the influence of the machine and other presumed evils, was going rapidly to pot. They felt that 20th-century man had become alienated from himself, divorced from the roots of his consciousness, and that until he grew more in harmony with his real instincts and feelings there could be no hope for him.

AIMED TO SHOCK

One of the main surrealist aims was to shock Europe and America into a realization of this insanity in western moves and values. Any scheme, stunt, or painting which contributed to this end was held to have moral value.

The surrealists, of course, overestimated the power of their art to influence action, and they were and are relatively few in numbers. But they were earnest and fundamentally responsible men. So was Dali until the source of his inspiration dried up and he became the very thing he had started out to mock.

'YOUNG VIRGINIANS'

"The Young Virginians," story of the youngsters who fought under Stonewall Jackson during the Civil War, and who in the course of a few months turned from skylarking boys into the veterans who fought the titanic series of struggles on the long road to Appomattox, has been placed on Columbia Pictures' slate for 1955 and will be one of the most important productions of the coming year.

Musical Arts Society Wins Bouquet for Aid to Amateurs

The symphony orchestra began the concert season last weekend with the first of eight pairs of concerts; and next Wednesday at the Sirocco, another society devoted to the performance of music will begin with its first concert. The Musical Arts Society, founded some years ago by the great benefactor to Victoria musicians, Mrs. J. O. Cameron, has long since assumed a place of vital importance to the progress of music and development of musicians in this city.

MRS. J. O. CAMERON . . . inspired musicians

Reason for existence of the society is a noble one, and of such importance as can scarcely be exaggerated: all available and surplus funds realized from the series of concerts go into a scholarship fund to help young local talent further the tuition and help it along the hard road to the "top."

Gruber

Irene Byatt is one notable example of the incalculable good the Musical Arts Society has done. She has brought credit and renown to Victoria as far away as England.

The Musical Arts Society plans each year a series of concerts which is judiciously divided amongst the established professional talent here and the young but deserving advanced students, who are provided with the opportunity of a sponsored public appearance, so indispensable to the development of a musician yet so impossibly hard to achieve, and at the same time providing a public engagement which is, though modestly, remunerated.

Sonata and Chamber Music

The opening concert next Wednesday will be of the first type. Three musicians of finished professional calibre will provide an evening of sonata and chamber music. They are Nora von Haimberger, pianist, Corol McCartney, violinist, and Hans Stelzner, French horn.

Their names and attainments are well enough known here by now to assure them of a full house.

Miss Haimberger has been soloist with the symphony; so were the other two musicians, who are, or course, also permanent members of the orchestra, Corol McCartney being the assistant to the concertmaster, and Mr. Stelzner our principal horn.

For the main chamber work next Wednesday they will join forces in the marvelous Brahms trio for piano, violin and horn.

It will be music making of a high order.

I cannot lament long and loud enough the starvation diet we are on as regards chamber music. I seem to be not alone in that; when the Paganini Quartet used to visit us, the demand for tickets exceeded the supply; in their absence, the Musical Arts Society fills the breach each year as best they can. We must be profoundly grateful to them for having arranged for a concert of fine chamber music played by our own Victoria musicians who are entirely equal to it.

Ex-Grads Aid Old College

Victoria College holds a soft spot in the hearts of its ex-students apparently, for on more than one occasion during its history, individuals have turned their talents toward assisting some college project.

Last fall, Robin Wood, native son and brilliant young pianist, returned from a busy career in England and gave a concert in the college auditorium in aid of the library fund.

This year, another ex-student, Miss Eileen Graham, who has been studying in London, England, for the past five years, will present a piano recital on behalf of the same fund.

This event is scheduled to take place Nov. 5 and further details are to be announced shortly.

Movies–TV–Radio

Hollywood on TV: Desi Arnaz's idea of good TV comedy or drama: Nothing must happen on the screen which you would not want to happen in your own home."

Okay for Lucy, maybe, but it doesn't fit for those corpse-littered, high-rated private-eye dramas. Latest entry in this department, by the way, is one-time movie queen, Marguerite Chapman in a fem I-spy thriller titled, "Affairs of Ann Scotland."

JACK BEASTALL SAYS

Review of Gardening Weather Offers Many Causes for Thanks

Thanksgiving 1954 . . .

A long weekend which will be welcomed by gardeners; the last chance to complete the larger fall jobs.

Also the gardener's harvest festival; the time when crops are counted up and thanks are given for the provision of food sufficient for winter.

Each year I report the things for which I am thankful, and this year there are more to add.

The late frosts of last spring did a lot of damage to garden plants, and while I regretted the loss of many of the more tender subjects, I am now thankful they have gone.

Jack

They could never have thrived happily in our climate, despite the pampering and petting they received, and today their place has been filled with plants which will be happy here and give pleasure to all who see them.

DESPITE LACK OF SUMMER

The lack of real summer weather has many points in its favor. I am thankful for those overcast skies and cooler days.

Lack of scorching sun gave us many flowers which were more intense in color than we have seen for several years. Roses, for instance, made a brilliant display, and others showed their value as garden subjects.

True, the hot weather plants suffered from lack of heat, and the long season plants from the late frosts. But the same elements reduced the population of many garden pests, a condition for which any gardener is thankful.

The cloudy weather and frequent rains reduced the need for artificial watering, and most garden plants showed how much they preferred natural soil moisture to tap water. The texture of trees and ornamental evergreens was a pleasure to see throughout the summer.

PREVENTED SERIOUS FROSTS

And I am thankful the cloudy skies of late September prevented serious frosts. Our gardens can now continue their display, and grow old gracefully.

Above all, I am thankful that I love plants and gardens, and have a wife who shares this love. Also for the many friendships for which plants and gardens have been responsible, for garden-lovers are simple and sincere regardless of position or wealth, and devoid of all pretentions.

OH, FISH! WHAT A DEER STORY

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) Ketchikan fishing boat came in with the biggest catch of the season Thursday—a herd of 12 deer.

The crew of the boat "Five Brothers" picked them up about 5 miles out, on a 10-mile span of water between an island and a point. Capt. Tom Kristovich said several were near exhaustion and one was given artificial respiration. He said they swam up to the boat and readily came aboard.

Young Brother, Sister Die in Ont. House Blaze

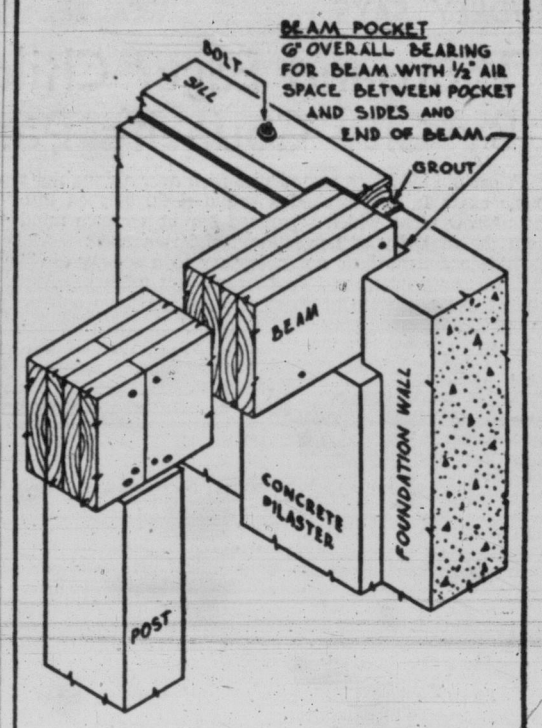
TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — A brother and sister, trapped asleep in a bedroom, were burned to death late Friday night in a fire in a house on the outskirts of Timmins.

Claudette Paquin, 10, and Claude, 9, were the victims. Their brothers, Ronald, 23, and Roger, 18, were taken to hospital, Ronald with serious burns on the face, head and hands, and Roger with minor face and hand burns.

Police said they were told that the fire started when Ronald, in the kitchen with Roger and five other persons, tried to throw a lighted match over a wash basin filled with gasoline. The match fell into the basin and an explosion and fire followed.

NHA GOOD BUILDING PRACTICE

FRAMING THE HOUSE:



LAMINATED WOOD BEAM

Laminated wood beams are usually constructed by nailing together 2 by 8's, 2 by 10's or 2 by 12's. Plank ends are butted and these joints are staggered so that no joints in adjacent rows are closer together than half the distance between spans. Use 4-inch nails, two near the ends of each plank and the others staggered, top and bottom, with maximum horizontal distance of 32 inches between nails.

Montgomery Says Allies Would Have To Use Atom Guns

ANKRA, Germany (Reuters) —Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery said here today atomic weapons would have to be used at the outbreak of any new war because "our political masters have never shown a great enthusiasm in giving us the necessary numbers to deal with Russian strength."

Present Western allied strategy would be to use nuclear weapons to halt any attack, thus giving time for full mobilization, the deputy supreme allied commander said.

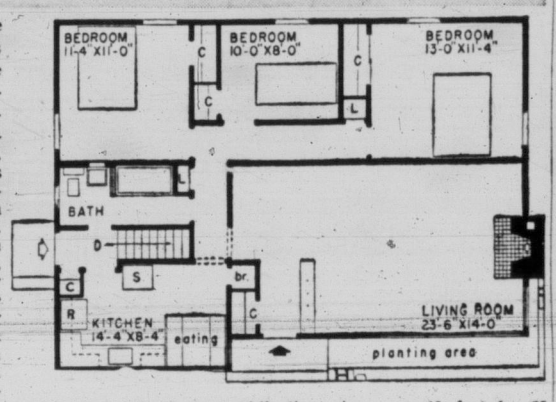
With Consideration for Housewife



A long planting area, wide eave overhang and generous corner window arrangement are among the eye-catching features of this new, three-bedroom bungalow designed by architect M. G. Dixon of Ottawa.

The busy housewife appears to have gained the special consideration of the architect in the planning of this house. Note the complete separation of the living and sleeping areas, always a prime aim in family accommodation. There is space in the large dining room for dining or special occasions but other meals can be served in the bright kitchen which has a compact arrangement of cupboards, counters, equipment and closets. Note also the handy side entrance with direct access to the basement and bathroom, another attempt to make it easier for the housewife to attend to the needs of young children.

The total floor area of the house is 1,092 square feet and the cubic measurement is 22,200 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 40 feet by 29 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 248, are available at minimum cost from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Transplanting Bulbs

By JACK BEASTALL

Transplant the polyanthus primulas to flowering places in the borders. Plant firmly.

Border carnations which were layered in August may now be severed and planted out if soil is light and well drained. If wet and heavy during winter, put into pots and keep in cold frame.

Ventilate greenhouse carefully. Avoid stagnant air. Wash glass inside and out.

Gradually withhold water from pot grown tuberous begonia, achimenes, gloxinia.

Insert cuttings of gooseberries outdoors.

Hoe vegetable rows.

Earthing up to celery must be done while soil is dry.

Winter lettuce plants should be transplanted, with soil attached, to cold frame, cloche or natural protection.

Keep faded dahlia blooms removed to prolong flowering.

Cut back drying stems of perennials.

Water well all newly planted material, whether it is shrubby or herbaceous. A light rain will not penetrate far into the dry soil.

Ottawa Cathedral Rector Declines Bishop's Post

OTTAWA (CP)—Very Rev. John O. Anderson, MC, president of the Canadian Legion, dean of Ottawa and rector of Christ Church Cathedral here since March 1, has declined the call to become bishop of the 35,000-square-mile Anglican diocese of Moosonee.

Dean Anderson told a reporter Friday night he had sent the following telegram to Very Rev. C. C. Robinson of Timmins, Ont., administrator of the Moosonee diocese:

"Please advise the synod of the diocese of Moosonee that after careful and serious consideration I beg leave to decline the honor of election as bishop.

"While the work in the great and historic diocese is of utmost importance, I feel I cannot conscientiously at this time leave the obligations and responsibilities to which I have so recently pledged myself here.

"Praying God's blessing upon you, yours faithfully, John O. Anderson."

UBC Sororities Admit Color Bar

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Ubyssey, University of British Columbia student newspaper, shifted its campus anti-discrimination campaign to sororities Friday with a front-page "expose."

The paper said non-white girls are eliminated from lists used to mail information about sororities and applications for membership.

Nancy Underhill, president of the Pan-Hellenic Society, coordinating body governing sororities, said it was true brochures and application forms are not sent to colored or Oriental girls.

AT CATHEDRAL

Temporary East Wall Being Braced

By W. S. HENDERSON

Congregations in Christ Church Cathedral last Sunday observed that after a lapse of 20 years, structural work was in progress on the east end of the building, but it is minor and not part of the great work which will be undertaken when construction of the choir, sanctuary, vestries and chapel is undertaken, the great work which will complete the edifice on which building was started in 1936.

BUILT IN 1939

When the nave was completed in 1939 it was consecrated (Sept. 28, 1939) with only a false wall in place at the east end. Not knowing in what year the chancel would be added, the building committee accepted plans from the architect for a wooden wall to close the lofty gap toward the east. It was built of wood, as all Victorians viewing the building observed at the time. The big wooden wall was reinforced against wind pressure by construction of two buttresses. In that form it stood for some years, and eventually the exterior surface of the wall was plastered, and in that form it stands today.

RIGHT TIME

Recently it was suggested that now, while a contracting firm has builders working on the west end, would be an advantageous time to examine the wooden wall. This was done, and though no deterioration amounting to any danger was disclosed, advice was given that the wooden wall be braced to a certain extent.

When the first congregation assembled in the nave last Sunday parishioners observed a scaffold above the dosal which backs the high altar (and is expected to continue there until the carved stone reredos is put in place when the east end is completed). Openings had been made in the wooden wall and the work of bracing was well under way.

As to how long the new braces will be in place no one can say at this time as no date has yet been fixed for the erection of the chancel and chapel and vestries.

BARE MINIMUM

HASTINGS, Eng. (CP)—Any Adams and Eves at a fancy dress ball in this Sussex town will be asked to have their costumes weighed before being admitted. A precaution against ultra-scanty apparel stipulates that all costumes must weigh at least four ounces, not including shoes.

WEEK'S GARDEN WORK

Ventilate Greenhouse

By JACK BEASTALL

Last year I put crocus bulbs in pots for growing in the house during winter. They did not grow well. How may I succeed this year?

Crocus and other of the very early flowering bulbs such as snowdrops are not suitable for growing in pots for house decoration. They resent the 70 degree temperature, but are perfect for unheated greenhouse or sunroom.

A bed of tuberous begonias is still in good condition, but I wish to replant it now for spring. What shall I do?

Lift the tubers with soil attached, and pack closely in a wooden box. Place in a cold frame, or light corner of garage or shed. Remove leaves and stems as they wither. Finally, dry off the tubers, clean carefully, and store in dry sand or peat moss in a temperature around 40 degrees.

May I move heather plants while in bloom?

Yes. Either spring or fall is a good time for planting heathers, regardless of whether they are blooming. The roots make a fibrous mat, which transplants easily providing the soil is well moistened before digging.

OUT IN STREET

SHAFTSBURY, Eng. (CP)—Council of this Dorset town met for 15 minutes in the street when the usual assembly room was found locked. After the clerk read the minutes to the 31 councillors, officials and reporters, all adjourned to a neighboring building.

U.S. to Divert Funds To Colombo Plan Needs

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States today announced that it will devote part of the savings arising from the ending of the Indo-China war to projects within the Colombo plan.

Harold Stassen, chief of the U.S. foreign operations administration, announced this at a press conference just prior to entering the Colombo plan ministerial meeting where he will make the same statement today.

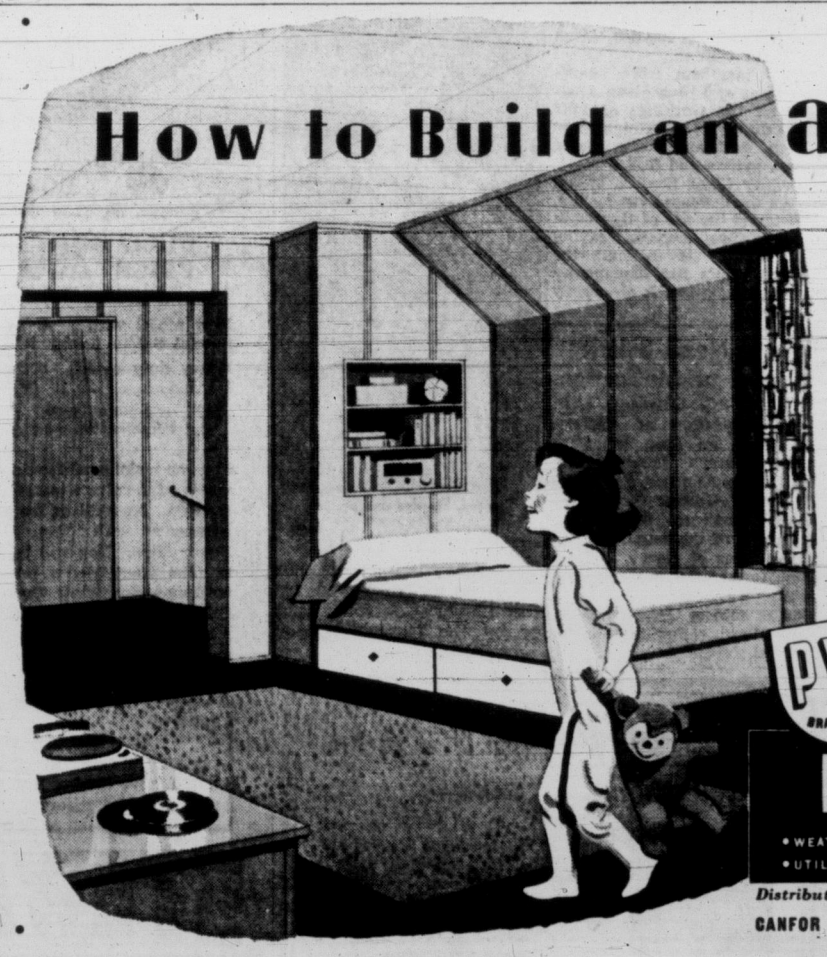
How to Build an attic bedroom


FREE... step-by-step plans for home craftsmen

Do building costs prevent you from having extra living space? Then do what thousands have done: use the studs and joists already in place to build a low-cost attic or basement room.
And when you tackle the job, do it right: use P.V. Hardboards. Here is a tough, durable pressed wood panel you can work with safely. No paper surface to bruise . . . no plaster corners to knock off. Simply nail it directly to the studs and you get a wall that will stand up to a lifetime of abuse.
You can have patterned P.V. Hardboards, too. For the ceiling, use Square-tex in easily-handled 4' x 4' panels. For added drama, build one wall in Plank Board—it has a pattern of vertical channels.
Properly planned, an extra room is easier to build than you think. First, ask your lumber dealer for our free idea-folders, "Attic Rooms Project 5" and "Basement Rooms Project 6". Or, if you wish, mail in coupon below. These excellent folders take you step-by-step through the job.

Damage was one-sided when Dr. P. F. D'Estrube, 1542 Athlone Drive, crashed his car into a lumber carrier at Menzies and Superior. Court was told Friday that the car cost $600 to repair, the carrier $10. On top of that, the doctor was fined $35 for careless driving because he had passed through a flashing red light without stopping. His license is restricted to business purposes for two months.

DO IT YOURSELF

Welding Now Simple Operation

The simple operation of this new welding machine enables anyone to learn good welding in a matter of minutes.

Metalcraft is an "art" indulged in by a growing number of home workshop proprietors. Heretofore it has been confined pretty much to soft metals like aluminum and brass, but steel is coming into the picture.

The trend is being helped along by the recent development of a "do-it-yourself" arc-welding outfit that will weld, cut, solder and braze practically all metals when plugged into an ordinary 115-volt home electrical circuit.

SIMPLE TO OPERATE

The blessing this rig bestows on the home metalcrafter is its simplicity of operation—it eliminates skills normally required of the man behind the electrode. It's so simple, in fact, that the manufacturer practically implies you're a dunce if you can't learn to make quality welds in five minutes.

This wholly new method of welding employs a special welding electrode and electrode holder. To make a weld, the electrode is placed in the holder and its tip is touched to the metals to be joined at the place where the weld begins. A switch is pressed on the holder to fire the electrode, and we're off!

UNIFORM WELD

As the electrode melts down it progresses along the joint, depositing a uniform weld. No effort is required of the welder, other than that of keeping the electrode in line with the joint. Even on that score he has help from a supporting metal leg on the holder which keeps the electrode in correct position.

The idea behind the development was to give do-it-yourselfers a quick, foolproof method of joining metals for repairing and making such things as metal furniture, tools and garden equipment, toys, work tables, railings, barbecue grills and many other things. Even a wheelbarrow would not be hard to make.

Besides the unit's primary welding duties, it will pierce holes and cut slots in steel by using the heat of the arc to melt away metal. With an arc torch attachment it can be equipped to solder, straighten or bend steel straps, remove rusty bolts and braze brass, bronze or copper.

WELDING TABLE

A metal or brick table top is needed for welding, and would be a good first project. One can easily be made using a sheet of quarter-inch steel for a top and angle iron for the legs. An old cast-iron grill or grating is also good for a top, because it will withstand repeated heatings, and weld spatter won't adhere to it.

The table might have a shelf below the top to hold the 100-ampere welding transformer, and metal wings on the sides to stop flying sparks. The table should be near an open window when welding, and all combustible materials should be kept out of range.

Materials for making the table and other projects can often be obtained from hardware stores in the form of rods, sheets, pipe, angle iron, flats, channels and tubing. Junk yards, too, are a source of inexpensive steel.

New Steel Aids Home Worker to Do-It-Yourself

Until very recently metals had not been merchandised in a way that would appeal to the majority of Saturday craftsmen. The result—they confined most of their home workshop activities to woodworking.

Aluminium manufacturers were the first to realize the potential market and one of them made a killing with a "do-it-yourself" aluminum. It came out in sheets, angles, bars, tubing and other shapes, all displayed in a group on convenient racks—mainly in hardware stores.

The steel boys followed suit. One enterprising outfit in Cleveland, Ohio, recently began packaging steel bars, threaded rods, flats, angles and galvanized sheets in handy sizes designed to appeal to handy men. They did, other concerns copied the idea, and it has gained wide acceptance throughout the country.

EASY TO WORK

The original "do-it-yourself" steel items are fashioned of mild steel that is said to be ductile, or easy to work, while retaining "the strength of steel." For instance, bars up to 5/16 inch in diameter can be bent cold 180 degrees without cracking. That means that you can bend one of these rods back on itself, but not with your bare hands, of course.

Using a bending jig in a vise, you can turn out fancy scroll-work made with lengths of flat stock. This type of thing can be made to look just like store-bought wrought iron in porch and stair railings, shelf hangers, foot scrapers and a thousand-and-one other projects.

The handy guy around the house finds plenty of uses for the galvanized sheets included in this assortment—from repairing gutter and roof leaks to overlaying the top of his workbench.

Angle stock, too, is useful for countless projects. As legs and bracing it makes for sturdy work tables and benches, for example.

RUST-PROOFED

All the steel in the rack is rust-proofed with a coating of lacquer. However, under unusual circumstances or after an unreasonable length of time, it will rust. Therefore, it is best to paint the steel with a good enamel after first removing the lacquer with paint stripper.

The galvanized sheets are coated with zinc and therefore will not rust unless exposed to the weather for a long time. Galvanized sheets can be painted if the zinc coating is first removed by vigorous rubbing with steel wool.

Working with this kind of metal does not involve a heavy outlay in tools. A good assortment for a starter would include a hack saw, several files (flat, round and triangular), ball peen hammer, tin snips, hand drill or ¼-inch portable electric drill and twist drills (bits) ranging in size from 1/16 to ¼ inch.

It will amaze the amateur craftsman how inexpensively he can make any number of useful things for around the house. A sturdy foot scraper, for instance, can be made for 60 cents; a log basket for the fireplace for 70 cents; window flower-pot shelves for 35 cents apiece.

Once he becomes accustomed to working metal there'll be no stopping him.

Lions Club Learns All About Fire Extinguishers

Members of the Victoria Lions Club learned about the workings of various types of fire-extinguishers Friday when Deputy Fire Chief J. E. Bayliss talked on fire-prevention.

Club members were shown two films and then given a lecture on the workings of four different styles of extinguishers—soda acid and foam, water pump, pyrene and CO2.

Deputy Chief Bayliss, speaking on the damage done by fire, discounted the use of figures in quoting fire damage, saying that "to try to estimate the coming year's fire damage by using past figures is absolutely useless."

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—An association of ex-Nazis has sent an open letter to Senator Joseph McCarthy asking him to help end the "defamation of Germany" and get the "American Morgenthau boys out" of the country.

The name of Henry Morgenthau, former U.S. treasury secretary, was connected with a plan to subject Germany to an agricultural, rather than an industrial, future.

Italian Premier Wins Senate Vote

ROME, Italy (UP)—Premier Mario Scelba won a vote of confidence from the Italian Senate Friday, approving his settlement of the nation's dispute with Yugoslavia over the Trieste territory.

The tough little Sicilian, now settling firmly into power, won the senate's stamp of approval on Trieste by 122 votes to 89.

Under terms of the settlement, the disputed former free territory on the Yugoslav-Italian frontier was divided between the two nations.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

By TONY DICKASON and IRVING STRICKLAND

Question: Civil Defense Control Board has fired Director Hatcher and his staff because "Canada's CD program is valueless, just money down the drain." Do you agree?

Mrs. Muriel Rawlings, housewife, 565 Selkirk Avenue: "While I haven't been studying the situation, I'm in favor of civil defense, as we need some type of protection for any emergency which might be called unusual."

W. E. Goodwin, retired, 2764 Dufferin Avenue: "I think CD is doing a good enough job, and it should be continued. The general public, though, just doesn't know what is going on and this is the main trouble with the situation."

Mrs. Phyllis Coxworth, housewife, 2608 Dunlevy Avenue: "I don't agree with the firings because I think CD is doing a lot of good. If they brought in another man rather than Mr. Hatcher he couldn't do more than he has already done. But the difficulty is nobody seems to understand what civil defense is all about."

Eric Smith, manager, 515 Trutch Street: "The subject is one that's of not too much interest to the ordinary layman. It should be much more solidified, with more direction from headquarters in Ottawa. The whole program needs revamping."

Anthony McManus, salesman, 1268 Reynolds Road: "CD training has a certain amount of leadership value, but it would be of doubtful value in a local emergency, mostly because of the haphazard way the general public accepts it. They don't have the sense of fear necessary to make CD a success."

Joseph Harper, retired, Lantzville: "I think it is a good idea to go ahead with civilian defense preparations, mostly because we don't want to start our preparations when things have become too late to do anything. In this atomic age be prepared."

Situated at Fairfield and Vancouver, "Collingwood" is city's latest apartment block.

23-SUITE BLOCK COST $150,000

Modernism Rules 'Collingwood'

Two Victoria brothers, both coastal fishermen, have built the city's newest apartment building, the Collingwood, at Fairfield and Vancouver.

Jim and Ken Quinn have put an estimated $150,000 into the 23-suite structure.

Plans were being made today for open house Sunday, to let the public see the bamboo-draped closets; partial partitions of fibreglass; oak floors; twin-bed bedrooms; Philippine mahogany panelling and doors, each with backset brass knobs and door chimes; extra-wide stairs which are kept to a minimum by use of three-level construction entrances divided by a stone and concrete fire wall to the top of the building.

Other attractive features include silent light switches throughout the building, fans in the kitchenettes, soundproofing and insulation, aluminum sash windows and Venetian blinds and baseboard heating.

Four of the suites are being completely furnished with modern accessories, including several wrought iron pieces which are complimented by the use of bamboo drapery.

TV ARRANGEMENTS

All apartments are wired with coxial cable to bring TV set owners four channels without having to make antenna adjustments.

Architect Patrick Birley designed the building especially for the lot on which it stands, in order to make best use of the sloping ground. It results in part of the building being three stories high, another two-and-a-half and the rest two stories.

Five suites have aluminum-supported corner windows, the rest having longer than usual one-wall windows. All but seven apartments have been built with one bedroom, but all are large enough for twin beds.

Halls will be laid with wall-to-wall carpets and extra soundproofing care has been put into corridor floors and walls.

All baths have both tub and shower and colored fixtures which vary from apartment to apartment.

O'DOUL, NEWSOME LEAD IN PHIL PILOT DERBY

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—The names of Lefty O'Doul and Skeeter Newsome were in the grab bag today as possible managers of the Philadelphia Phillies if Terry Moore doesn't return as pilot next season.

O'Doul, who managed San Diego in the Coast League last year, was tapped in one rumor mill because he was seen "in quiet conversation" with Phils' general manager Roy Hamey at the World Series.

Newsome's name bobbed into prominence for his success with the Phils' farm team at Syracuse which he piloted into the Little World Series.

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

So you want to be a champion.

You gotta work, bub, you gotta work.

No doubt you've heard the story of Bob Feller.

Bob was the kid who came off an Iowa farm and started throwing bullets at American League batters at the tender age of 17 years.

Bob was still throwing last year, although the bullets had lost some of their fire power. But last year was 18 years later.

Walker

How did Bob get that way. By plain hard work. He and his dad used to go behind the barn after the chores were done and play catch until dark. By the time Bob got to the majors he was still playing catch with most American League batters standing at the plate watching him.

Feller is also a physical culturist. Never out of condition, Bob toys with bar bells and has developed his physique by other methods as well.

Indoor sports deserve the same kind of attention and approach.

For example, how's this for a training program:

Arise at 7 a.m., undergo 10 minutes gymnastics, bath and then breakfast.

At 10 a.m. the real grind begins.

Two 400-metre races, high and broad jumps, the latter from a standing position; 60 and 100 metre sprints and a three-quarter mile walk. After that, all report to the swimming baths.

A slight reprieve with two hours rest after lunch is followed with tennis and/or rowing and more swimming.

The day closes with a peaceful stroll, dinner and a concert, with everyone in bed by 10 p.m.

This program could do justice to an Olympic team. It's far more strenuous than a ballplayer's regimen.

But can you guess what it's for?

Chess.

That's right. Chess!

Conditioning (and Comfort) Came First

This was the program undertaken by the Russian chess masters prior to the "World Championship Candidates' Tournament of 1953."

The Russians prepared for the event for two months beforehand. Chess was completely absent from the timetable for two weeks. Medical specialists and leading athletic trainers and swimming coaches were in complete charge.

It was only when the candidates were physically fit that chess took its place on the agenda. Even then, each candidate had his own private trainer. Personal service and every comfort were a must.

It was not surprising then to see the result.

Russians occupied nine of the first 11 places in the final table.

So you gotta work, bub, if you want to be a champion. You gotta work and you gotta train.

This Guy Fudged Once Too Often

And maybe Gil Dobbie had the right idea about training. Dobbie, it may be recalled, was one of the United States' leading college grid coaches. His teams went unbeaten from 1906 through 1916.

He was a fanatic on conditioning.

Once he caught a quarterback violating curfew and eating fudge.

The next game he sent the quarterback in with instructions to carry the ball on every play.

A dozen runs or so later, the quarterback collapsed, ill.

As he crawled toward the sidelines, Dobbie met him, screeching:

"You will break training, you——!

Still wanta be a champion?

'Boardwalk Billy' On High Road Now

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "Boardwalk" Billy Smith, 173½, scored a startling upset Friday night by knocking out Harold Johnson, 174, Philadelphia, No. 1 light heavyweight title contender, in 1.22 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round bout at the arena.

Smith, who came east from Oakland, Calif., two years ago to make Atlantic City, N.J., his home, smashed Johnson with a hard right to the side of the face, sending the Philadelphian sprawling to the canvas. Johnson made an effort to regain his feet, moving to his knees, but he sagged to the ring floor and took the full count.

This was Johnson's first fight since he was stopped last August 11 in Madison Square Garden by 175-pound champion Archie Moore in the 14th round of a title fight.

Smith, a 33-year-old veteran of 81 fights, was the No. 4 ranking light heavyweight before Friday night's fight. He was at least a 2-to-1 underdog and was considered a stepping stone for Johnson in a campaign to earn another crack at Moore's title.

Faint Hope A's May Stay In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Tommy Richardson of Williamsport, long time president of the Eastern Baseball League, appeared today to be the one man who could keep the Athletics in Philadelphia after a hoped-for backer said he definitely was out of the picture.

John McShain, nationally-known builder, said Friday that he lost interest in buying into the club after Earle Mack rebuffed his bid two months ago.

McShain, seen as one of the hopes of Roy Mack in his attempt to keep the team here, said definitely he was not a prospective purchaser and that he hadn't been since Earle put the chill on his efforts.

"We had the papers all signed, and then Earle asked to be relieved of his commitment," McShain said. "I have made no moves since then."

Richardson, a member of the team board of directors, claims the backing of a syndicate which matched the $3,375,000 bid of Arnold Johnson of Chicago in behalf of Kansas City.

But Richardson, who will attend the American League meeting in Chicago next Tuesday, wants the right to move the team from Philadelphia should it have an unsuccessful season next year.

McShain, who left Roy and Earle the money to take over control of the team in 1950, was regarded as the ace in the hole for Roy in his attempt to find financial backing to keep the team.

Curlers Open New Season Next Week

Ice-making was scheduled to start today at the Victoria Curling Club rink and a keen sheet of ice is expected to be ready for the first competition this season, the president vs. vice-president club opening event Thursday. A crowd of curlers and prospective curlers gathered Friday night at the rink for an informal get-together, feature of which was the showing of a film on the Macdonald Brier event held last season at Edmonton. A dance was also held. Here, ice-maker Tony Gutoski (left), looks on as Mrs. Eileen Neff casts a critical eye at the hack, and the club's new manager, Fred Madden, tests weight of the rocks. All are hoping for a banner curling season. (Strickland.)

Royals Could Be Tough; Meet Cougars Monday

Victoria Cougars, who surprised most fans here Wednesday with a victory over Calgary Stampeders, meet what could be the real surprise club in the Western Hockey League here Monday.

New Westminster Royals will be in town for the Thanksgiving Day contest Monday afternoon at 3, and the Royals are considerably strengthened over last year's unit.

Not only do they have the core of last year's club, anchored by goalie Lucien Dechene, but they have several newcomers who could make them a definite title threat.

When Frank Dotten pulled out of Seattle and joined forces with co-owner Kenny McKenzie of the Royals, he brought with him the league scoring champion Guyle Fielder.

In addition the Royals have added Sam Lavitt, captain of last year's Cougars; Jake Forbes, former coach of the New Westminster team; Gerry Penner, an accomplished winger; Motto McLean; Gordon Sinclair, a promising youngster, and Valere Fonteyne, who Forbes describes as a "terrific prospect."

Holdovers include defenseman Bob Bergeron, Jim Bedard, Ron Matthews; centres Max McNab and Bobbie Love; forwards Gordon Fashoway, Ollie Dorohoy and Blinky Boyce.

CANUCKS WORRIED

Cougar general manager Fred Hutchinson has heard nothing from league president Al Leader concerning the Cougar protest of Vancouver's use of an ineligible player Billy Dea in last Tuesday's opener.

However, it is evident that Vancouver is worried over the situation as neither Dea nor Mid Houghton were dressed Friday night in the Canucks' 3-0 win over Calgary. Houghton is also believed ineligible.

Cougar coach Billy Reay will go against the Royals with the same line combinations he used in the Cougar 3-2 victory over the Stamps here Wednesday.

Charity Grid Game Could Prove Costly

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Punchard, secretary-treasurer of the Big Four Toronto Argonauts, said Friday night charity wouldn't make much money from a proposed East-West football game in Vancouver because team expenses would be high.

Commenting on a Vancouver report about plans for a game between the runners-up in the Big Four and Western Interprovincial Football Unions, Punchard said:

The expenses would be quite high; within calling distance of $25,000 for one club. If Winnipeg happened to be the western team, their expenses would be almost as high as for an eastern club."

Proceeds from the game would go for Shrine charities and the crippled children's fund.

Fred Saskamoose To Join Royals

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (BUP)—Freddy Saskamoose, the first full-blooded Indian to play in the National Hockey League, has been assigned to the New Westminster Royals of the Western League.

Saskamoose, who played with the Moose Jaw Canucks of the Western Canada Junior League last season, was signed by the Chicago Black Hawks. Saskamoose was voted the Western Junior League's most valuable player last season.

Thompson Cup Golf Slated For Uplands

One of the most popular golf tournaments of recent years will take place at Uplands Golf Club, Monday, Thanksgiving Day.

The Bunny Thompson Memorial Trophy competition, in honor of the former secretary of the Victoria and District Golf Association, has drawn a good field.

Defending champion is Frank Scroggs of Uplands. Post entries will be accepted.

Draw follows:

8.45—M. Cave, O. Jull, J. Hall, G. Sinnott.

9.00—G. Pellow, R. Herbertson, L. Hibberson, V. Lea.

Ivan Temple Elected Hockey Fund Chairman

Ivan Temple of Victoria has been named chairman of the British Columbia Amateur Hockey Association mutual aid fund.

Temple is Vancouver Island representative to the provincial body. Herb House of New Westminster has been appointed secretary-treasurer of the fund, adopted by the association at a recent annual meeting.

Lions Risk Final Playoff Hope Tonight

Coach Al Sherman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers calls tonight's WIFU clash against Edmonton Eskimos in the Manitoba capital a "big one," but B.C. Lions are in tougher.

For the Esks, their Monday afternoon game with Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina is a big one, too.

If Pop Ivy's warriors win both, they jump to a first-place tie in the Western Interprovincial Football Union with Bombers and Riders.

Other week-end action has Calgary Stampeders at Vancouver today and British Columbia Lions at Calgary for an afternoon game Monday.

Calgary has to win two to keep within hailing distance of that third and last playoff spot and for Annis Stukus' Lions, a double win would keep alive the Vancouver entry's slim mathematical chance of finishing third.

Tied in first place with 16 points in 12 starts are Winnipeg and Saskatchewan. Edmonton is third with 12 points in 10 games. Calgary, which has had a dozen starts, has 10 points and the fifth-place Lions have one win in 10 starts.

The week-end games might result in a clearer picture of what three teams will take part in the playoffs after the 16-game regular schedule.

Mrs. Hope Captures Uplands Tee Title

Mrs. F. Glen Hope, women's club captain at Uplands Golf Club, Friday won the club "A" women's championship by defeating Mrs. F. B. Shore, 4 and 3, in the final.

Miss M. Milburn captured honors in the consolation flight, Mrs. J. Hibberson being runner-up. Medalist of the tourney was Mrs. H. Woolison.

Colwood Golf

Mrs. Hugh McIntyre fired a net 82-5—77 Thursday to capture silver division honors in a monthly medal competition at Colwood Golf Club.

Bronze division laurels were taken by Mrs. C. Denham with a 102-23—79.

Thousands of 'Peg Grid Fans to See Cup Classic

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Free Press says Winnipeg football fans by the thousands are expected to head for the Grey Cup game this year—but in a different direction.

This time, a mass exodus is expected to swarm over the border to Fargo, N.D., about 210 miles south, where the game will be shown direct on television station WDA-TV.

In a telephone interview with the newspaper, Jack Dunn, station manager of WDA-TV, said:

"We're doing this because of the tremendous response from Winnipeg and the rest of Manitoba. Hundreds of letters and phone calls have poured in requesting that we show the Grey Cup final."

Mr. Dunn said Friday that final arrangements have been completed with NBC in New York for the direct telecast of the classic from Toronto.

The Winnipeg interest has been confirmed by a brief survey of hotels and motor courts in the Fargo vicinity. One entire motor court has been taken over by a Winnipegger for a large party planning a "Grey Cup week-end."

There will be no direct telecast of the game at Winnipeg over CBC-TV, although the game will be shown at a later date.

Canucks Surprise, Blank Stampeders

Small Crowd Sees WHL Champs Lose

VANCOUVER (CP) — Penalties were plentiful but goals were few Friday night as Vancouver Canucks posted their first shutout of the infant Western Hockey League season, downing Calgary Stampeders, 3-0.

In all, 18 penalties were handed out, three of them 10-minute misconducts.

Dale Sweaney, Jack Lancien and Doug Adam, assisted by Chuck McCullough and rookie Ray Cyr, scored the three goals. However, Calgary was heavy on defence, with captain Gus Kyle outstanding.

Penalties started early. In the scoreless first period, seven were meted out. Vancouver went ahead 2-0 in the second, a period which also saw seven men whistled off. Calgary's Frank Ashworth drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty for tripping referee George Cullen. The 2,500 fans saw one goal and four penalties, two to McCullough, in the third period.

PENALTY HURTS

Vancouver opened the scoring at 3.30 of the second when Sweaney took a pass from McCullough and Bill Chalmer. They widened the margin at 8.17 when Lancien tipped in McCullough's offering while Calgary was playing a man short. Adam, on a rush with Cyr and Fred Brown at 6.41 of the third, wrapped it up.

Calgary moves to New Westminster to take on the Royals today while Edmonton moves to Saskatoon.

Queen Elizabeth's Racing Luck Holds

ASCOT, Eng. (Reuters)—The Queen's racing luck, which has made her top stakes winner in Britain this year, held again Friday.

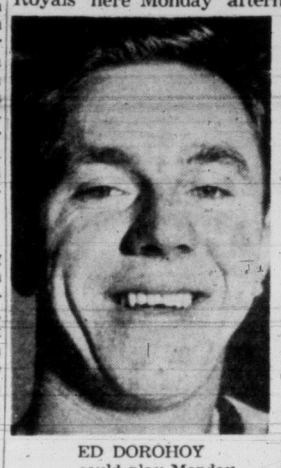
It gave her her 19th winner in a race here named after her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh Stakes. Another of her horses ran second in the race.

The victory boosted her season's winnings to £41,000.

OFFERED CONTRACT

Dorohoy May Rejoin Cougars

It is possible that Eddie Dorohoy may be playing for Victoria Cougars when they meet New Westminster Royals here Monday afternoon in a Western Hockey League game.



ED DOROHOY
. . . could play Monday.

Club general manager Fred Hutchinson announced this morning that Dorohoy had been offered a contract but had not yet agreed to terms.

However, it is expected that Dorohoy will meet with club officials again today in an effort to straighten out differences of opinion.

Dorohoy originally was slated to be on the trading block as the Cougars sought to secure the services of defenseman Lou Fontinato and either Bill Wylie or Cy Rouse.

As nothing further has been heard from the Canucks in regard to the proposed trade, it is assumed negotiations have broken down.

SMYTHE'S RETIREMENT GIVES SELKE CHUCKLE

MONTREAL (BUP)—Frank Selke, general manager of the Montreal Canadiens, said last night he doesn't believe Connie Smythe will ever get too far away from hockey.

"It gives me a laugh," Selke said, commenting on Smythe's announcement in Toronto that he would retire immediately. "He's too much of a fan to give it up," said the man who for 20 years was Smythe's assistant at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"If you don't believe me, just watch him some night when the Leafs get involved in an incident . . . see what he does then," Selke said. (See story, Page 13.)

A Week's Work

By DENNY BOYD

By DENNY BOYD

The news that Dusty Mair had been hospitalized in an accident at the shipyards didn't rate any more than a paragraph in the local news round-up.

But it set me to thinking.

And the rather callous thought that came was that only Dusty could put himself in a hospital bed by stabbing himself with a sledge hammer.

Now if that sounds cold-blooded, let it be known that Dusty and I are such good friends that he calls me "Meathead" and "Donkey," and Dusty saves those names only for his friends.

It's impossible to think of Dusty without thinking in terms of muscle and sinew, bony fists and physical strength.

And so it would follow that it was not too surprising that Dusty belted a wedge with a sledgehammer with such a gusto that the hammer head shattered and a piece pierced his thigh.

Fortunately, a sledge hammer tangling with Dusty is being exploited in an over-match. While lesser men might spend the winter looking up at the ceiling, Dusty, was clamoring to get out of the hospital as soon as they had stitched him up.

Although he has stitched and taped countless athletes and rubbed out hundreds of bruises and Charley-horses, Dusty felt right mortified to be side-lined by a chicken thing like a sledge hammer—a sledge hammer mind you that couldn't even stand the gaff when humped by Mair.

Rough, Ready, But a Right Guy

When you think of that piano-playing fellow, you think of a toothy smile and pomaded curls. When you think of Dusty, the vision is of a scowl and a bicep that bulges like a water-melon.

If you meet Dusty on the street, he'll probably greet you with "Hello you Donkey, how'd you like a punch in the nose?"

If you know Dusty well enough, you can translate this to mean, "Hello, it's good to see you again."

Actually, it's all sham but the muscles. Dusty is a friendly, intelligent guy with a wife and two sons, of whom he is inordinately proud. He loves his wife, pays his taxes and is polite to elderly ladies. He is an excellent fisherman and coho flap their tails in fear when Dusty putts around the end of the Breakwater with a light rod and a bucket of live minnows.

Dusty is an accomplished boxing referee and some of his happiest moments are spent in the ring, helping a couple of 60-pounders grow up with the proper perspective on life.

His infectious grin and wall-shaking laugh, coupled with an earthy sense of humor and a wonderful dry wit, make him a natural entertainer at stag parties.

Scowl Only Skin Deep

As a trainer, his skill has been overlooked because he goes about his business quietly. But he can tape ankles with speed and efficiency and stem the flow of blood from a Shamrock lacrosse player with hands that can be surprisingly gentle. He draws a share in the Shamrock player pool because if it were not for Dusty and his side-kick, Deans Blackstock, a lot of Shamrocks might not appear on the floor every lacrosse night.

Back in the days when he was a kid, Dusty was always the guy who swam the farthest in the coldest water, hit the longest home runs and beat the most neighborhood bullies.

Built on the small side, Dusty began to grow muscles like most kids grow bad manners.

He was an excellent swimmer, a first-class senior softball player and a rugged lacrosse player.

Back in 1941, Dusty was playing for Jokers and James Bay had just brought over a tough stylist from New Westminster named Arnold Ferguson.

An argument broke the game up, a fight started and Dusty, his brother Bob and big Sammy Andrews advanced on Ferguson. Fergie stood his ground, realizing it would be indiscreet to back off in his first game in the league. Holding his stick at the ready, Fergie said, "The next guy that takes a step is going to hate me for the rest of his life."

Dusty took that step and Fergie laid him low with a blow of his stick.

But somehow, it turned out that Dusty and Fergie became fast friends.

And I am sure Fergie will join us in saying to Dusty, "Get out of that bed, you donkey, before I bust you in the teeth."

Fan Backs Player

Unsolicited Report May Affect Suspension

A Victoria soccer fan has come forward in defense of Victoria and District Football League player Herb Wetherall, recently given an indefinite suspension from soccer by league officials.

Wetherall was suspended following an incident in a recent game, charged with kicking Tillicum's Bill Gosling in the leg after the ball had gone out of play. Gosling suffered a broken leg.

Four other players were also given lesser suspensions for striking players in the contest.

The fan, John Anderson, 3690 Blenkinsop Road, in a letter to the Times sports department which he asks be forwarded to league officials, disclaims that Wetherall purposely kicked Gosling and states that the ball was in play when the accident occured.

Driving past Windsor Park and seeing a football game in progress, Mr. Anderson parked his car and casually entered the playing field.

His letter states:

"Apparently a goal had been scored just as I arrived, and the kick-off was underway. I had a clear view of proceedings, and when the ball was passed to a husky, tall player, another from the opposing side ran forward to intercept the ball.

"The action, as I saw it, was, the opponent tipped the ball away from the foot of the tall chap just as he raised his foot to kick, and instead of getting the ball, which was very evident to me, he inadvertently caught the other lad on the leg with a terrific kick, meant undoubtedly for the ball, which was definitely in play.

Mr. Anderson states he played the game at school in Scotland under very strict rules and teachers and prides himself with knowing the game.

Bobo May Be Busy Champ

NEW YORK (AP).—The International Boxing Club began working Wednesday on possible title bouts for heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano and Bobo Olson, the middleweight king.

Jim Norris, IBC president, told Syd Flaherty, Olson's manager, he would like to match the champ with Kid Gavilan at Miami, in March or April. Gavilan, the welterweight champion, lost a decision to Olson last April.

Norris also complicated the picture by saying he'd like to have Olson put his title on the line with Joey Giardello before the first of the year.

Norris said he talked with Al Weill, Marciano's manager, by telephone, and they agreed to confer in Miami next Thursday to go over the heavyweight situation. Weill is in San Francisco.

A SHADOW OF FATE—An anxious Terry Brennan, operating under a shadow of past Notre Dame coaches, casts one of his own on the field as the Irish bow to Purdue, 27-14. (NEA.)

LEAHY SWEATS, THAT'S ALL

Terry Goes It Alone In Irish Grid Season

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Win, lose or draw, young Terry Brennan is making the Notre Dame football team his full responsibility. There's no shadowy help from the old master, Frank Leahy.

Leahy, who retired at the end of last season, may be seen at every game — yelling himself hoarse and kicking up his ulcers. But no second guessing. No help from the sidelines.

"I think that's the way it should be," Brennan, Notre Dame's fledgling 26-year-old coach, said today. "It's my job now. I have to do it or not do it. There can be no compromise on it."

Brennan was attempting today to bring the fighting Irish back from a 27-14 defeat by Purdue.

Leahy was here. Friday he addressed a noon meeting of steel executives. He didn't attend the Notre Dame workout at Pitt stadium. He carefully avoided a press party Friday night at which coaches of both Notre Dame and Pitt were present.

WOULDN'T LOOK RIGHT

"I'd better not go," Leahy told friends who tried to persuade him to do so. "It may not look exactly right. It may look as if I'm trying to horn in."

This has been the former coaches attitude ever since he turned the team's reins over to his one-time star pupil. He hasn't kibitzed. But he is still sweating it out with his old team.

"I've never seen anything like it," one friend said. "At the Texas game Frank was beaming like a kid with a new toy, proud as he could be. At the Purdue game, he suffered. His shirt was wringing wet at the end of the game."

Gary Fletcher Takes School Swim Honors

Defending champion House Three successfully retained honors won last year at the eighth annual Victoria High School inter-house swimming gala Friday night at Crystal Garden.

Swimming before a noisy crowd of students, the defending titlists posted a total of 60 points to take honors in the gala. House Two was second with 54 points, House Four third at 33 and House One was far back with 19 points.

Star of the meet was Gary Fletcher of House Two, who triumphed in the senior boys' 100-yard freestyle and 50-yard breast stroke.

Top swimmers at the gala will represent Victoria High in the annual inter-high meet Oct. 22 at Crystal Garden.

Leonard Second In B.C. Open Golf

VANCOUVER (CP) — The $1,500 British Columbia Open Golf Tournament took on a United States hue Friday when John Langford of Beaverton, Ore., toured the Quilchena layout in 68 to move into a tie for first with defending champion Chuck Congdon of Tacoma, Wash.

Langford's 71 on the first 18 holes Thursday gave him a 36-hole total of 139, identical with Congdon, who covered the route in 70 Thursday and 69 Friday.

Second place had an international flavor—Stan Leonard of Vancouver's Marine Club deadlocked with Portland's Bob Duden with 140 totals.

Leonard, who carded a 74 on the first 18, turned in a sizzling 66 Friday, starting with a two-under-par 34 and coming in with a 32 on the final nine. Duden tallied a 68 Friday to go with his 72 the day before.

There was a crowd in No. 3 spot as amateur Doug Bajus of Vancouver with 72-70, Quilchena pro Bill Mawhinney, with 72-70, and Ken Towns of Fort Lewis, Wash., with a pair of 71s, were tied with 142 totals.

DROPS BACK

Thursday's leader, Ray Walker of Seattle, dropped into a tie with two others for fourth place when his 74 Friday gave him a total of 143. Sharing the berth with him were George Fuetz of Renton, Wash., 71-72—143, and Bob McKendrick of Portland, 71-72—143.

LEAFS, SMOKIES TIE

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) —Nelson Maple Leafs and Trail Smoke Eaters fought to a 4-4 tie in the first of a two-game exhibition series between the two WIHL hockey clubs. A last-minute goal by Lee Hyssop gave Nelson the tying marker.

Louisville Leads Little World Series

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Grand slam home runs by Norman Zauchin and Pete Daley paced Louisville Colonels of the American Association to a 14-9 victory over Syracuse Chiefs of the International League Friday night and a lead of three games to two in the best-of-seven little world series.

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

English Cricket Not So Healthy

LONDON (CP) — English cricket has just finished one of the most financially disastrous seasons in memory.

The 17 first-class county teams alone suffered losses estimated at $75,000 because of the monsoon-like, chill season.

Their hope now is pinned on club slices of profits from the Test series in Australia this winter. Individual club losses range from £400 at Yorkshire to Northamptonshire's £8,000-£9,000 deficit.

It was only a year ago that the British treasury gave cricket a big assist by removing the 33-per-cent entertainment tax. Other sports weren't so lucky. Then came this summer.

Surrey, which won the county championship for the third year running, reports that crowds were down this season by more than 125,000 compared with last year's attendance of 321,000.

Pakistan, which came to this country for the first time for a four-Test series, almost became the first visiting team ever to depart profitless.

Smythe Relinquishes Active Post With Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Conn Smythe, blunt, outspoken head of a hockey dynasty, quit his active career in the National Hockey League by saying his Toronto Maple Leafs aren't so hot this season.

A few minutes after the 61-year-old Smythe announced in Toronto Friday that he was retiring as manager of the Leafs he labelled the club thusly:

"They may end up fourth. The club isn't good defensively. It has not been good and it has to stiffen up and straighten out."

Other unsolicited opinions: Detroit Red Wings will win their seventh straight league title. Montreal should be second and Boston Bruins third. But no Stanley Cup for Detroit this time.

"They were life and death to do it last year and they haven't improved."

WINGS MEET RANGERS

Maybe so, but the Red Wings probably won't put much stock in it. They meet the untried New York Rangers at Detroit in one of three games tonight, strengthened by the fact they won the league opener 2-1 against the Leafs Thursday.

In the two others, Leafs are hosts to Chicago Black Hawks and Canadiens play the Bruins at Montreal.

Smythe said earlier this year he would give up active participation in hockey, but few figured he would drop full control for some time. He said Hap Day, one-time Leaf defenseman who became coach and then assistant manager, would take over as manager. King Clancy remains as coach.

ONLY A NAME

"As of now I am not manager of the Leaf club," Smythe commented. "I retain the title until next Feb. 1, but it's only a name.

Leafs Suspend Bentley

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs have asked the National Hockey League to place Max Bentley on the suspended list, Conn Smythe, retiring Leaf Manager said Friday.

He apparently balked at a contract and then tried to buy his release. Smythe suggested that the amount for such a favor might be heavy.

Connie Kegler Now, Sets New Pin Mark

By RON COULTER

In ice hockey or bowling, Connie McBeth shines.

The former Commercial League puck-chaser, who once earned a cup of coffee with the professional Victoria Cougars, has hung his ice skates up and switched his affection to the tenpin bowling game.

And, as he did in hockey, Connie more than holds his own at the alleys.

Wednesday night in Gibson's Comercial Tenpin League he was in fine form, posting singletons of 231, 219 and 191 for a league record 641 triple. His 231 single was also a new season mark.

Bob Proctor, 604; R. Douglas, 596; Hugh Bryan, 579, and Ed Simmons at 500 claimed other commendable triples.

Proctor, 224, 209; Jack Bacon, 214; W. Cairns, 212; Douglas, 211, 208; Bryan, 211, 202; Cas Sapala, 208; Rom Knott, 206; R. Glays, 205, and Cliff Steele and Jim John at 201 had high singles.

In mixed tens, Len Murrant, 595; Wilbur Webb, 550, and Fred Shaw at 548 had high totals. Webb fired a 220 singleton and Murrant a 212. Nora Motion paced the women with a 504 triple and 200 single. Duff Williams shot 491 total.

Roy Begg, 568; Ron Coulter, 552, and Alex McKeachie at 542 racked up top triples in Strathcona men's commercial action. Begg and McKeachie each hit for a 205 single.

★ ★ ★

Stan Bell fired singletons of 268, 311 and 317 for an 896 total to lead Capital City mixed five-pin keglers. Oscar Juckes tallied an 805 triple and 343 single.

Ken Smith, 802; Bob Bird, 768; George Brown, 764; Roy Campbell, 759; Eric Ware, 735; Cy Wallis, 720, and Doug Spruston with a 700 total topped the men's commercial section.

John Scoular pounded out a 733 triple and Bob Haimes a 700 in other men's action.

Ed Newman sniped a 784 three-game score in Gibson's mixed fives.

★ ★ ★

Gibson's Junior Kingpin Club swings into action Sunday afternoon at 12.45 at the alleys. The club is designed for youthful pin enthusiasts from six to 20 years of age and free instruction is given. Weekly score prizes and cash awards at the end of the season will be given.

All-star teams from the junior circuit will be chosen at the end of the season to represent Victoria in provincial championship matches against Vancouver teams.

★ ★ ★

Entries are still being accepted into the Capital City Fivepin Singles Classic. Bowlers have been divided into two divisions, A and B, and handicaps are used.

Any tenpinners planning to take in the annual American Bowling Congress tournament at Fort Wayne, Ind., next year should make entry applications now.

The tourney runs from March 26 through June 4, and reserved entries must be confirmed by Nov. 10. Some 3,159 team entries had been received to the end of September.

Entries and queries should be mailed to Lee Mitchell, 1955 ABC tournament supervisor, Memorial Coliseum, 4000 Parnell Avenue, Room 106, Fort Wayne 3, Ind.

ICE VETS QUIT

Taximen Face Player Problem

No team could lose players like Bernie Strongman, Toby Brown, Joe Evans, Ab Wiebe, Bill Reynolds and Phil Andrejkew and not notice their loss. But C & C Taxi, formerly Victoria Merchants, hope to forge a successful hockey year with a rebuilt team.

The Taximen are taking over the Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League franchise vacated by last year's Victoria Merchants team.

Evans, Strongman, Brown and Andrejkew have reportedly packed it up for good; Reynolds is busy building a house, while Wiebe will be playing for Clinton, New York. Back at Clinton, Wiebe will be playing with former Nanaimo players Ed Shamlock, Red Carr and Angie DeFelice.

However, manager Jack Deraugh reports the club will have seven holdovers, a group of players acquired from other teams and a hustling corps of young players up from the junior ranks.

No final decision has been reached on a coach for the club, but John Smith and Ron Bremner have alternated at running the club through preseason workouts.

HOLDOVERS

Holdovers from the Merchant era are goalie George Hall, who will be as good as any puck-blocker in the league if he can return to the brilliance of two and three years ago; defensemen Bremner, Ed Taylor and Bill Helgeson.

Two of the players picked up from other teams and a newcomer to the city have been put together to form what has been Merchants' best line in practices. Neil Standley and Del Brown, former Navy high-scorers, are working with newcomer Bob Jones on a speedy trio.

Ed Taylor, Helgeson and Berlyn Hodges may start the season as another forward threesome.

A fourth line will be chosen from Bremner, veteran Fred Deutcher, who is making a determined comeback after sitting out three years, and juniors Ken Cooper, Bill Kirby, Keith Lawrence and Bill Olson.

On the blue line, Taximen appear to have a solid selection for defensive chores. Hard-hitting Bob Seens is switching over from Victoria Vs and is battling with Murph Taylor, holdovers Arnold, Wood and McColl and Leon Goudal.

POPULATION HIGH

Waterfowl Migration Under Way

WINNIPEG (BUP)—Ducks Unlimited reported that the annual southward migration of wild fowl was under way in all three Prairie provinces today.

"The overall waterfowl population is at the same high level as last year," chief naturalist Bert W. Cartwright said. "Alberta up, Saskatchewan the same and Manitoba somewhat down."

The report stressed that excessive rains had filled water holes to capacity and inundated grain fields "many thousands of square miles." The continued high water levels saved a high percentage of the late hatch, the organization said.

Most impressive concentrations reported to date were those on Lake Winnipeg and York Factory on the Hudson Bay coast. The former involved large rafts of ducks, chiefly mallard and lesser scaup. The latter mentioned a tremendous migration of blue and snow geese.

German Horse To Run at Laurel

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Germany entered the developing picture of Laurel's international horse race today with Count V. R. Spreti agreeing to send over his four-year-old Baal for the Nov. 3 turf contest.

Entry of the four-year-old from the Waldfried Stable at Pahl, Oberbayern, in Western Germany, brings the number of potential starters to seven from four countries. Two more entries are expected from France.

Baal, a brown colt, joins the United States' High Gun and Determine, England's Landau and King of the Tudors, and Ireland's Northern Gleam and Zarathustra. Landau is from Queen Elizabeth's stable.

Hockey Past Earns Czech Quick Job

OTTAWA (CP)—Out of a job two days ago, Sid Janik may blaze new trails among Czech immigrants.

The 19-year-old youth is virtually assured of a hockey job, with an assist from the local Unemployment Insurance Commission office.

Janik arrived in Ottawa a few days ago looking for a job. Apparently, the commission had nothing for him but they noted his qualifications and sent him around to the Ottawa Auditorium.

There, they took one look at the strapping 170-pound, six-footer, asked a couple of questions and gave him a pair of skates.

"He looks like a very good prospect," said Butch Stahan, coach of Eastview St. Charles in the city junior A hockey league.

It seems Janik played defense with the Czechoslovakian national hockey team at the 1952 world championships in Stockholm. But he quit the team after the tournament and did not return home.

British Hockey Expands In Attempt to Lure Fans

LONDON (CP) — Britain is claiming the biggest hockey league of its class in the world.

J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, a leading spirit in British hockey, makes the claim for the new 12-team British Ice Hockey League, made up of four English and eight Scots teams.

The object is variety—and more fans.

"The fans have been asking for more teams," said Ahearne, secretary of the British Ice Hockey Association. "They claimed they were tired of five or six teams playing each other all winter.

"Well, we are giving them what they wanted. And while the public is notoriously fickle, we're keeping our fingers crossed."

Thus, the Canadian game that was imported to Britain commercially in the mid-30s again has reached the multi-team stage that the British sports fan gets in cricket, soccer and other main team attractions. After some hesitation about added traveling costs, England and Scotland have come together in a league involving two away trips for each team.

English league hockey had been moving closer and closer to extinction, after starting boldly 20 years ago with 11 teams. Five were left last year and Streatham, from South London, pulled out after winning the honors. The club claimed that it couldn't meet rising costs on its rink capacity of 3,000 fans.

Brighton, another league pioneer, wavered, withdrew, and then returned for a trial in the new league.

No other changes are planned. The English league brought back the red line last year in mid-season to speed play and it will stay. Team personnel will continue to be limited to 10 Canadians and two native-trained players.

Pay is expected to continue to run about £20 a week for good players and the calibre of competition is expected to continue to rate with good Canadian B hockey.

Ahearne sees a strong possibility that new ice arenas can be built at such provincial centres as Hull, Newcastle, Durham and Hastings — which would provide homes for future league teams.

Action in the new league opened Sept. 27. English teams are Brighton, Nottingham and Wembly and Harringay from London. Scottish entries are Edinburgh, Falkirk, Kirkcaldy, Ayr, Dundee, Perth, Dunfermline and Paisley.

What the Well-Dressed Gridder Will Wear or 'Pash Me the Mush'

NEW YORK (UP)—From the dental viewpoint what this country needs most at this time of year is a teeth-protector in the mouth of every football player.

Dr. Howard H. Dukes, spokesman for dentists who have just about achieved this goal in two counties in Kansas, told his professional brethern that both the parents of football players and the players themselves would be grateful for the effort, since teeth-protectors definitely save teeth.

Moreover, a successful campaign would end the autumnal mass "disheartening" of dentists. For every tooth cracked or kicked out on the gridiron, a dentist somewhere suffers for the reason that "a broken arm or leg will heal but a fractured tooth is a permanently disfiguring injury."

Reporting through the journal of the American Dental Association, he said members of the dental society for Wyandotte and Johnson counties, Kansas, were making lightweight plastic teeth-protectors at "nominal cost" for the players of the counties' 12 high school teams.

Parents are happy because the boys will retain their teeth through all scrimmages; the boys are happy because parents no longer object to their playing. "It is proving to be one of the best public relations projects this society has ever undertaken," he said.

He cited statistics that 86.3 per cent of all injuries to sports participants are to football players, and 53.9 per cent of all football injuries are to the face and teeth. But as of now, football uniforms protect the parts of the body least injured and don't protect the parts most hurt.

"It is imperative, therefore, that when the recruit is issued his first football uniform, he should be provided with some adequate means of mouth protection," he said. "A comfortable, well-fitting mouthpiece costs less than a pair of football shoes. It should become standard equipment."

The Kansas dentists are making tailor-made mouthpieces of the plastic, latex. They take only one impression—of the upper teeth—"pour" a model, and a dental laboratory completes the job.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Our Ask the Times editor received a rather unusual communication in the mail this morning.

The envelope contained nothing but a blank sheet of paper.

The Ask the Times editor says he believes it is from a subscriber who has nothing on his mind.

An Eastern newspaper reports that one of the major breweries has been experimenting in the field of atomic science.

They have recently tried atomic radiation of beer. Normally, the yeast action in the brewing of beer is stopped by heat. The brewmaster, who had been reading up on the various aspects of atomic energy, felt there was a possibility the action of gamma rays from cobalt 60 could also stop the yeast at the proper time.

Reporting in the Journal of the Institute of Brewing, the beer expert reported that irradiation does stop yeast action, but it also affects the flavor of the beer because it breaks down amino acids.

Also, it is too expensive.

So the brewery has abandoned atomic brewing.

I feel this is just as well. Wouldn't like to see the beer drinkers getting atomic ache.

It is very interesting to watch the Social Credit convolutions with regard to lotteries. Attorney-General Robert Bonner says he's for them, but he is speaking for himself, not for the government.

Public Works Minister Gaglardi says he's against them, but I'm not clear whether he's speaking as a member of the government, a minister, or a private individual.

As for the Attorney-General's position, I feel it is a little difficult to understand. I know if I asked a doctor's opinion about a cold, I would expect him to answer as a doctor, not as a mere man.

I rather think the federal government had a similar attitude, when they asked Mr. Bonner's opinion on lotteries, and I imagine they believed the reply they received came from the Attorney-General, not just plain Bob.

Anyway, the solution for the whole matter is simple. Let us follow tradition and have a petition and a plebiscite. Will it be legal to bet on the result?

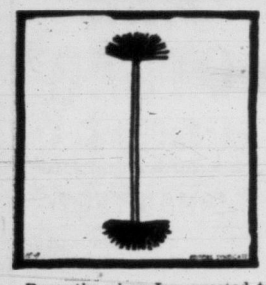
DROODLES



Recently when I suggested to the local board of education that droodling be made a required subject in all elementary schools they made some uncalled-for remarks and sent a truant officer around to take back my high school diploma. (I fooled him — I didn't have one). If you ask me, these people are full of duck soup. Children today spend too much time learning algebra, doing homework and listening to be-bop records. If they'd major in droodling they could go out into the world when they graduate and never have to worry about getting a job. They could start collecting unemployment insurance right away. As an Oriental philosopher once said, "Man who have droodle tatooed on arm can always laugh up sleeve." Think that over.

MISS M. JANE HALL

Jane Hall First City Candidate

Miss M. Jane Hall, Victoria business woman, today became the first candidate in the December civic elections.

She will seek one of the four aldermanic seats which come open this year.

Aldermen whose terms expire are: Frank Mulliner, Margaret Christie, Robert Macmillan and Arthur Dowell.

Miss Hall is the Canadian representative for a British firm which designs and manufactures woolen clothing for women. During the war, she was executive secretary to the shipbuilding manager of Victoria Machinery Depot.

She is an active member of the Victoria Business and Professional Women's Club, and has held several offices in it, as well as serving as chairman of many committees. Miss Hall was regional director of the Vancouver Island Business and Professional Women's clubs for three years.

She was born in London, England, and came to Canada as a small child. She was educated at Girls' Central School, Victoria High School, and business colleges.

She served in the advertising department of The Victoria Daily Times for a 15-year period.

RESPONSIBILITY

In announcing her candidacy, Miss Hall said: "I am thankful for our many freedoms, including the freedom to think and speak and vote as one chooses. I am deepfully grateful for freedom, and resolved I have a responsibility to the community.

"Women have a natural ability in matters of education, social services, and welfare. Surely it is logical they should be given an opportunity to prove their mettle."

Miss Hall enters the civic field in an "off year" election. The present mayor of Victoria's term has another year to run.

Also in office for another year will be Aldermen Brent Murdoch, William Pinfold, Millard Mooney and Geoffrey Edgelow.

Juveniles Admit Wave of Thefts

Boys Arrested After Downtown Chase Following Midnight Robbery on Fort

Police arrested two juveniles early today after a break-in at Neon Products Ltd., 947 Fort Street. Deputy Chief Harry Mercer said the arrests are expected to clear up several unsolved burglaries in the city in recent weeks.

Two 15-year-old boys were observed acting suspiciously on Mears Street at 12.40 a.m. As officers approached the pair ran. One was later found hiding behind a shed.

Police said the boy confessed to entering Neon Products Ltd., which was later found to be completely ransacked but nothing was thought to be missing.

Information obtained from the captured youth led police to apprehension of a second boy at his home. The pair then admitted to several other recent burglaries, according to police.

Placed overnight in detention, the boys were brought before Magistrate H. C. Hall this morning on a charge of forcing entry to the Neon building. They were remanded for further court hearings next week.

Youths Remanded For Sentence on Garage Robbery

Two youths were remanded for sentence pending probation officers' reports when they appeared in Oak Bay police court Friday in connection with a recent robbery at Hitchman Garage, 2554 Cadboro Bay Road.

Grant Rutledge, 706 Craigflower Road, earlier pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and theft. He is also awaiting appearance in Saanich court Thursday on a charge of theft of tools.

Keith D. Allen, 1875 Feltham Road, pleaded guilty to being an accessory in the garage robbery in that he transported a quantity of tires in a car he was driving. Both will appear in Oak Bay court again on Friday.

Island AAs Gather Here For Big Rally

About 150 delegates were arriving in Victoria today for the fourth Vancouver Island rally of Alcoholics Anonymous over the week-end.

Most Island centres will be represented. Delegates are also here from the B.C. Mainland, Alberta and the United States.

The rally program will open with a turkey dinner tonight for AA members and their wives or husbands in Lougheed's Banquet Club.

Highlight of the Thanksgiving holiday agenda is an open meeting to be held Sunday at 2.30 p.m. in the Metropolitan Church at which J. George Strachan executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of Alberta, and noted student on alcoholism, will be the guest speaker.

Victoria's mayor will be chairman of the church meeting.

Commonwealth Role Seen Vital To World Peace

The vital role played by a united Commonwealth in striving for the peace of the world was described by Viscount Swinton to a meeting of Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs in Empress Hotel Friday.

The British secretary of state for Commonwealth relations said he had never known a closer unity between Commonwealth nations than now exists.

"The sovereign independence of the Commonwealth's parts is easy to explain and understand," he said. "But it is less easy to explain and define the unity. I suppose it stems from a common outlook and way of life. But the symbol and focus of that unity is the crown."

Spring Start for New Solarium

Plans Revised on Children's Hospital in Gordon Head

A revision in plans for a proposed new Queen Alexandra Solarium on Arbutus Road, in Gordon Head, likely will permit a start on construction next spring, it was learned today.

Trustees of the Solarium board met this week to review curtailment of some of the bed space, with no major changes in the treatment and administration arrangements.

The idea is to bring costs down to a level that will permit an actual start on the project, still a $600,000-plus proposition.

The Solarium was left $156,156 in the will of Bernard Stone, who died July 2, but another $500,000 is needed. A fund-raising campaign will be launched in the fall or early spring.

Construction plans have been drawn by Sharp and Thompson, Berwick, Pratt, and Charles E. Craig. It is expected a contract will be let by the beginning of the year.

Contract for a $300,000 supermarket to be built on Quadra Street at Hillside Avenue for Safeway Stores Ltd. is about to be awarded, according to architects Whittaker & Wagg.

Selected tenders were invited this week, and with elapse of the customary three weeks for figuring by contractors, the job should be let by the end of the month. Many new innovations for self-service will be incorporated in the store's layout. The Safeway property extends from the Quadra frontage through to Fifth Street, and because of the nature of the ground, considerable concrete piling will be necessary to reach rock for the foundations.

TENDERS CLOSE

Tenders will close in Ottawa Oct. 28 at 3 p.m. for remodelling of the old customs house and marine building on Wharf Street as headquarters for HMCS Malahat, Victoria's RCN Reserve division. The entire interior of the old building will be ripped out and rebuilt.

Patterson Construction Ltd., with $200,000 worth of apartments now building, is reported to have the contract to construct a two-story, seven-suite apartment at Oak Bay Avenue and Amphion Street for Joseph Politano. Architects are Clack and Clayton.

George H. Wheaton Ltd. has begun work on the propane gas plant for the B.C. Electric on Pembroke Street. W. R. Menzies and Co. Ltd. will install boilers. Three permits totaling $25,000 have been taken out for the job.

Victoria architects Whittaker and Wagg have been commissioned to make working drawings for a $200,000 hospital at Skidegate, Queen Charlotte Islands.

Farmer Construction Ltd. will reconstruct the Imperial Oil Co. service station at 812 Wharf Street.

Thirty permits representing a value of $192,040, including 14 residences to cost $173,500, were issued in Oak Bay in September by Ken Cunningham, building inspector. Total value of the 252 permits issued to date this year in Oak Bay, including 113 for homes, is $1,724,017, an increase of $100,000 over that of the corresponding period last year.

City Sending Delegates to Labor Meeings

At least 12 Victoria officials of local AFL-TLC unions will attend two important provincial labor conventions in Vancouver next week.

First parley will be the Provincial Council of Carpenters, to start Monday. To attend from here are E. T. Staley, executive secretary of the council; Victor Midgley, Island representative for the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; Art Leam, president of Victoria Local 1598; James Moffat, business manager for the Victoria local, and Ernest Oliver, zone representative.

The B.C. Trades Union Congress convention will start next Wednesday. Most of the Victoria carpenters' officials attending their parley will also be at the TUC meetings.

Other Victorians to attend the TUC convention are Thomas Gooderham, Pacific Coast region TLC representative; Robert Barrie, president of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council; Percy Rayment, council secretary; Charles Peck and Ed Balma for the electricians; Earl Allen for laborers; Don Bushell for painters and decorators and Joe Broadwell, firemen's local.

North Lighthouse Ship Takes Station Here

CGS Alexander McKenzie, lighthouse tender which normally operates out of Prince Rupert, arrived in Victoria today to start a spell of duty on the West Coast of Vancouver Island.

She will replace CGS Estevan temporarily, while the veteran tender is laid up for engine repairs.

Master of the Prince Rupert ship is Capt. Norman McKay.

FUTURE AIR WAR?

Solandt Sees Guided Bombs, Not Warplanes

Guided explosive missiles may one day replace fighter aircraft in Canada's air force, Royal Roads cadets were told Friday by the nation's top research scientist, Dr. Omond M. Solandt, Defense Research Board chairman.

He didn't expect the change to take place within his lifetime but the chairman felt cadets would see ground-to-air missiles assume the role of fighters.

Cadets were cautioned by the scientist to take a broad view on world events because "no one can truly foresee the basis of another war."

Should there be another world war, however, it would be "greatly different from the wars of the past," he said.

"Within a very short time we will have to face the possibility of attack on this continent by aircraft flying at near supersonic speeds," said Dr. Solandt.

"The problem now is to develop a plane which is able not only to fly at supersonic speeds, but also to fight at that speed."

He described some of the recent advances in fast aircraft, emphasizing those capable of flying at twice the speed of sound, which is nearly 1,500 miles an hour.

But aircraft armaments have developed very little since the war, he said.

"There is an urgent need for improving the effectiveness of air armament," the chairman pointed out. "The best answer is guided missiles."

They can be operated as simply as a television set picking up an image impulse and can be built to fly toward an object which is thus detected, said Dr. Solandt.

Research Board has done work with ground-to-air, air-to-air, passive and active homing missiles, which the scientist described. He said there are several simple ways to control missiles, but that there are none in use in Canada.

China's Reds Take Orders From Moscow

So-called "native" Chinese communists are actually under close control of the "international Reds, who take their orders from Moscow, an audience of 500 members of Victoria's Chinese community was told in the Rio Theatre Friday night.

The speaker was Chao Kingching, 26, one of five ex-communist soldiers who, as POW's, chose to return to democracy. The five are now on a goodwill tour of North America in an effort to increase support and understanding for the Nationalists.

The former officer said presence of Russian advisers at strategic points gives China little hope of shaking off the Russian "yoke."

Kae Cheng-Chung, 24, who served in both Red and Nationalist armies, told the audience he believes victory would be on the side of the Nationalists in future fighting. He compared life in the two armies, and maintained the difference in morale would assure victory for Nationalists.

Youth Runs Away After Crashing Stolen Auto

Police searched basements and bush areas in the vicinity of Bay and Quadra at 9.30 a.m. today after a youth crashed a car then opened the door and ran.

The car had been stolen Thursday from in front of Gibson's Bowling Alley and was owned by W. Jenkins, 204 Skinner.

Witnesses to the incident said the car had collided with the parked car of L. Richardson, 928 Bay, but damage was not heavy.

The youth was said to be wearing a wine jacket and dark trousers. He had dark hair.

ASK The TIMES

Q. After whom was Mount Robson, highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, named? J.W.

A. The Cyclopedia of Canada says of that 13,068-foot peak, "The origin of the name is in doubt." In the Washington Historical Quarterly, 1928, there was an article titled, "The Name of Mount Robson a Puzzle." It was from pen of Prof. Edmond S. Meany, a well-known writer on the history of this coast of the continent.

Q. Could you please tell me if Robert W. Service is still alive? If not, when and where did he die and where was he buried?
—Mrs. W.J.C.

A. Robert W. Service celebrated his 80th birthday last spring by publishing an anniversary book of poems. Just off the press last week is another by Service, "Rhymes Of An Old Codger." He lives on the Riviera. He was born at Preston, Eng., Jan. 16, 1874. From his marriage there is one daughter.

700 CANVASSERS START OUT MONDAY

Red Feather Women on March

Over 700 volunteer Community Chest canvassers of the residential division will begin visiting householders throughout Greater Victoria at 9 a.m. Monday.

It will be the women's chance to outdo the men, officials explained. Most of the residential canvassers are women.

The industrial-commercial, special names armed forces and civic service canvass which started last Monday has been carried out mostly by male canvassers. With the drive 38 per cent completed as regards duration, only 18 per cent of the $203,000 target has been subscribed.

Home canvassers will make an individual appeal to housewives and retired people who it is felt may want to give even if other members of the household have subscribed at their places of employment.

Seventeen welfare and city service agencies depend on the drive to carry their activities forward for another year.

HEADLINES OF THE WEEK

By STAN DAVISON

CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE WHITTAKER

("A Slight Case of Murder," a fantasy inspired by citizens' answers to public-opinion polls on legalized sweepstakes for Canada.)

In view of the recent agitation for the repeal of the Criminal Code, and particularly the section dealing with murder, a reporter was assigned today to test public reaction to the proposal.

It has been pointed out by proponents of repeal that the law against murder has not succeeded in stamping out murder; there have been a number of murders in Canada this year. The law is obviously unenforceable.

Whittaker

Even those who are sure that they wouldn't commit murder themselves say that they would give the other fellow a chance to do so, under an honest, government-supervised plan.

SOME POINTED OUT that murder was about the average wage-earner's only chance to get his hands "on a sizeable piece of change."

Mrs. John Doe, of 606 Jones Street, said: "A man doesn't have to murder if he doesn't want to, same as he doesn't have to drink whisky. But I believe in letting him do what he wants to do. You can't stop murder anyway, so why not legalize it?"

Richard Roe, 202 Smith Street, said: "It might be all right if you could stop murder altogether, but we can't so we might as well have it legal, where the government can issue licenses and keep an eye on things."

SOME GOVERNMENT and civic leaders pointed to the weight of public opinion in favor of repealing unenforceable legislation. One spokesman said that many people would support murder as a useful means of ridding the state of undesirable elements, and by their opinions indicate lack of support for the Criminal Code. He said that he personally was opposed to murder but he thought that objective examination of the murder question was needed.

Another government leader took an opposite attitude declaring, in effect, but although public opinion was undoubtedly a great power, it had not, as yet, achieved the miracle of converting a morally wrong practice into a right and proper one.

OBVIOUSLY A MINORITY voice, this citizen felt that while it was true that "people cannot be legislated into being good," it was necessary nevertheless that the state recognize, in its Criminal Code, the difference between right and wrong.

"This is just as important" he said, "in the question of murder as it is, for instance, in the question of lotteries and gambling."

'Exclusive' Truth Basis of Conflict?

MONTREAL (BUP)—Sir Sarvelpalli Radhakrishnan, vice-president of India and president of UNESCO, pleaded Saturday night for internationalism in religion as well as in politics.

The world-famous philosopher told an audience of 1,500 at McGill University that no religion which claims exclusive truth can be a peaceful influence.

"We can't have religious quarrelling as nations do," Radhakrishnan said. "If religions claim exclusive truth, conflict is inevitable."

The Indian scholar made it clear that he was not in favor of uniformity.

"Religion," he said, "draws strength and vitality from its diversity. If all think alike—no one thinks. What is needed is unity without uniformity.

Sir Sarvepalli's formula for a universal religion would "satisfy the intellect since no religion which is in conflict with the demands of reason can survive. "But religion must also transcend reason."

Even scientists, Radhakrishnan said, cannot deny the facts of religious experience.

$71,000 Campaign Will Help College

Victoria presbytery of the United Church of Canada has undertaken to raise $71,000 to provide renovations and a financial reserve for Union Theological College on the campus of UBC.

Delegates to presbytery, meeting this week at Port Alberni, heard Dr. W. S. Taylor outline the needs of the college and appointed a committee to plan a campaign to share in the drive for a total of $400,000 by the end of 1955.

Rev. William Buckingham, chairman of presbytery, reported on the recent General Council held at Sackville, N.B.

Mr. Buckingham stressed inadequacy of missionary giving within the church.

He said that donations for mission purposes of the 869,000 members amounted to an average of 30c per member per week for the year 1953.

Of the total given to the Missionary and Maintenance fund, five per cent of the members gave half, 58% gave nothing whatever.

The church increased its membership by 20,000 last year, where total giving in 1953 was $33,500,000, an increase of 250% over the church budget 10 years ago.

Miss Alice Mair, above, senior physio-therapist at the Cerebral Palsy Clinic in Royal Jubilee Hospital, is holding Wendy who waits her turn at the parallel bars. Patricia, left, is now walking but her gait is being improved through use of the parallel bars and a centre board that assists in improving what is termed a scissors gait in which the legs become crossed. Susan, at right, shows how well she is now managing to walk. She is using steps provided to strengthen muscles of hips and knee and to teach child to asses height.

Susan is a newcomer to the clinic. Her bright smile tells you how exciting it is for her to try and use the parallel bars.

AT TOP—Children enjoying pool therapy at the clinic. This is of great value in achieving relaxation, because of the warmth of the water and because the pull of gravity is reduced and the child finds the movement in water much less of an effort than on dry land. Bottom, left to right, five-finger co-ordination is acquired by Cherie as she strings beads. In this way she learns to do up buttons and tie her shoelaces as other children her age do; David has been ill a lot and unable to play very much so he enjoys painting and crayoning with the other children; Richard is learning to use his hands in playing with a peg-stand. Cerebral palsy children learn to use their hands through playing with toys. Later, they learn to feed and dress themselves. Richard can now pick up buttons and put them through a slot, he can eat a cookie by himself and blow bubbles through a straw. He loves to try and paint.

On the Eve of Thanksgiving Day . . .

It is well to pause and give thanks for those unselfish, warm-hearted volunteers who work untiringly to help others . . . without fanfare and without praise. It is through their efforts that much-needed equipment is found to help in bringing the sick back to health and to assist in making frail little bodies healthy and strong. Such a group is the Cerebral Palsy Association of Greater Victoria, who have worked tirelessly to establish a small clinic in the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

AT TOP—Earline and Maureen have fun on the tumbling mattresses used to prevent children from hurting themselves when they fall. Earline who took her first walking steps only a few weeks ago is now beginning to climb wall bars which help to strengthen thin arm and leg muscles. Maureen, one of the younger children attending the clinic, is acquiring trunk and head balance, initial step in learning to walk. BELOW—Two older children playing ball as they learn hand co-ordination. The little girl has just learned to bounce a ball.

Most of the equipment in the clinic has been made by parents of the children with the assistance of certain companies who have donated required materials. At present 28 children are being treated in this clinic and the need for full-time operation is indicated by an active waiting list.

The aims of treatment in the clinic is to prevent contractures and deformities; to induce relaxation of spastic muscles; to strengthen weak muscles and to educate movement and to improve co-ordination and balance.

Victims of cerebral palsy fortunately can be assisted considerably by consistent treatment in physio-therapy, speech and occupational therapy and many of these children can be trained to lead normal lives and to take their rightful places in the community.

Assisting Miss Alice Mair, senior physio-therapist, is Mrs. Kathleen Stone, physio-therapist, who helps with treatment of children in the homes, and Miss Marie Crickmay, speech therapist.

Jeanne is very pleased that she has been able to learn to skip since attending the clinic. This enables her to join other children her age in play. It is very important for these children to be able to do the things other children do. Jeanne wishes to be a dancer some day.

Wax Doll Birthday Candles Popular at Kiddies' Party

By PENNY SAVER

A birthday cake's a birthday cake in any kid's language, and as long as it's got lots of gooey icing and is a pretty color, the youngsters will dub you a "good cook."

But why not let your kiddies have an extra special birthday cake, and instead of using the regular stick-like candles on it, buy the new, cherub type? Little girls, particularly, will like this idea, but I know that little boys go for them, too.

The little pink dolls stand about two or two and a half inches high (I didn't have a ruler with me), and you attach them to the cake with toothpicks.

Little guests will love to take a candle dolly home as a souvenir of the party. There's little fear of the wax candles melting out of shape, for you know, mother, how long birthday candles stay alight. Junior's only too anxious to blow them all out with a great puff and make that wish come true!

Price for a packet of eight of the cuties is only 45 cents.

Dangling bits of mother of pearl make fashionable earrings, and there are countless designs to choose from.

I spotted a great array of such earrings in a local store, and was truly fascinated with what I saw.

For example can you recall the old-fashioned oriental wind bells, that some folks used to hang on their veranda? Well, there was one pair of mother of pearl earrings that was a direct copy of one of these. Oblong bits of mother of pearl dangled from a circular piece which hung from the earring base. A tall woman with strong features could make these earrings look tremendous, but if you're little . . . forget them.

Other designs included moon-shaped bits, leaves and circles and one set worthy of note was formed from two large hoops, each having a tiny mother of pearl rooster dangling in the centre. Price for all earrings is $2.50.

In Step With Style

BY KITTY DIXON

The clans are gathering again! Tartans, bright and plentiful, are turning many a Victoria shop window, fabric counter and ready-to-wear department into a festival of rich color, for tartans are to fall what robins are to spring.

Unlike today, when few men wear tartans, originally tartans were worn only by male members of a clan. So since they have become an important feminine fall-fashion influence, some women have found many of the patterns too large for the small figure.

With these women in mind, a Canadian textile mill has reduced the patterns to about one-quarter of their usual size, to give a slimming effect to garments such as slacks, jackets, dresses and skirts. The smaller size is also better suited to children's clothing, and matching seams becomes less of a problem for home-sewers and manufacturers alike.

The second innovation is an addition to the fibre traditionally used in weaving. Since pleats and tartans are as inseparable and the kilt and the Highlands, "Orlon" acrylic fibre has been added to the wool to make the pleats more durable and completely washable.

BLACK WATCH FAVORED

Woven of a half-and-half blend of "Orlon" and wool, this new range consists of nine tartants most favored by Canadians. There is the tartan of the 42nd Highland Regiment, known as the Black Watch, and the popular green and maroon tartan of the Lindsay clan, the red and green MacGregor, the Stewart and the Dress Stewart, the MacLaine, the Hunting MacKinnon, the Gordon and the Dress Gordon.

Light weight and easy to handle, miniature tartan is the perfect dress fabric. Jumpers, too, are figure flattering, when made of it and for light weight but warm sportshirts, what could be better?

The new, scarab-line jacket, introduced to London's fall fashion by designer John Cavanagh, follows the outline of that sacred symbol of ancient Egypt, the scarab beetle. It has a flat front and bloused back effect, the jacket curving in a half-moon from the rounded shoulders to just below the waist.

Wear it over a straight, short dinner dress.

College and business girls alike are fashionably dressed for leisure hours, in Bermuda shorts . . . abbreviated pedal pushers, I call them.

For fall wear, they are best worn with wooly knee socks . . . the kind we used in elementary school.

Like it or not, it's the fashion. Personally, I prefer a change.

The cummerbund has slipped. Oh, it's still popular as a waist-cincher, as seen last season, but now that hipline influence is so stressed, a low, hip-hugging sash has appeared. Accent is the knot and ends of the sash which are seen low on the left side.

The pink lame jacket, above, illustrates the new scarab line. It is fur-lined with sapphire basserisk.

TEEN FUN BY THE BUS LOAD

TEEN ETIQUETTE

By KITTE TURMELL

Here comes the bus. Step right up, teen-ager. Here rolls your ride to school, football game, class field-trip, club outing. Away you go! You'll have more fun by the bus-load if you go along with these TEEN-TIPS FOR BUS-TRIPS.

Girls enter first, boys follow. For this, school-bus drivers give the courteous cue, even before teens. Usually, you leave bus in order in which seated, or as driver directs, to expedite the exit. When all pile out for school, the date-style courtesy whereby boy leaves first, turns back to offer a girl a helping hand for safe step-down, is rare! But that's still correct date-procedure for public-bus travel!

When you board your school bus, you're "in the club." This is a friendly group. Most say "Hi"; "Good-bye." You sit where you like. You talk to anyone close by. This is the easy way to meet the new boy around the corner, the girl who lives a mile down the road. To be on the same bus, daily, is automatic introduction.

School-bus drivers say that young people are the world's best travelers. No "hollers" against teen-agers from them! They like your generation, know how to get along with you. For that they are high-tested before given the job to keep you safe, happy as they transport you to and from school or on school-sponsored outings.

FOR SCHOOL-BUS COURTESY, here are some pointers:

Be ready five minutes before bus is due. Honks, mad dash, door-bangs will not endear you to sleepy neighbors or clock-watching parents.

Drivers' schedules are geared to get you to school on time. Delay of even one minute per stop adds up.

If your bus-stop is away from home, respect private property at that meeting-place. Keep off the grass. Quiet, please. You're a passing guest, not a homesteader.

Be friendly to your driver. Don't scrimp smiles, thank-you's. But skip chit-chat. On duty it's against rule for driver to be "unduly familiar" with any passenger.

Treat your driver as one in charge with complete authority, like the captain of a ship. He is responsible by law for safe passage, correct conduct of all aboard, between "ports"—home and school. What he says, goes! No mutiny on the "School Bus Bounty." If somebody starts pranks, you teen-agers can calm things down before they get out of hand. You want to ride, not riot!

Take pride in your bus. It's "public property." "Hold-that-tiger" urge to cut initials, scrawl names. The unwanted autograph is the mark of the vandal.

Keep your bus clean. No sneak-eating because you got up too late for breakfast. Leave no gum-wads or scraps that somebody has to "stay after school" to remove before next run. Don't toss out trash for city clean-up squads, tidy farmers to pick up.

Shush the sound-effects in traffic. Drivers are tested for good hearing, but how can they hear the siren to pull over to curb if you blare like a Dixieland band?

Harvest-Hued Blooms Deck Church For Fallis-Collis Wedding Today

A profusion of deep, harvest-toned chrysanthemums and asters decorated Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Oak Bay, this afternoon, for a charming wedding ceremony which united in marriage Elizabeth Margaret Collis with Marvin Lewis Fallis.

Father McNamara conducted the ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Collis, 2334 Bowker Avenue, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fallis, 1330 Bond Street. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

The attractive, fair-haired bride was a picture in her wedding gown of heavy embossed satin, the full skirt swirling to waltz-length. Sleeves were lily-pointed and the dainty, rolled neckline was pearl-encrusted. She wore a Juliet cap, sprinkled with tiny pearls to hold her chapel veil and she carried a bouquet of Talisman roses and heather. Her jewelry was a pearl necklace, gift of the groom, and pearl earrings.

Mrs. Lorna Ritchie was matron of honor, wearing a waltz-length gown of grey-green iridescent taffeta, matching hat and bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Delors Fallis, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and wore a gown of silver-green iridescent taffeta and carried a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Bernard Clarkson was best man and ushers were Robert Cote, Arthur Collis, brother of the bride, and Richard Cote.

Reception was held at the Swiss Harbor House where Reginald Colbert proposed a toast to the bride. Pale yellow roses decorated the wedding cake and autumn-toned flowers were placed around the room.

For receiving guests, Mrs. Collis wore a two-piece dress of Manhatten blue with navy accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds. Mother of the groom wore a light blue suit with navy accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

Following the reception, the newlyweds left for a southern motor trip, the bride traveling in a forest green woolen dress with matching hat, cobra accessories and muskrat jacket. She wore a gardenia corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Fallis will live at 1645 Earle Street, Victoria.

Bride Wears Crepe Gown In Afternoon Ceremony

A bridal gown of fine white crepe, having sweetheart neckline, lily point sleeves and a circular skirt, sweeping in deep folds to full-length, was worn, this afternoon by Marguerite Mabel Watson, daughter of Mrs. Emily Watson, 1351 Harrison Street, and the late David Watson, for her marriage to Robert Gordon Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Neal, Messingham, Lincolnshire, Eng.

The bride's headdress was a coronet of opalescent sequins which held a filmy, fingertip veil, lightly sprinkled with brilliants. She carried a crescent of pink roses and stephanotis. Her brother-in-law, Jack Dallimore, gave her in marriage.

Rev. E. G. Munn performed the ceremony in St. Barnabas' Church, which was decorated with white flowers for the occasion.

Miss Elsie Watson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a full-length gown of apricot lace and tulle and carrying a bouquet of bronze chrysanthemums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joan Smitherman and Miss Thelma Hopkins, who were gowned in similar dresses of tulle over taffeta, having embroidered flowers of silk floss on the full skirts and necklines. Shades worn were apple-blossom pink and forget-me-not blue, respectively. Both carried bouquets of tawny pink chrysanthemums and all three attendants wore headdresses of flowers and tulle to match their gowns.

Best man was Phillip Neal, brother of the groom, and ushers were Sidney Phillips and Ralph Phillips.

Reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where the couple cut a three-tier wedding cake trimmed with pink roses, flanked by pink carnations in silver vases and centering a lace-covered table. Charles Dallimore proposed the toast to the bride.

Before making their home at 1745 Fairfield Road, the newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in Seattle, Wash.

The bride chose a going-away dress of navy silk with pearl-encrusted collar, cerise velvet hat, smoke blue topcoat, navy accessories and corsage of pink rosebuds.

Floral Setting At Home Wedding

A quiet home wedding was celebrated recently, when Violet Kathleen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Finbow, became the bride of Stanley Robert Fraser, in a ceremony conducted by Canon R. Willis. White gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums made a lovely setting for the charming bride, who was gowned in white embossed organdy and wore a finger-tip veil caught to her head with a coronet of rhinestones and lily of the valley.

For something borrowed she wore a necklace of diamonds and emeralds, a family heirloom. Entering the room on her father's arm, she carried a small white Bible, topped with a gardenia and red rosebuds.

Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Lily Finbow, who was dressed in copper colored taffeta and wore a yellow corsage. V. B. Hanford was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Fraser will make their future home in Vancouver.

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Richmond Leave For Honeymoon Trip to Honolulu

A honeymoon in Honolulu is in store for Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Graeme Richmond, whose wedding took place this afternoon in Oak Bay United Church.

The bride, lovely Margaret Isobel Usher, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Usher, 2596 Cavendish Avenue, wore a bridal gown of blush satin, the graceful floor-length skirt featuring inserts of delicate rose-point lace. The fitted bodice of matching lace over blush satin was styled with square neckline and sleeves were cap style. The bride's elbow-length gloves were also of rosepoint lace. A Juliet cap embroidered with pearls held her fingertip veil of blush net illusion and she wore a three-strand pearl necklace with matching bracelet and earrings. Her bouquet was a crescent of white carnations and ivy leaves.

Dr. W. W. McPherson conducted the ceremony for Miss Usher and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Richmond, Hollyburn, B.C. Dr. T. H. Johns was soloist and Mrs. Vera Barclay played traditional wedding music on the organ. The bride's father gave her in marriage.

Pink and white chrysanthemums with ivy strands decorated the church for the service.

Bridal attendants, Miss Helen Usher and Miss Evelyne Usher, were gowned identically in dresses of pale blue taffeta, iridescent with pink. Gowns were styled with Empire waistlines and softly gathered folds over the shoulders. Skirts swirled in full circles to floor length. Their bouquets were of rose-hued chrysanthemums and they wore matching hair bandeaux.

Little Miss Barbara MacNeill, flower girl, wore a frock identical to those worn by the bridesmaids and carried a basket of rose chrysanthemums.

Barrie Sones was best man and ushers were Kenneth MacNeill and David Sinclair.

Fred N. Scofield proposed the toast to the bride at the reception, held in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Guests were received by mother of the bride, who wore a dress of amethyst silk organza over rose taffeta with rose feathered hat. Mother of the groom wore a gown of soft grey net over dusty pink crepe, with grey and pink accessories. Both wore corsages of pink roses with white heather.

For traveling on honeymoon, Mrs. Richmond donned a blue wool crepe dress in princess style, with matching blue boucle coat, having a shawl collar. Her hat and purse were of heather pink velour and other accessories were black. Pink roses and heather formed her corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Richmond will live at Criss Creek Ranch, Savona, B.C.

6 IN MEMORIAM

KING—In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Nettie J. King, who passed away October 9, 1949.

Five years have passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Greta, son-in-law Fred.

THACKRAY—In loving memory of my brother, George F. Thackray, who passed away on October 11, 1953.

He bade no one a last farewell,
He said good-bye to none;
The heavenly gates were opened wide,
A loving voice said, "Come."

—Fondly remembered by his loving sister, Wyn.

THACKRAY—In loving memory of my husband, Geo. F. Thackray, who passed away October 11, 1953.

The face I loved is now laid low,
His loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.

I often sit and think of him
When I am all alone;
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.

—Remembered by his wife, Vi, and Robert.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1954

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—This is your day quickly to contact everyone with whom you wish to come to a meeting of minds for future success. Make sure you state your views definitely. Then conclude agreements.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Keeping your attention focused upon money, accounts, statements, collections, insurance, taxes makes possible getting obligations behind you, building up big reserve.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—Friends and attachments are good for you now, so communicate with them, entertain those close at hand; give all assurance of your devotion to them. Make sure you keep light-hearted, merry with them. Be happy.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Unusually good day to pitch in on all tasks awaiting your personal attention; make sure you adopt more efficient modes for labor it's your duty to perform. Be alert to needs of associates also.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 22)—Your mind is working overtime analyzing, discriminating, learning; this is fine, for you can absorb right ideas with great facility; decide principles under which you want to operate, then get companions' approval.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Quietly perfecting your calendar for coming weeks requires you exercise some self-control not to go on tangent, but it's well worth while. Use your talents for making every detail exactly right.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Very alert partner is needling you to get started in that new arrangement that has been attracting your attention, interest. Be truly co-operative, forceful and new benefits flow from all directions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Being of service to others vitally important today when you want to get out from under responsibilities you accepted willingly at one time; however, being helpful opens inspired ideas for handling your duties.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Now you have some wonderfully inspired creative ideas that need to be turned immediately into down-to-earth expressions if you are to get ahead as fast as the opportunity presents itself. Be forceful, dynamic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—All kinds of interesting events come into open; stop trying so hard to work angles on first glimpse of new beginnings that evidence themselves. Sit back, let the full picture be apparent. Then accept what you want now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—You are so loaded with brilliant ideas that you hardly know where to start utilizing them; just so you do make initial sensible beginnings many benefits flow your way.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—This is your day to keep your mind single-tracked on new ways to increase property, possessions, bank account, cash-in-hand now yours. Realizing big abundance follows careful study of new outlets.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

Monday's child is one of those interesting children who will be "all over the place." You will have no boredom with your offspring, since there is the desire to dash constantly hither and thither, and it is up to you to channel these energies wisely and intelligently if your progeny is to be the great success that is possible but which only comes through seeing every plan, every venture, every undertaking through to the final result. Upon this depends your child's happiness, success. Be firm, apply discipline gently, firmly.

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1954

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—Last night's full moon is still operative; see that you sit back, calmly analyze all relations with others; eliminate those unproductive, knit those more closely that are desirable. Hold your flaring temper.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Making sure you are doing job right where uninteresting but necessary tasks are concerned brings out your bull-dog, purposeful characteristics that bring deep respect from others. Plod away.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Seeking improvement where your relations with friends, attachments to whom you are drawn may be involved shows them you really are worth their desirable friendship and they iron out differences with you today. Show appreciation.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21)—Doing your job well, either at home or in world of outside activity, brings increased aid from whoever is watching; you are tempted to go off on tangent, which would be most unwise, lessen your good name.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Considerable mental activity can be wishful thinking unless you get set along lines found satisfactory in past; be especially careful on highway, with companions, or estrangement quickly occurs.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Have you taken a new look at where you are headed financially, property-wise, in line with modern efficiencies? Your assets can increase by applying streamlined methods, but you have to delve into them, make decisions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Your whole day concerns others, problems confronting your joint relationships that must be quickly ironed out now or some bad feelings can result. Get rid of this by being co-operative, showing others where they are vital to you.

SCORUIA (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—Your mind is too busily engaged thinking out ways to get out of irksome chores that are really your job; spend half that force in doing them and they are quickly behind you. Watch out for sudden highway accidents.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—You ricochet between good judgment, poor hunches; between saving money, spending on useless pleasures try to balance your activities by keeping single-tracked on your obligations, then you avoid trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—This is a day when you really want to blast all with whom you come in contact; however, you owe the best you have to all you meet; if you keep this thought in mind you avoid serious disputes. Be gentle, considerate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Great urge to get away from daily duties, tedious toil fine, but it's necessary you first complete job to which you've obligated yourself, given your word. Then study new outlets that intrigue your fancy. Seek the unusual.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) — Being separated from some of your worth-while assets, property by some odd condition, slick talk unnecessary when you realize you have the discrimination to accept part desired, eliminate erratic part of plan presented.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TUESDAY . . .

Tuesday's child is going to be one of those unusual youngsters who wants to know what makes everything tick and who will get in all kinds of mischief out of sheer curiosity unless you early train with firm discipline that your offspring must do nothing that will interfere with the rights and property of others. Your child is so mentally brilliant that this will not be difficult. It will be your responsibility if you neglect to show this wisdom to your alert, wonderful offspring. Fine for all pioneering occupations.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

For tricks that are vain and ways that are dark, some bridge players are peculiar. At least that's the way the defenders felt when today's hand was played by my associate, Alfred Sheinwold, in a recent tournament.

East began the trickery with his opening bid of two diamonds. This was meant to be a weak two-bid, but it isn't a very good sample of that sort of bid. Those experts who favor the weak two-bid are usually careful to have more strength in the suit and less outside.

If East's diamonds were headed by ace-queen-10, with perhaps a queen or so outside, there would be some logic to the bid.

North's bidding continued the dark ways. He was certainly justified in bidding his major suits, but he should have bid four spades over three no-trump. It was a cinch that South had more than a singleton spade and that the hand would play safely at four spades. There was no such safety at three no-trump.

West naturally opened the seven of diamonds against the actual contract of three no-trump. East carefully played the discouraging deuce, and Sheinwold casually won the trick with the king of diamonds. West would surely lead the seven if he had J-9-7 of the suit, and then the suit would be within one trick of establishment.

After his tricky play at the first trick, Sheinwold led the nine of spades. West played low, dummy ducked, and so did East. This was correct play on the part of the defenders. Declarer led another spade and finessed the eight, losing to East's queen.

As expected, East led another diamond, whereupon Sheinwold produced the nine of diamonds to win the trick. While East mumbled something explosive and uncomplimentary, South led a heart to force an entry to the dummy. There was now no way to stop declarer from winning 10 tricks: five spades, a heart, three diamonds and a club.

Now see what happens if South wins the first trick with the nine of diamonds, exposing the true situation in that suit. When East wins the queen of spades, two tricks later, he shifts to the jack of clubs. South must duck and the 10 of clubs is led. South ducks again, whereupon West overtakes with the queen of clubs to lead the jack of hearts.

Church Hall to Fill Big Need

Just completed Oak Bay United Church Hall, to be dedicated Sunday evening, will provide for congregational group and recreational activities, and a vastly expanded Sunday School. The hall will provide facilities for basketball, badminton, shuffle board, film showings and dramatics. A church parlor with rich carpet and drapes will facilitate administrative and organization meetings, and is supplemented by an up-to-date, commodious kitchen. Church members expect to be able to carry out a full Christian educational program within the new building. (Times Photo.)

New Oak Bay United Church Hall To Be Dedicated Sunday Evening

Oak Bay United Church's new hall will be dedicated Sunday at 7.30 p.m. by Rev. Moir A. J. Waters, First United Church, and its opening will be marked next Wednesday by a "country fair" in the new building.

Assisting with dedication ceremonies will be Rev. George Soutar, Rev. T. G. Griffiths and A. R. C. Hebden, general superintendent of the Sunday school.

Greetings will be tendered by Oak Bay Reeve Fred E. Norris, P. A. Gibbs, MLA, and Judge Joseph B. Clearihue.

Special music will be sung by the senior choir under direction of Vera Barclay and by the junior choir directed by Mrs. D. J. Butler.

Part of the need for a church hall can be traced to the large Sunday school, having about 500 members.

Wednesday afternoon from 2-5 and from 7-10 in the evening, the country fair program will offer exhibits, entertainment and refreshments for those attending.

Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of B.C.'s premier, will officiate at the start of the program at 2 p.m.

Mrs. F. Matkin is the general convener of stalls and Mrs. E. Snowden is in charge of the program of music and dancing. Mrs. H. Britton is charged with refreshments.

Oak Bay Junior High School band will play for the afternoon only. Square dancing, Highland dancing and accordion solos will also be featured.

Let's Have One For the Middle Of the Road

TORONTO (BUP)—Arthur F. Pickering of Toronto looked today for other citizens to join him in forming "the Moderate Drinkers' Association" to combat both heavy drinking and the temperance movement.

Pickering said the first recruits to his movement already had drawn up a 14-point program to present to the Ontario Government.

One resolution would ask the provincial liquor board to realize that "it is the drinkers of this province who keep them in business, and therefore the drinkers have as many rights as the temperance forces and should be consulted regarding the province's liquor policy."

At Your Service Day and Night

As an additional service to telephone users, the British Columbia Telephone Company now provides many outdoor telephone booths throughout its widespread territory. These booths give convenience and privacy to those wishing to make calls when a residence or business telephone is not available.

Since the first booth was erected two-and-a-half years ago the familiar little structures have been established at points convenient to both pedestrians and motorists. Twenty-four hours a day they stand ready to serve those who need a telephone for casual or emergency conversations.

Introduction of the outdoor pay station to the telephone system is just another of the many ways in which the B.C. Telephone Company is bringing good service to British Columbia.

Dotograph for Juniors

What goes up must come down the adage says. But it doesn't say it has to come down in exactly the same place—especially if it's the object the young man is holding in the drawing above. Draw a continuous line from dot to dot consecutively to determine what it is.

CHARADE

A word I know will quickly show
What wicked people are;
And when transposed, will be disclosed
A name many men share;
Transposed again 'twill bring to light,
What all would wish to do,
If altered now 'twill fairly show
What hides them from view.
The same four different letters of the alphabet rearranged supply the words to which clues are given above.

Answers: Evil, vile, live, veil.

CAN YOU FIND THE NUMBER?

A certain number is composed of four digits the sum of which is 18. The sum of the first, second and fourth figures is equal to the third figure. What's the number?

Answer: Four two nine three meets the specification.

COMMUNITY CHEST received a great boost today when Eaton's employees donated $3,500, an increase of $1,000 over last year's gift. The store matched the employees' fund. Above, Eaton staffer, Miss C. ONLY THE PRAIRIES HAVE BAD LUCK

Most Canadians Prosperous As Thanksgiving Comes Again

By GEORGE LINTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian economy chalked up a few more achievement records this week but could hardly ignore the fact that parts of the country were in trouble.

Workers in most provinces were bringing home bigger pay cheques, spending more money and paying a little less for many articles.

But out on the Prairies snow and sleet cut further into farmers' hopes of profit from their 1954 crops. About 4,000 plumbers were on strike in Montreal and Nova Scotia apple growers were trying to salvage what they could from the damage of hurricane Edna.

The 1954 Prairie grain crop, whose prospects have dimmed ever since spring planting, now appears to be the least valuable of post-war years.

"This year will long be remembered as one of the most disappointing in history," the Saskatchewan wheat pool said this week. The crop, plagued by rust, wind, snow and sawflies, is estimated by the pool at 56.5 per cent below the 1953 yield and the smallest since 1943.

NOT ENOUGH OATS

Other cereal grains and flax were expected to show half the 1953 crops. Officials say it is doubtful whether Canada can produce 39,313,000 bushels of oats the United States wants this year. Last year the U.S. bought 60 per cent more from Canada.

The grain fields spilled their troubles over into almost the whole Prairie economy. Spending power fell off in August from August, 1953, as indicated by the value of cheques cashed. Retail sales were lower.

But in other parts of the country most business indicators bounced along at a high level. The country's paid workers earned about $120,000,000 more in the first seven months of 1954 than in the same 1953 period.

Most retail articles cost a little less. The consumer price index dropped one-fifth of a point in August, reversing a three-month advance. Food and some clothing prices were lower.

Other high-level indicators: Television set sales leaped ahead during July and August, outstripping production by more than 50 per cent; more money was being borrowed from banks for house mortgages; and house construction was booming in September (102 per cent in value ahead of September, 1953).

Commercial fishermen on Canadian coasts were making more money. August catches totaled $13,824,000, a 21 per cent increase over August, 1953.

British Columbia apple growers got welcome news. Britain was reported ready to buy 750,000 boxes of the province's expected 5,000,000-box picking.

Stock markets made a little progress this week. New York's advance was the greatest, with The Associated Press average of 60 stocks going to $137.40, a high since October, 1929, and closing at $137.30.

Uraniums featured the Toronto market. Most ended with small gains on the week.

Toronto indexes made small gains. Industrials climbed 1.76 to 356.07, golds .39 to 77.72, base metals 1.36 to 150.94, and western oils 1.19 to 92.72.

GM CHIEF SNEERS AT EUROPEAN AUTOS

PARIS (AP) — Automobiles manufactured in Europe have no chance on the American market, says Harlow Curtice, president of the General Motors Corporation.

In an interview with the French paper, "l'Auto-Journal" Curtice, now touring GM factories in Europe, said the latest European cars, sports cars excepted, would achieve only a "short success of curiosity" if exported to the States.

When asked what were the prospects on the world market of the German Volkswagen and the smallest (French) Citreon, Curtice laugned and said he could not have serious views "on those funny contraptions."

U.S. Business Boom Smashes More Marks

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—Indicators pointed higher this week in at least three major segments of U.S. business: construction, steel and textiles.

The building boom roared along, smashing records right and left.

Elsewhere the pickup was more modest. In most lines it was too early to tell if a real upturn had set in, or if the improvement merely reflected seasonal factors. And in some there was continued evidence of rough going.

An air of confidence was apparent in Wall Street, where stock averages punched to 25-year highs.

On the steel front, there was encouraging news from several quarters. Two important producers, one in Pittsburgh and one in Lackawanna, N.Y., announced sharp increases in operating rates for the week ahead. The industry's over-all production rate topped 70 per cent of capacity.

Auto production slowed to a crawl, as Ford began a series of staggered shutdowns in its assembly plants preparatory to changing over to production of 1955 models.

Chrysler, Pontiac and Chevrolet were already pushing out 1955s but had not yet hit full stride. Trade sources said it would take longer than usual to get into full production this year because of the industry's huge investment in new automatic machine tools and the drastic changes being made in auto styles.

The textile industry, emerging from its worst depression in years, may have finally turned the corner. That was the word this week from both union and management spokesmen. The CIO Textile Workers of America said employment in the industry is rising, and Edward Goldberger, treasurer of M. Lowenstein and Sons, said fabric inventories are at their lowest level in several years.

Less favorable was the announcement that the New York Central Railroad is shutting down its new $2,500,000 diesel repair shop at East Buffalo, N.Y., "due to lack of business and general economic conditions." Some 300 workers will be laid off or transferred.

Latest government figures on the overall job picture show total employment in September down 132,000 from the previous month, largely because of teenagers quitting summer jobs and going back to school. Unemployment showed an even larger dip—146,000. A total of 62,144,000 people had jobs last month, while 3,099,000 wanted work but couldn't find it.

BUILDING RECORD FORECAST

But 1954 Increase Postwar's Smallest

OTTAWA (CP) — New construction in Canada, including houses, schools and industries, may rise to a record $4,830,000,000 in 1954, the bureau of statistics forecast today.

This would be an increase of $235,000,000 or 5 per cent over the $4,595,000,000 worth of constuction completed last year, the bureau said. However, the increase of 5 per cent is small, the lowest in post-war years.

The bureau estimated that new construction will rise to $3,866,000,000 from $3,646,000,000 last year while the bill for repairs and alterations will increase to $964,000,000 from $949,000,000.

Alberta Industry Completes Plant Expansion Program

EDMONTON — One of the world's best known scientifically approved mattresses, the Sealy Posturepedic Mattress, is now being manufactured in Western Canada by Canadian Bedding Co. Ltd. of Edmonton.

The Sealy Mattress Co., makers of fine bedding since 1881, is represented in the United States by 29 large factories. Its trade mark is known to millions the world over as a sign of integrity, reliable quality and fair pricing. Now this scientifically-approved mattress has come to Canada.

Designed to revolutionary specifications in co-operation with leading orthopedic surgeons, the Sealy Posturepedic Mattress correctly supports the body in healthy, restful relaxation. Comfort is not sacrificed as in old-fashioned corrective mattresses. Rather, Nature is aided in relaxing and resting tired muscles and nerves.

All these features are possible because the Sealy Posturepedic Mattress is a truly new kind of inner-spring mattress.

In order to begin manufacturing the Sealy Mattress, extensive changes were necessary in production facilities at the Canadian Bedding plant, in the way of new machinery and technical equipment. This has been done and the plant is now in full production.

Recognition of the high quality of the Sealy Mattress is its endorsement by the American Medical Association, Good Housekeeping, Parents' Magazine, Today's Health and the National Chiropractic Association, Council of Public Health and Research.

CIVIL DEFENSE

'Shirking' Hit by Member

MLA Lydia Arsens today accused local civil defense authorities of "shirking their duty" and demanded the Greater Victoria CD program be stepped up instead of scrapped.

Mrs. Arsens wired The Times from Nelson her views on the Greater Victoria civil defense control board's action in dismissing all but one member of the administrative staff.

"SHOCKED"

The Social Credit MLA said she is "extremely shocked" at the board's action.

"The vast majority of citizens still are without knowledge of methods of self-preservation in any modern attack," she said. Ottawa's inefficiency is no excuse for local authorities to shirk their duty of launching an intensive educational drive in such a vulnerable area."

ASKS CAMPAIGN

"I have wired Mayor C. L. Harrison and council, strongly urging stepping up of program for general public instead of scrapping it," said Mrs. Arsens.

She said she was "appealing to The Victoria Daily Times to campaign against council's dangerous decision."

Meanwhile, the civil defense firing issue appeared at a standstill until a special control board meeting called for 3 p.m., Tuesday.

Provincial and federal officials are withholding comment on the Victoria situation until after the meeting, and until they are in possession of a full report.

Soccer Lead

LONDON (UP)—Sunderland took over the lead in the first division of the British Soccer League today when previously-undefeated West Bromwich was trimmed 3-1 by lowly-placed Tottenham in the day's biggest upset.

Sunderland topped Newcstle at home, 4-2, and moved into first place by virtue of a superior goals-per-game average. Manchester City and Wolverhampton played a 2-2 tie, giving Manchester City the runner-up spot although like Sunderland, it has a total of 17 points.

Prince Rupert Cabby Gives Life for Woman

Vehicle Plunges Into False Creek

VANCOUVER (CP) — A taxi driver identified as Magnus (Mike) Arnison, about 29, of Prince Rupert, saved a woman passenger but failed to escape himself when his vehicle plunged into the waters of False Creek before dawn here today.

The taxi, registered in Prince Rupert, is believed to have turned off Main Street by mistake and onto the False Creek quay.

When the driver realized his error and tried to turn around, the rear end of the vehicle slipped off the dock. The cab fell 15 feet into 10 feet of water.

A broken piling smashed the front window but the driver managed to push his passenger, Mrs. Elsie Manz, through the window as the car sank.

The story was pieced together from statements the woman made to police in Vancouver General Hospital.

A fisherman, Joe E. Henderson, was awakened by a woman screaming about 4.15 a.m. He said he and a companion launched a skiff to find the woman clinging to a log in the water.

"She was hysterical," said Henderson. "She kept shouting: "There's a man in there; for God's sake try and get him out."

Police were summoned within minutes but the driver's body could not be recovered for almost an hour.

The driver of the taxi and his brother were visiting in Vancouver.

Theft of U.S. Secret Files Brings Arrest

WASHINGTON (UP) — FBI agents today arrested a former employee of the national security agency on charges he improperly obtained secret government documents connected with national defense.

FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover identified the arrested man as Joseph Sidney Petersen, 40. Hoover said Petersen has been employed by the security agency since 1941.

The national security agency is a top-secret branch of the defense department. Its operations are so hush-hush that its exact functions never have been disclosed. But it is known to be concerned with such matters as codes, communications and intelligence.

A complaint filed before U.S. commissioner Earl C. Fletcher of Alexandria, Va., charged that Petersen from March 1, 1948, to about Dec. 31, 1952, while an employee of the agency, obtained classified documents and national defense information "with intent or reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States or to the advantage of a foreign nation."

10 Dead, Many Survive After 48 Hours in Water

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—A freighter with 48 crewmen capsized and sank Thursday in a storm 150 miles southeast of Cape Henry, Va., and a mighty air and sea rescue operation was in progress today.

The coast guard reported at least four known dead and search pilots said six additional bodies were spotted in the water. Eleven persons were pulled alive from the water so far but one of those was reported in critical condition. The four known dead were bodies brought aboard rescue ships.

Other survivors were spotted over a wide area after 48 hours of clinging to wreckage or staying afloat in life jackets.

Planes flying overhead dropped a number of life rafts to survivors who were "apparently in fairly good shape," according to pilots of the planes winging overhead.

OVER 4 MILES

Lt.-Cmdr. Joe Ryan, the pilot of one of six planes assisting in rescue work, said debris and survivors were scattered thickly over about four square miles of ocean swells. He estimated that his crew spotted 15 or 20 survivors during eight hours of flying.

Ryan's patrol plane dropped one life raft and he said several apparently dropped from other planes were in the area but "those people were very reluctant to leave their debris and get on them."

Planes dropped smoke bombs and dye markers around the men in the sea so that surface craft and PBM flying boats could spot them easily.

"There were smoke floats all over the area," Ryan said. "Sometimes you could see eight or 10 burning at the same time," Ryan said.

The first man Ryan spotted "was hanging onto a board and waving like mad," he said.

RESCUE BEGINS

Rescue ships began plucking survivors out of the sea shortly after dawn today.

The freighter was the Moore-McCormack Line Mormackite, bound to Baltimore with a load of iron ore from Buenos Aires, Argentina. She was due in Baltimore Thursday, but was last heard from at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Her position then was 260 miles southeast of Cape Henry.

The first survivor was picked up by the Greek freighter Macedonia at 7.37 a.m. today, and he told his rescuers the Mormackite capsized and sank early Thursday.

CHURCHILL SAYS

U.S. Isolation Could Spell End Of Europe, U.K.

BLACKPOOL, Eng. (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill said today that if the United States adopted an isolationist policy, it would condemn all Europe to Soviet subjugation and would reduce Britain "to death and ruin."

The prime minister was addressing the annual conference of the Conservative party only a month before his 80th birthday. In measured tones, he declared:

"For America to withdraw into isolation would condemn all Europe to Russian Communist subjugation and our famous and beloved island to death and ruin."

Condemning all calls in Britain and the United States for the Americans to "go it alone" against Russia, Churchill declared:

"There is already in the United States no little talk of a return to isolation and the policy is described as 'fortress America.'

Churchill made a powerful plea for support of the new nine-power plan to rearm West Germany and grant her membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization under proper safeguards.

He said "it would be disastrous to the human race" to judge the Germans or any other peoples by past crimes committed in their names by dictators.

"Let Hitler take his shame to hell," he said. "Let the peoples extend the hand of friendship and forgiveness to each other and walk forward together through the mysteries of life to freedom, justice and peace."

Travel agencies noted heavy traffic up-Island and to and from the mainland.

Trans-Canada Air Lines reported sell-out business on extra flights Friday and today, and said advance bookings had been made for Monday night, both to and from the mainland.

For the stay-at-homes who will make their last major effort to get gardens in shape for the winter, Sunday gives signs of being a "reasonably good" day.

William Mackie, weatherman, said there will be clearing tonight after shower activity late today, and sunshine with cloudy periods Sunday. Temperatures will range between 50 and 58 degrees.

Monday, however, gives every sign of being wintery, Mr. Mackie said.

Present indications are that a storm far out in the Pacific will make itself felt by Monday, he said, bringing cloud and some rain.

A full sports program has been arranged for the week-end to suit all tastes, from golf and football to motorcycle hill climbs.

CANADA RECALLS SCIENTIST

Changes Forecast In Research Staff

Recalled to Canada for special duties is Dr. George S. Field, one of Canada's top defense research scientists, loaned recently to United Kingdom air ministry.

Announcement was made here today by Dr. Omond M. Solandt, defense research board chairman, following a meeting of the board at Esquimalt Pacific Naval Laboratory. Dr. Solandt is in Victoria in connection with the opening Friday of new PNL facilities at Esquimalt. (See page 15.)

"Because of an impending staff reorganization, combined wits our current heavy research program, we have found it necessary to recall Dr. Field," Dr. Solandt said.

"Although the U.K. authorities are reluctant to lose his services, they have kindly agreed ta releasing him before the end of the originally planned tour overseas.'

On his return to Ottawa about mid-November, lDr. Field wil assume position of chief scientist, a new senior post set up by the board.

EX-PREMIER ANALYZES B.C. FINANCIAL STANDING

On Page 4 today former Premier Byron Johnson replies to claims of the provincial government that Social Credit policies have given British Columbia a better financial standing than ever before. Premier Bennett took credit this week for the low interest rate obtained on the latest PGE bond issue. Mr. Johnson asserts this was not due to the government's policies, but to the generally lower rates in the money market, and backs up his statement with figures. Socred Cabinet Ducks Lottery Issues, Tosses 'Bombshell' Back to Bonner

By TOM GOULD
Times Legislative Reporter

The Social Credit government Friday ducked the controversial issue of legalizing lotteries for charities.

After a day and one-half of gauging public opinion, a heated cabinet session, and opposition from B.C. churchmen and Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi, the government tossed the issue completely into the hands of Attorney General Robert Bonner.

Mr. Bonner issued a prepared statement in which he took full personal responsibility for a recommendation to a federal government committee that charity lotteries be legalized.

Mr. Bonner's statement said he was sent a questionnaire "as attorney general" by the Senate-Commons joint committee on corporal punishment and lotteries.

"This being a federal question under review, I have communicated of course, only my personal view for the consideration of the federal committee," said Mr. Bonner.

The attorney general's original statement concerning the lottery question was made Thursday morning, when he showed reporters the recommendation made to Ottawa.

It read:

"It is suggested the (Criminal) Code be amended to allow lotteries to operate under government supervision where the proceeds are devoted to charitable purposes only, and where no person or corporation other than the charity makes a profit."

Since Mr. Bonner revealed the recommendation in reply to a reporter's query as to whether the Social Credit government favored lotteries, newsmen assumed it to be a statement of government policy.

B.C. newspapers, including the Times, carried the story in Thursday afternoon editions. Mr. Bonner made no statement on Friday morning, but at 3 p.m. Friday he called a press conference to say he was "surprised at the sensational headlines referring to my very limited recommendation concerning lotteries."

In the interim, churchmen of all denominations had blasted the government's stand, and Public Works Minister Gaglardi had given wide coverage to his personal view that "I am opposed to all lotteries."

In view of Mr. Bonner's claim the recommendation expressed his personal view on lotteries (he said reporters' assumption the recommendation was government policy was an "understandable misunderstanding") the government's position is not known.

However, it is considered highly unlikely in government circles the attorney-general would submit a recommendation on such a contentious issue without consulting Premier Bennett, if not the entire cabinet.

It is obvious, too, that the federal committee was seeking an expression of provincial government opinion, and not that of an individual.

Mr. Bonner said: "It should be made clear that the view of the attorney-general was sought in this questionnaire and not that of the government of this province."

The A-G's statement reiterated the stand taken in the original release: that lotteries should be legalized for charities, to be operated under strict government supervision. Expenses should be regulated to "ensure that only the charity would derive benefit."

He enlarged on his comment that each charity should be restricted to holding one lottery a year by suggesting the federal committee consider "some device whereby charitable organizations either in Canada or in each province would combine in a lottery appeal."

Mr. Bonner said it would "appear many people presently support lotteries and by their action indicate lack of support of the present provisions of the Criminal Code."

Public servants who use their office t' issue "personal opinions" invite personal remarks.

Ship Capsizes 10 Known Dead

Many Survive But 21 Others Sought In Vast Sea and Air Rescue Effort

NORFOLK, Va. (UP)—A freighter with 48 crewmen capsized and sank Thursday in a storm 150 miles southeast of Cape Henry, Va., and a mighty air and sea rescue operation was in progress today.

The coast guard reported at least four known dead and search pilots said six additional bodies were spotted in the water. Eleven persons were pulled alive from the water so far but one of those was reported in critical condition. The four known dead were bodies brought aboard rescue ships.

Other survivors were spotted over a wide area after 48 hours of clinging to wreckage or staying afloat in life jackets.

Planes flying overhead dropped a number of life rafts to survivors who were "apparently in fairly good shape," according to pilots of the planes.

OVER 4 MILES

Lt.-Cmdr. Joe Ryan, the pilot of one of six planes assisting in rescue work, said debris and survivors were scattered thickly over about four square miles of ocean swells. He estimated that his crew spotted 15 or 20 survivors during eight hours of flying.

Ryan's patrol plane dropped one life raft and he said several apparently dropped from other planes were in the area but "those people were very reluctant to leave their debris and get on them."

Planes dropped smoke bombs and dye markers around the men in the sea so that surface craft and PBM flying boats could spot them easily.

"There were smoke floats all over the area," Ryan said. "Sometimes you could see eight or 10 burning at the same time," Ryan said.

The first man Ryan spotted "was hanging onto a board and waving like mad," he said.

Rescue ships began plucking survivors out of the sea shortly after dawn today.

The freighter was the Moore-McCormack Line Mormackite, bound to Baltimore with a load of iron ore from Buenos Aires, Argentina. She was due in Baltimore Thursday, but was last heard from at 8 p.m. Wednesday. Her position then was 260 miles southeast of Cape Henry.

GANG BLAMED FOR SLAYING

CHATHAM, Ont. (BUP)—Chatham police blamed gangland vengence today for the slaying of a man whose unidentified body was found in the Thomas River, weighted down with a cement block.

Police hoped fingerprint experts in Ottawa could identify the victim. They said the man was strangled and a heavy cement block tied around his waist with wire.

The body was badly decomposed and may have been in the water a week. The man was described as between 40 and 50 years old.

LOVESTRUCK LONG LEGS

Baby Delivery Service Nearly Loses a Member

ZURICH, Switzerland (UP)—An Alpine search party captured Long Legs, the lovelorn stork, today as he stood shivering on the shores of Lake Greifensee.

He will spend the winter in bereft bachelorhood as a guest of the Zurich zoo.

Long Legs captured the hearts of the city when he took up a lonely vigil under a Zurich bridge three weeks ago.

Other storks were winging south to winter in Egypt, but Long Legs was waiting for his brand-new mate. He didn't know she had been killed when she flew into a high-tension wire the same day they met.

Friday he disappeared, apparently with all hope gone. The people of Zurich doubted he could make it over the Alps this late in the season. They sent out a search party. Sure enough, the searchers found him this morning.

A blizzard had stopped him at the Oberald Pass.

Ornithologist Max Bloesch crept close and snared the bedraggled bird with a 50-foot noose. Long Legs was taken back to Zurich in triumph.

But while children cheered and their parents beamed as Long Legs was given lodgings at the zoo, Long Legs himself wore a long face.

Apparently Long Legs is still in love.

Attorney-General Says Legalized Lottery Was His Own Idea, Not That of Government

Vancouver Woman Survives Plunge Into False Creek

VANCOUVER (CP)—A taxi driver identified as Magnus (Mike) Arnison, about 29, of Prince Rupert, saved a woman passenger but failed to escape himself when his vehicle plunged into the waters of False Creek before dawn here today.

The taxi, registered in Prince Rupert, is believed to have turned off Main Street by mistake and drove on the False Creek uqay.

When the driver realized his error and tried to turn around, the rear end of the vehicle slipped off the dock. The cab fell 15 feet into 10 feet of water.

A broken piling smashed the front window but the driver managed to push his passenger, Mrs. Elsie Manz, through the window as the car sank.

The story was pieced together from statements the woman made to police in Vancouver General Hospital.

A fisherman, Joe E. Henderson, was awakened by a woman screaming about 4.15 a.m. He said he and a companion launched a skiff to find the woman clinging to a log in the water.

"She was hysterical," said Henderson. "She kept shouting: "There's a man in there; for God's sake try and get him out."

Police were summoned within minutes but the driver's body could not be recovered for almost an hour.

The driver of the taxi and his brother were visiting in Vancouver.

"You may be sure we shall settle our affairs in future between us, governed only by what we believe to be the greatest interest of the public service and the fortunes of our party," the 79-year-old leader said.

CIVIL DEFENSE

'Shirking' Hit by Member

MLA Lydia Arsens today accused local civil defense authorities of "shirking their duty" and demanded the Greater Victoria CD program be stepped up instead of scrapped.

Mrs. Arsens wired The Times from Nelson her views on the Greater Victoria civil defense control board's action in dismissing all but one member of the administrative staff.

"SHOCKED"

The Social Credit MLA said she is "extremely shocked" at the board's action.

"The vast majority of citizens still are without knowledge of methods of self-preservation in any modern attack," she said. Ottawa's inefficiency is no excuse for local authorities to shirk their duty of launching an intensive educational drive in such a vulnerable area."

ASKS CAMPAIGN

"I have wired Mayor C. L. Harrison and council, strongly urging stepping up of program for general public instead of scrapping it," said Mrs. Arsens.

She said she was "appealing to The Victoria Daily Times to campaign against council's dangerous decision."

Meanwhile, the civil defense firing issue appeared at a standstill until a special control board meeting called for 3 p.m., Tuesday.

Provincial and federal officials are withholding comment on the Victoria situation until after the meeting, and until they are in possession of a full report.

LONDON (UP)—Sunderland took over the lead in the first division of the British Soccer League today when previously-undefeated West Bromwich was trimmed 3-1 by lowly-placed Tottenham in the day's biggest upset.
